Charlevoix home up for 'House of the Year'

HGTV channel and Wall Street Journal highlight Charlevoix home

STAFF REPORT

One of the Harbo Sadebi's International Realty's featured listings in Charlevoix appeared on HGTV's Antiques Water House on New Year's Day and in 2013 the exquisite waterfront estate was ranked as "Home of the Day" on the Wall Street Journal website.

In the video, the show's crew visited the estate, located around and through some of the most scenic water features in America. The feature also showcased beautiful parties across the estate that annually are on the main floor. The title of the episode is "The estate: Antiques Water House" and may be broadcast again.

Although the showing room was named to the Wall Street Journal website, the listing of the estate in the Wall Street Journal is in content on the new "Home of the Year" contest through a poll in the newspaper's website, in which a vote will be counted through Monday, Jan. 13, 2014, at 11 a.m. The poll will be held in the Wall Street Journal website, and the winner will be announced on the Wall Street Journal website.

Designed to capture the serenity of the lake, quite literally, through its windows, the home is built around a beautiful, finished in copper and naturally heating 100-year-old stone fireplace. The fireplace's design reflects the water, highlighting the elegant living space.

A copper-tiled roof is then open, with an intimate dining area and exquisite great room separated by a two-sided fireplace. A modern bar, next to the fireplace, the owner purchased the property on Round Lake in 1985 from the estate of a family that chose this one-of-a-kind, then built, home. The property is 10,000 square feet, with a 10,000 square foot pool with three hot tubs, long walks to the beach, a collection of antique boats.

The home is on 1.5 acres, with a view of the lake and Round Lake. Another view of the lake is located just one quarter mile south of the property.

The property is located in a quiet, but safe, neighborhood. The property is a 100-year-old home, which is just one of a wide range of 100-year-old homes in the area. The property is a 100-year-old home, which is just one of a wide range of 100-year-old homes in the area.

Camels in the cold in Charlevoix

SHERI MCWHIRTER O'DONNELL
Courier editor

Law enforcement officers in Charlevoix County were well informed that camels could be found in downtown Charlevoix during Tuesday's largest winter weather all for the second Charlevoix Bridge Drop. That's because the police were alerted with reports of well-meaning officers worried for the safety of the animals in the early morning conditions.

It is difficult to find Kirk Ely, owner of Whispering Pines Mobile Zoo from Reed City, to participate in the second annual event on New Year's Eve along Bridge Street. He said it was a fun event and he was glad to see the petting zoo and camels.

They really tolerate a lot of cold and asking that his camels are well adjusted to Northern Michigan weather. In fact, they often participate in live nativities across the region.

The two breeding camels brought to downtown Charlevoix are 11 and 12 years old, born in New York and upstate New York, respectively. Ely said he kept them outside from noon to 5 p.m. Tuesday during the Charlevoix event, during which they remained blanketed to keep the cold snowflakes off. The camels went into the barn when Ely got them home, he said, and then they went out to pasture Wednesday.

LETTER to the editor

It is upon what, and in what order, that the classification of subjects is predicated, the first series of numbers in algebra gives the foundation of geometry, as of the poems in the legend and the subjects in literature are, in reality, the continuation of the subjects of arithmetic.

vertical support. Is it just a response to light or darkness or is it intelligent behavior leading to the support of the plant?

The researchers could eliminate the response to light by observing whether the plants bend toward a completely transparent support, but that experiment is not done. The investigator has already decided that bean plants move toward a support, and we have photographic evidence that it does. It sounds intelligible on the part of the plant, but biologists only decide that the researchers did not need a plant intelligence.

So now, without preconception about what is being investigated, it is difficult but necessary for us to enter to find out and think new.

Probably the most valuable effect of this case is that it illustrates as an important example of a rational procedure in a limited period of plant intelligence, and not, merely

Castle to host food science program

Castle Farms' 2014 lecture series kicks off in January with a program titled "The Science of Food."

Chef Bryan Romano, the owner of Pique Pizzeria Inn Restaurant in Charlevoix, will participate in the event at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 9, at Castle Farms, 5052 M-66, North. Participants will learn how to carbonate fruit turn into beer, liquid into jam, why plus all about roasting, herbs, and more during the hour-long session. The evening is guaranteed to be a good time, as Romano, a master chef and graduate of the Culinary Institute of America, shares tips on how to sample pasta, taste palates and culinary senses.

The event costs $5 per person, or $3 with a donation of canned goods. All proceeds benefit The Maine Food Project, a local food bank which distributes to food pantries in Emmet, Charlevoix and Antrim counties.

For more information on "The Science of Food" lecture series presentation contact Laura at Castle Farms at (231) 237-0844, ext. 219, or via email sent to laura@castlefarms.com.

Shop local winner

The Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce announced that local resident Craig Mann is the winner of the 2013 shop local contest. Mann won $300 in chamber checks, which can be spent the same as cash at any chamber member business. Mann's entry was among more than 300 received, which means more than $30,000 was locally spent this holiday season.

BAY HARBOR

Bay Harbor to host Ice and Spice Festival mid-January

BY MARY JANE ODELL
Courier contributor

The Bay Harbor Ice and Spice Festival just gets bigger and better.

This grand winter spectacle takes place Jan. 17 and 18 in the downtown water front community and will include the activity of national champion ice sculptors and artists competing for $12,000 in prizes. The activity of special Pin An Chilli Challenge adds spice to the festivities and costs $5, which is donated Maine Food Project.

This two-day event will also include horse drawn carriage rides around the village, a food booth contest for kids 8-12 for a chance to win Mac products and live performances by Amish Fire Entertainment each evening. A grand finale fireworks show on Saturday evening caps the two-day event, after the awards ceremony for the artists and winner of the Food Project contest.

Bay Harbor is one of the stops of the National Ice Sculpture Championships and is co-located by the National Ice Carving Association. Ten nationally recognized ice sculptors will be spending 12 hours working on a 10' block of ice to form an artistic sculpture. There are many different chair goals and various sizes of tools, picks and blow torches to accomplish their masterpiece out of a block of ice. Some are as high as 10 feet.

These artists like to add local Bay Harbor Marketing Director Michelle Deape. Everyone is hoping for a Bearcub brings torchlight event to Camp Daggett

BY BROOKS VANDERBUSH
Courier contributor

Bearcub Outfitters will once again bring torchlight snowshoeing to Camp Daggett. The two events are 5.9 pm on Saturday, Jan. 25, and 10 am on Sunday, Jan. 26, and will mark the 10th year the snowshoeing camp has hosted this event.

The event partnership evolved with a partnership between Camp Daggett and Bearcub Outfitters of Petoskey. Bearcub Outfitters, said Brent Mettall, of Camp Daggett. The purpose of the event is to raise awareness of a great winter activity to offer a family fun community event at Camp Daggett, and to raise scholarship funds for Camp Daggett programming through donations and raffle ticket sales to win premium Bearcub Outfitters gear and gear.

The great winter activity, the Mettall speaks of is the opportunity to experience the serene solitude, silence and beauty of a nighttime hike through a forest of northern white pines.

In a time of change, there is no escape. Freshly baked cookies, marshmallows roasting over a fire, the sound of laughter, the end of a long day, and Mettall with a smile. "If you can walk, then you can snowshoe. It's simply a great venue for

It was her responsibility to address them. Meetings and compliance. Week's first day stepped down completely from the post. She said for the city clerk's post, city resident Larry Sullivan there has had into the rug.

Shortly after the deadline passed, city officials began to raise questions about whether Sullivan, who also serves on the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners, could also serve as the Charlevoix City Clerk at the same time.

Sullivan said the three stories he asked about the city clerk's position were not a problem with simultaneously serving in both elected positions. However, later received that opinion when they learned that the Charlevoix City Clerk and Charlevoix County Clerk offices have contractual relationships for elections.

Using a possible conflict of interest in the election ordinance, the attorney opined that it would be a violation of the state's Incompatible Offices Act for Sullivan to serve in both capacities at the same time. They also noted that such a situation may also be barred by the city charter.

At the last minute, Sullivan asked to be a write-in candidate to get her old job back. However, Sullivan won the election by a wide margin in November.

In the meantime, the city council has moved forward with an effort to place a measure on before city voters in 2014 that would modify the city charter to change the city clerk's position from an elected to an appointed position, possibly making the debate over Sullivan's position moot. The discussion over changing the clerk's post from elected to appointed began shortly after Sullivan's resignation. He lost the Sullivan situation had stopped up.

In early December, Sullivan notified city officials that he plans to assume the city clerk's post on Jan. 6 and stay on as a county commissioner. He noted that the contractual relationships between the city and county are minor matters that could be resolved by making a few changes and interpreting the charter language to mean it prohibits a city of locals from holding any other office at the same time.

The council is now slated to have a special meeting at 7 p.m. on Thursday, Jan. 2, to consider a resolution proposed by the city attorney that, if approved, would bar Sullivan from assuming the city clerk's post unless he resigns from the county board of commissioners. The proposed resolution cites the city charter as the basis for the action.

Other leadership changeovers

Multiple high-profile job changes happened in late December. Sullivan's resignation was announced in 2013 — a real sea change for Charlevoix's community.

First, Tim Bennis, former president of Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce, unexpectedly resigned from her job in October to spend more time with family. That came not long after Betty Ann Perry resigned from her job as the chamber's membership and events coordinator to take a position with the city as the community's economic development director. That left the chamber down to two key leadership positions going into the new year.

president to fill the vacancy in early 2014.

Next up, both city street superintendent Rick Brandt and fire chief Paul Jean are set to retire. Brandt will work his last day with the city as the year draws to a close and 2014 begins, while Jean is scheduled to retire sometime in 2014.

His widow planned a memorial period during which he will pass his knowledge to the next treasurer, Joe Zielinski, who came to Charlevoix from Grand Blanc.

Finally, Charlevoix Area Community Pool board members interviewed candidates to replace retiring director Al Giowh. The pool offers swimming lessons, water fitness classes, various water-related safety certifications and is home to the private Stingrays swim team.

And, finally, nonprofit Charlevoix Area Art Association hired Steve Horton and Elroy Wood to executive director positions. They will share duties in the art organization's leadership roles, officials said.

Next is a West Point graduate with five years of commissioned service in the U.S. Army, as Assistant Ranger and is a Vietnam veteran. He practiced law for 17 years before leaving the practice to launch Concord Academy in Petoskey, where he served as director for seven years, then moved on to Concord Academy Antism for another seven years.

Victory World is an accomplished artist with years of experience managing her own art galleries. She has a degree in pastoral counseling and has owned and operated her own counseling service.

French confirm Lake Michigan shipwreck Charlevoix's Steve Horton and Elroy Wood to executive director positions. They will nized a team of divers and archaeologists to bring up from the floor of Lake Michigan what he believed to be a fragment from the historic Griffin, the first wooden ship to sail the Great Lakes built by French explorer La Salle.

French archaeologists in November explained what they thought about the wooden beam with a wooden mast, being a fragment from a ship the size of the Griffin and possibly from the same era, but couldn't specifically identify it as being from the Griffin. "The bones are pretty good, though I don't argue."

A team of both American and French archaeologists in June investigated and raised the 600-pound artifact to Otago Memorial Hospital in Lansing for a CT scan, where officials aimed about 4 feet at each end.

Information gathered through this process proved inconclusive, but three sets of carbon dating tests showed the artifact likely could be from as far back as the 18th century, the era of the Griffin. French archaeologists reported the construction is from a sailing vessel, this growth in the timber showed a section remained buried in the lake a sediment for a long time, at least 100 years and perhaps even several hundred years.

That means the French believe it's a shipwreck, most likely from the same time period as the Griffin and found in North America's inland freshwater seas. Reports from the American archaeologists in the expedition remain pending.

Meanwhile, Horton and Wood intend to continue his search for more parts of what he believes is the sunken Griffin, not far from where he found the fragment in an undisclosed location. Horton said he is near a group of Michigan islands not far from the Wisconsin line. A new round of permits will be needed for further seafloor probing and other archaeological activity at the Lake Michigan bottom. Laid, he said.

Rick's financial expertise has always been highly regarded and respected among the city in creating a long-term investment in a safe, sound, and secure fund balance, Brandt said.

Furthermore, Brandt at Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce, conservative budgeting influence with the city in both increasing taxpayer fund balances in various departments, as well as allowing for bond rating agencies to classify the city's bond at an AA, the highest rating a municipality can receive. That translates to a reduction in cost for the city in borrowing, ultimately saving tax dollars in interest payments.

Brandt has always been energetic, open-minded and willing to think out of the box. I have especially enjoyed his candid and humorous insights on how to better government operations while saving taxpayer dollars," Brandt said.

"It has been a pleasure serving with him and he will certainly be missed in the coming years."

Brandt has worked for more than two months with incoming city treasurer Joe Zielinski on the 2014-2015 city budget, time which he said proved really valuable.

"We have created a new system to create the budget — something that took both of us many hours of hard work, but will certainly improve the budget process in the long run," Brandt said.

And with his coming time at work?

"I am looking forward to some new projects at home, spending more time outside — cross-country skiing during the snowy months, then hiking, biking, backpacking, sailing and kayaking on the summer — and doing something career wise that is completely different," Brandt said. "I look forward to having a little more time to travel and find some new things that interest and motivate me."

Erskine, new area coaches look for improvement after holiday break

DREW KOCHANNY
Northern Michigan Review

Fresh starts aren't always smooth starts.

For four newly hired area boys' basketball coaches, that's exactly what they're facing.

Just four games into the 2013-14 season, the new leaders of the circuit for Harbor Springs, Charlevoix, Pellston and Mackinac Island are seeing improvement, though, and a long winter break should only help.

"They're working really hard and that's all that I can ask out of them right now," Charlevoix coach Bret Erskine said. "Hopefully next Christmas break we can break a little bit and start the new year out a little better than we started the end of this year."

The Raydors have begun 1-4 overall and 0-1 in the Lake Michigan Conference under Erskine, while dealing with injury and sickness along the way.

Charlevoix has been a little out of sync, 2-6 overall and 0-2 in the Lake Michigan Conference, because of a loss in game 1 and a win in game 2.

As a coach, you'd love to see him to be playing but dealing his injury is more important than wins and losses," Erskine said of Hunkins. "The other guys just need to step up and they're starting to do a great job of doing that. They're really starting to feel their way."

The man Erskine replaced, Adam Wood, now the head coach and athletic director at Harbor Springs, has opened the year 2-2 overall and 1-0 in the Lake Michigan Conference.

Like Erskine, Wood knows his team needs to improve, but has been encouraged thus far.

"It's going to be a learning process for us as coaches with these new players and for the new players with us," said Wood.

Erskine actually been really encouraged by the way we finished out the last week."

The Rams have earned a 23-point win over Pellston and a conference opening win over Kalkaska. Following winter break, Wood is looking forward to getting into the thick of league play.

"I'm excited about getting into the meat of our schedule as far as our conference goes," he said. "It's a really good conference and it's going to be a challenge every single night and hopefully we can just keep improving every single night and be as successful as we can be."

Pellston, led by Larry Tansley, opened the season on a rough three game skid, but closed out before break with a 10-point win over Sky Valley.

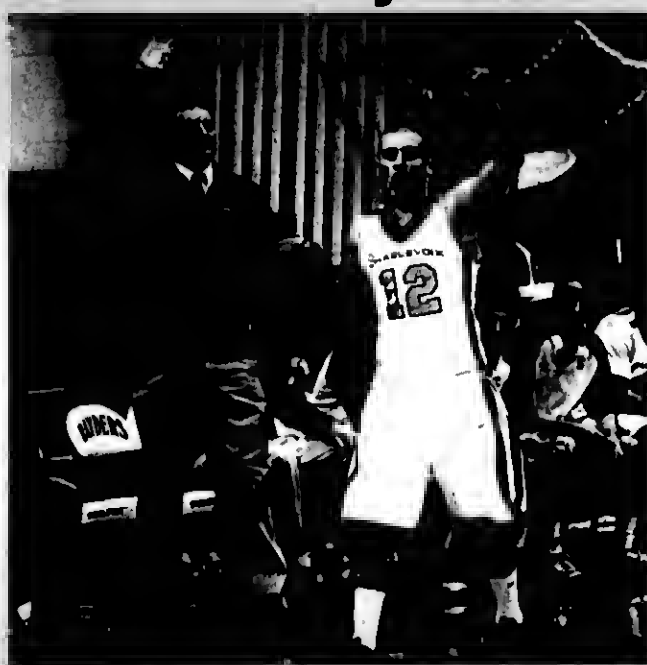

The Hornets are 1-1 overall, 1-1 in league play, but have improved their point differential and offensive and defensive output in every game to start the 2013-14 season.

Mackinac Island's first year coach Austin Krieger has led the Comets to a 2-1 overall start and 1-1 record in the Northern Lakes Conference with their lone loss a 10-point defeat against De Tour.

The Comets do, however, have wins of 40 points and 17 points against Pellston and Elksworth respectively.

With more than three quarters worth of the season left to play, there's a healthy plenty of time for all four teams to iron out the early wrinkles.

"You're trying so hard, like any coach, to put your every thing you can into the first few weeks and you can get ready for games," added Erskine. "Now we've got a couple weeks here where we're going to practice hard and try to learn all the new things

Charlevoix head varsity boys' basketball coach Bret Erskine (left) calls out a play earlier this season as Raydors guard Justin Pearl directs the offense. Erskine has led an injury and illness ridden team to a 1-4 start on the season in his first year as head coach of the program. The Raydors and Erskine will face former Raydors coach and current Harbor Springs head coach Adam Wood on Tuesday, Jan. 7, at home, after the winter break period.

we're trying to teach them and hopefully we can get better."

The first game back from break for both Erskine and Wood will come against one another as the Rams travel to the Raydors on Tuesday, Jan. 7, in a meeting against old friends now turned good-natured conference rivals.

Wood, his coach, looks it's all about the players in the makeup of new coaches.

"It'll be exciting when we go back after Christmas break and play, but you know kids are kids and that's why we're in it," he said. "Obviously I reknow Bret for a long time. It's a kind of fun to see and have him around and he and I still talk off the time so it'll be a pleasure to coach against him."

New law targets 'trophy' deer poachers

CHRIS ENGLE
Northern Michigan Reporter

PANAMA — A new law to take effect in February will drastically increase the penalties for poaching trophy deer.

Signed by Gov. Rick Snyder in November, the act adds an additional $1,000 restitution for the illegal killing of an antlered deer.

Restitution is even higher if the buck has at least 8 points — $500 per point — and $750 per point if it has at least 11 points.

The base restitution for a poached deer is $1,000.

Such poachers will have their hunting privileges revoked for five years for the first offense and 10 years for a second offense. Base penalties for poaching carry a three-year revocation of hunting privileges.

The bill was introduced by Sen. Phil Partlow, R-St. Ignace, an avid hunter who said poaching hurts the efforts of the Department of Natural Resources, hunting groups, and other poach restrictions which work to improve the overall deer herd.

"People put a lot of time and effort into whitetail season," Partlow said Monday. "We want to make sure that when the season opens, the trophies are still walking around."

Partlow, who is the vice chairman of the Senate's Great Lakes Environment Committee, said he looked at other states that have adopted similar laws while shaping his legislation. Those include Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia.

He said an improved deer herd bolsters Michigan's "economic driver" of hunting and fishing tourism.

"If we're going to be a better destination for trophy hunting, we need to prevent poaching," he said.

Partlow initially considered basing fines on the Boone & Crockett score of a poached trophy but settled on the simpler point system which conservation officers can use to quickly take an offense in the field. Antler tines longer than an inch are counted as points.

Retired conservation officer John Borkovich, who was based out of Port Huron, testified in the Senate in support of the legislation. Partlow said.

Borkovich could not immediately be reached for comment Monday, but Mark Defew, a conservation officer in St. Ignace County, compared poachers to thieves.

"When someone steals a trophy, but they're stealing from everybody," Defew said.

"Those are owned by you, me and everyone in the state of Michigan."

He said poaching often takes place at night when

More than $100,000 back in Charlevoix County's pockets

MORGAN SHERBURNE
Northern Michigan Review

An audit of Charlevoix County's legal expenses has showed the county paid about $108,000 more than it should have, said county clerk Cherie Browe.

The county was on the hook for about $180,000 in legal fees for two lawsuits: the first, a lawsuit filed against Charlevoix County and John Jarema by former assistant prosecutor Shaynee Fanara, the bill for which is about $70,996. The second lawsuit, which Fanara had filed individually against Jarema, has a bill of $109,962.

But the audit revealed Charlevoix County was paying for more than it should have been, said Browe.

Documents from Jarema's lawyer firm Collins, Einhorn & Farrell to Charlevoix County show a refund of $5,203, paid back to Charlevoix County in April. The firm refunded a second payment of $34,726.82 in early December.

Browe said the county's bills paid to Collins, Einhorn & Farrell for defend-

City council bars Sullivan from clerk post; Mayor casts tie-breaking vote

SHERI MCWHIRTER-O'DONNELL
Courier editor

Charlevoix city leaders in a split vote on Thursday preemptively barred Larry Sullivan from taking office as city clerk this week.

That move came after a lengthy special meeting Jan. 2 during which city council members debated for more than an hour about how to move forward with Sullivan's intentions to serve both as Charlevoix city clerk and as a Charlevoix County commissioner. Voters elected Sullivan county commissioner in 2012 and city voters chose him as city clerk in November 2013. State law says Sullivan can be sworn into office at the first regular meeting, which fell on Monday, Jan. 6 — then just days away.

City officials struggled in recent weeks regarding whether Sullivan legally can hold both the elected county and city offices. The decision to approve a resolution intended to bar Sullivan from the city post evenly split the council, forcing Norman Carlson Jr. to cast a tie-breaking vote for just the second time during his tenure as mayor.

City council members Leon Perron, Jeff Porter and Shirley Gibson voted against barring Sullivan from taking office, while Carlson joined council members Lyle Gennett, Greg Stevens and Shane Cole in approving the recommended move by city attorneys James Young and Bryan Graham.

A key point written into the deal is that council members will gather again to revisit the issue when the Michigan Attorney General wades into the fray, which was expected to be in seven-10 days, Graham said.

"It would have been a hell of a lot easier if we'd had an opinion earlier," Carlson said.

It's unknown whether the attorney general will weigh in on both pending legal issues: Does state law allow Sullivan to serve as both a county commissioner and a city clerk, and does the Charlevoix city charter allow for it? Regardless, the state legal opinion is expected to serve as a cue for Charlevoix officials — something Sullivan agreed to, as well.

"I will abide by the AG's opinion," Sullivan said. "We'll let that decision be the deciding factor."

But at least three city council members said they preferred another way.

"I think we need to swear Larry in as city clerk," Porter said. "I wish Larry would have made the decision to pick one or the other (office), but we can't disenfranchise the voters by not swearing him in."

Others thought formal action could wait.

"Why can't this be tabled until that AG opinion comes in?" Perron asked.

And several city residents spoke out at the public meeting, too.

C. Michael Doherty encouraged council members to allow Sullivan to assume the city clerk's office, specifically calling the situation a "kangaroo court" and advising authorities not to

Details forthcoming at public marina expansion meeting

The public can learn more details about a city plan to expand the downtown marina to accommodate larger boats and yachts.

Plans call to construct an additional 150 feet to the main dock that juts out into Round Lake. The move could bring an uptick in marina revenues for the city, but also would impact residents around the lake and boaters who pass through.

"It would stick way out and we don't know how the public will react," said Mike Spencer, city planner.

The Charlevoix Planning Commission will further discuss the idea at a public meeting set for 6 p.m. Wednesday, Jan. 15, at city hall, 210 State St., Charlevoix.

Spencer said local firefighters are expected to place bright, orange cones out on the ice on Round Lake to demonstrate where the dock would end, if the marina expansion is ultimately approved as proposed.

"The cones will be out there to show people before the meeting," Spencer said.

He added that city officials want public feedback on both the project details and financing options.

Last year, Charlevoix City Council gave city staff the OK to continue looking into this possibility after discussing high demand in recent summers for Local horse ranch subject of new novel

EMILY WHITE
Courier contributor

Timothy Parsel of Charlevoix said he "wasn't a good student by any means," in high school, but his 11th grade Charlevoix High School English teacher thought otherwise. It began when Parsel submitted an essay for an assignment that his teacher, Mrs. Henne, highly praised. In fact, she encouraged him to continue in life as a writer, but he chose a different path.

Now more than 40 years later, he finds himself a self-published author of his novel "Broken Rib Ranch."

"Her words always kept coming back to him as he was writing this book," Parsel's wife, Diana, said.

The inspiration behind the title of the book came from countless blows to the ribs from the powerful hind legs of Parsel's horses.

"He learned eventually that you can't stand behind a horse," Diana said.

Parsel and his wife own Broken Rib Ranch, an 80-acre plot of land north of Charlevoix that has played and continues to play home to countless rescued wild horses. The couple also has a few of their own riding horses.

"It was a pretty peaceful spot, at least until we got there," Parsel said.

The story is largely centered around Diana's love for horses and how her life-long passion has impacted Parsel's life as a husband, fence builder and horse owner.

"The initial mission of our rescue was to get horses adopted into good homes, and it still is," Diana said.

Parsel found himself immersed in his writing as an outlet during times when the ranch was bustling with large numbers of rescued horses. Feeding, housing and ensuring the animals were healthy were daunting tasks at times.

Parsel worked comedy into the plot because "nobody wants to hear about someone else's grief," his at the time being keeping up with the responsibilities on the ranch.

"There's enough of that in the world right now; this book makes people laugh and to me, that's rewarding," Parsel said.

"Everyone's got a story to Little Traverse Conservancy reports 2013 highlights

Little Traverse Conservancy released a summary of the organization's 2013 accomplishments throughout its five-county service area.

In 2013, the nonprofit land trust passed a milestone, surpassing 50,000 acres of land protection in its 41 years of existence. This amounts to 78 square miles, which represents about 1.8 percent of the land in the organization's service area of roughly 4,400 square miles. The protected lands include more than 130 miles of lake, river, or stream shoreline. More than 1,100 acres of land were protected in 2013 alone.

"The volume of land protection is one way to measure the success of a land trust," said executive director Tom Bailey. "So is the number of members who support it, and the amount of money that is raised each year or for a particular project. Yet protecting land in its natural state and making it available for public use and enjoyment comes with many other intangibles that can't be statistically measured."

For example, the conservancy offers year-round education outings and community field trips. In 2013, more than 3,700 students participated in a conservancy-led nature outing and 551 people participated in seasonal community field trips led by staff and volunteers. Almost all of these programs are offered at no charge, and funds are available to help with transportation costs for classrooms. While the value of these field trips cannot easily be measured in numbers, it has long been the organization's belief that participation in nature outings inspires an interest in caring for the land in the future.

The conservancy also reports that 15 miles of new trail were added to their nature preserve trail systems. All told, the organization manages and maintains 90 miles of trails with the help of hundreds of volunteers.

In Charlevoix County, some of the organization's 2013 land highlights included the following:

— A five-acre addition to the Nick Adams Preserve on Pincherry Road brought the preserve size to 44 acres and added 350 feet of Horton Creek frontage.

— Also along Horton Creek, a 33-acre preserve with 3,200 feet of creek frontage was purchased with donated funds to become the Horton Creek Wetlands Preserve.

— A 1.5-acre addition to the Petruz Preserve on Beaver Island was added thanks to funding from the J.A. Woolam Foundation.

— A small addition was donated to the Six Mile Lake/St. Clair Lake Natural Area along the northern Chain of Lakes. Over many years, this protected region has grown to more than 192 acres and is a joint project of both Little Traverse Conservancy and the Grand Traverse Regional Land Conservancy based in Traverse City.

— Several work days were held at numerous preserves in Charlevoix County with new trails created at the Barney's Lake Preserve on Beaver Island as well as the Taylor-Horton Creek Preserve, Wissersawski Preserve, and Damton Family Preserve.

— The Conservancy partnered with Friends of the Boyne River to offer a series of Family Nature Discovery programs at the Boyne River Nature Area and The Hill Nature Preserve.

More than ever, the conservancy is engaging volunteers to help with their work. In 2013, nearly 550 volunteers assisted the organization with a variety of tasks ranging from office mailings to trail monitors. More than 1,500 volunteer hours were donated to LTC in 2013. Based on the national volunteer value estimation of $22.14/hour, the value of these hours is $33,210.

By the end of 2013, more than 3,200 people had downloaded the Conservancy's free nature preserve smart phone app. The app provides interactive maps and updated information about the conservancy's most user-friendly nature preserves and is an excellent way for residents and visitors

Charlevoix's first baby of 2014

RACHEL BROUGHAM
Northern Michigan Review

Julie Chellis of Ellsworth says her two children have a thing for holiday birthdays.

Her daughter, Kathryn Rose, who will be called Kate, was born at 5:28 a.m. Jan. 1 at Charlevoix Area Hospital. Kate weighed in at 6 pounds, 13 ounces and was 19 and a half inches long.

This is the second child for Julie and her husband, Travis. Their son, Ryder, will turn 2 on St. Patrick's Day.

"I guess I have a thing for holiday babies," Julie joked, from her room at Charlevoix Area Hospital on Thursday.

Julie added that Kate's early arrival was very much welcomed. She wasn't due until Feb. 2, however, Julie spent the last eight weeks of her pregnancy on bed rest after going into preterm labor.

The family plans to bring healthy Kate home today, Friday.

Plane crashes near Boyne City

Downstate executives killed in snowy conditions

STEVE ZUCKER
Northern Michigan Review

CHARLEVOIX — Charlevoix County Sheriff Don Schneider on Wednesday said that Michigan State Police Forensic Science Division has forensically confirmed the identities of the two men who were killed in a small plane crash near Boyne City on Monday.

In a news release issued at about 3 p.m. Wednesday, Schneider identified the victims as the pilot, Todd Glenn Lloyd, age 51, and his passenger, Christopher Albert Neumann, age 38, both of Birmingham.

The Associated Press previously reported that two Detroit-area business executives were identified Tuesday by their respective companies as being the victims in the crash.

Earlier in the week, Schneider had said it could take some time to confirm the men's identities because of the nature of the crash.

The two men died when the single engine plane they were in crashed shortly after takeoff from the Boyne City Municipal Airport shortly after 7 a.m.

Monday.

Investigators from the National Transportation Safety Board and the Federal Aviation Administration were expected to begin their work at the scene and inspecting the wreckage Thursday.

On Tuesday the Associated Press reported that Laura Nowacki, a spokeswoman for Madison Heights-based Chair Covers & Linens, said the linen rental firm's president, Lloyd, was killed in the crash.

Neumann was a Weber Shandwick public relations vice president, according to a representative from the international public relations company, the Associated Press reported.

The fixed-wing, single-engine Mooney M20R went down in a wooded area a short distance east of the Boyne City Municipal Airport. The plane was registered to Lloyd's company, according to the Federal Aviation Administration.

On its website, the suburban Detroit company honored Lloyd as a "leader, friend and hero."

"It is with great sadness that we share the passing of the owner and president, Todd Lloyd," the company later said in an emailed statement. "Both Chair Covers & Linens and Top That! Event are mourning the loss of our beloved leader. Todd was a generous and giving member of the community. He was involved in several special event industry led organizations and has left a dramatic impact on the lives he touched."

Neumann worked for Weber Shandwick for three years, spokeswoman Jennifer Norton said in a release.

"He produced superb work for Weber Shandwick and for our client and partner GM," Norton said. "We, like many others, are grieving at this tragic loss and we extend our heartfelt sympathies to his family, friends and colleagues."

Authorities believe the airplane crashed shortly after take off from the Boyne City airport as a snow storm gripped much of the Midwest.

Schneider said the winter storm prevented investigators from immediately getting flights to the area. At least one of the investigators planned to drive from Chicago. He also said local officials interviewed a few people who saw or heard the airplane around the time of the crash.

Investigators are still looking to speak with any other witnesses, and authorities ask anyone with information about the crash to call the Charlevoix County Sheriff's office at (231) 547-4461.

— The Associated Press contributed to this report.

Man injured in Saturday crash with snowmobile

CLARION — A Walloon Lake man was injured when the snowmobile he was operating collided with a car in the community of Clarion in Charlevoix County's Melrose Township Saturday.

Officials with the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office identified the injured man as Tracy Fortune, 39.

Fortune was transported to McLaren Northern Michigan hospital by Allied EMS, where he was treated for what authorities described as non-life-threatening injuries.

Deputies said the crash happened shortly before 8 p.m. at the intersection of U.S. 131 and Clarion Road as Fortune was riding his 1996 Ski-Doo Formula SS snowmobile on Clarion Road. Authorities said witnesses reported that Fortune failed to stop at the intersection and was struck by a vehicle driven by Daniel Gardner, 47, of Petoskey.

Gardner and his three passengers were not injured. The crash remains under investigation.

BOYNE CITY

East Jordan man to serve 2 years for sex crime

BRANDON HUBBARD
Northern Michigan Review

An East Jordan man will serve between 16 months and two years for sexual assault of a child between the ages of 13-16 years old.

Brian Paul Slohoda, 56, was sentenced Friday for fourth degree criminal sexual assault in the 33rd Circuit Court in Charlevoix County.

He will serve a maximum two-year prison term, with credit for two days served, and $198 in fines and costs.

Boyne City Police brought the charges against Slohoda after a social worker contacted law enforcement with reports he had taken naked photographs of the teen victim and touched her inappropriately in December 2012, according to court records.

Slohoda was originally charged with an additional charge that was dropped when the defendant agreed to plead guilty to the charge.

Who decides when to fly?

The crash of a small single-engine airplane shortly after takeoff from Boyne City Municipal Airport Monday in a winter storm that caused thousands of commercial flights to be canceled, may have left some people wondering who decides when the weather is too bad to fly at small airports.

The answer, according to Scott Woody, manager at the Charlevoix Municipal Airport is that at small "uncontrolled airports" such as Boyne City, Charlevoix, Harbor Springs and even Pellston Regional Airport, the decision about when the weather is too bad to fly is usually up to the pilot.

Woody said that smaller airports such as Boyne

City don't have air traffic controllers, but instead pilots must announce their intentions for take off and landing on a common radio frequency and follow pre-determined protocols.

He said airport officials do not typically close airports because of weather, unless there is a specific issue that makes the runway unsafe for take-offs and landings, such as a plane that has crashed or is disabled on the runway or a large amount of snow or some other debris is covering the runway.

The weather conditions recorded at the Charlevoix Municipal Airport (which is about 15 miles northwest of the Boyne City airport) at 6:55 a.m. Monday were light snow, visibility of 1.75 miles, and winds from the north at 18 mph, gusting to 31 mph. At 7:15 a.m. the same weather station recorded 1.25 miles of visibility, light snow and winds from the north at 21 mph, gusting to 29 mph.

Woody, who is also a pilot, noted that Monday's weather conditions were not good for flying, saying that as of 4 p.m., no flights — including those to or from Beaver Island had come or gone from Charlevoix. He said poor visibility and unpredictable wind gusts were among the top concerns for aviators in such conditions.

Woman bound over to Circuit Court in embezzlement case

BRANDON HUBBARD
Northern Michigan Review

A Charlevoix woman faces charges in 33rd Circuit Court for allegedly embezzling $141,000 from her employer.

Heather Webb, 33, waived her right to a preliminary examination for her case Wednesday in 90th District Court and was bound over to the 33rd Circuit Court in Charlevoix County. She is charged with one count of embezzling more than $100,000, a felony with a maximum 20 years in prison and/or $50,000 fine or three times the amount embezzled.

NuCore North Inc., Webb's former employer, contacted police following her resignation Sept. 30, when an owner allegedly found an unauthorized check for $2,100 to Webb with a forged owner's name.

Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office investigated the complaint and found alleged unauthorized checks dating back to 2006, and totaling $141,858. The amounts varied annually between $3,586 during 2006 to $31,186 in 2013. Webb later admitted to the detective she had been taking funds throughout her nine-year employment with the company.

Webb posted a $20,000 personal recognizance bond Nov. 14.

A scheduling conference has not yet been set to determine future court dates in the circuit court.

EAST JORDAN

Florida man charged with sexual assault

BRANDON HUBBARD
Northern Michigan Review

A 47-year-old Florida man will serve an additional 330 days in jail for sexually assaulting a woman in East Jordan.

Salvador Barragan, of West Palm Beach, Fla., was sentenced last week for fourth degree sexual assault in the 33rd Circuit Court, after a plea deal with the Charlevoix County Prosecutor's Office.

Barragan was facing a charge of criminal sexual conduct in the first degree, criminal sexual conduct in the third degree and criminal sexual conduct in the fourth degree. His charges were reduced when he voluntarily pleaded guilty to the lone fourth degree criminal sexual assault charge Nov. 22.

East Jordan police arrested Barragan for using force and coercion to acquire sexual contact at about 9 p.m. June 18, 2013, in the Highland Terrace Apartments in the city of East Jordan.

Doctors' Discovery Helps Diabetics

PHILADELPHIA — A team of doctors has found that a new formulation of exotic sounding herbs and spices gives new hope to diabetic patients.

The formula, called Cinnatrol™ promotes healthy blood sugar levels by effectively metabolizing glucose into energy. In a research study, all patients taking just one capsule of the liquid (one ounce) daily, dramatically lowered their blood sugar levels compared to a placebo group. Another scientific study found that an ingredient in Cinnatrol made insulin 20 times more capable converting blood sugar to energy.

While individual results vary, one patient in the first study lowered his blood sugar from 220-245 to the 100-130 range in only 28 days, despite being instructed not to change his dietary habits or physical activity. Some patients, under their doctors care, are able to reduce or eliminate their need for diabetic drugs. Scientists say that Cinnatrol helps diabetic drugs to work better. Get full study results at cinnatrol.com.

Cinnatrol is available without a prescription at pharmacies or call 877-581-1502. Now at:

An October child's perspective

It's definitely not a fry an egg on the sidewalk kind of day but I have a feeling this summer there will be plenty of opportunity for this project. After a bitterly cold winter a hot summer is certain to follow.

I remember the first time I read 20 below zero on an outside thermometer. Forty years ago I didn't realize mercury could drop so low. I tapped on the device thinking it must be broken; alas, it wasn't. My footsteps crossing the icy snow banks echoed sounds that were new to me. The theme song from "Dr. Zhivago" started playing through my head. This vista was my welcome mat to a Northern Michigan winter. A vast change from a bustling city that rarely slept, my new locale embraced a frolicking in the waves summer, frigid temperatures in the winter and fashionable flannel all year. Where had I landed with snow reaching the windows and bone chilling temps? My cohorts at work would say c'mon this is nothing compared to '02. I think they meant 1902, but surely they weren't that old.

Before my brain freezes, I am trying to remember how I dealt with those days gone by that frosted my eyelids. I have a vague memory of having to plug some type of gadget from our house to the truck so it would start. Similar to plugging in an electric car today but back then it looked pretty strange. This long orange utility cord would dangle in the Northern Michigan wind and hang occasionally against the side of the house. Again I would wonder did I make a wrong turn. Is this Iceland; nahhh we have daylight, not much hut some.

This will be the year that ski masks are going to return as the must have fashion statement. I mention this to remind readers that when you do see such an individual garbed in this way, please don't hand over your wallet. Then there are individuals like me whose doctor didn't add "Move to Palm Springs" on their latest prescription. Having Reynaud's disease this was my request but Blue Cross Blue Shield saw otherwise. I do remember back in the old days, during the seventies, when a friend acquired a hot tub for health reasons. The cost was covered by health insurance. I wish I could remember who that doctor was but today I'd be lucky if my insurance covered hand warmers.

Another memory that comes to mind was the morning I was in a hurry to get to work and the locks on my car doors were frozen. Cupping my hands and blowing warm air into the lock didn't work. Why not just pour boiling water on the lock? Not such a great idea; obviously Chemistry was not my strong suit. Carefully pouring water from a sizzling tea kettle made for an interesting art project as I watched paint change color and locks become little statuettes. I bitched a ride that morning with a friend.

Living in an old farmhouse found us stapling plastic on the windows and piling up the extra snow against the house to keep it warmer. Forty years later and living in town we still move snow closer to the house but double panes have replaced plastic. In those days, looking out the windows on the best sunny day had a kaleidoscope effect similar to something drug induced. I am only guessing on this. I also remember an increase in the population of our small community right around October. There are many forms of recreational activities that take place during the long winter months.

Today, reading books, watching television and viewing movies has filled our time as this arctic blast keeps us indoors more. I looked through the video library to see what I could watch. "Ice Age" popped up but I'll pass on this one because I'm in need of an Annette Funicello "Beach Blanket Bingo" fix to get me through today. Care to join me? After all I am one those children born in October and I believe I was born to weather the worst of snow storms.

LETTERS to the editor

More thoughts on Doc Lignell

Editor:

There is elegance in simplicity and Joseph Murdock's note last week to mark the retirement of Doctor John Lignell is just such an appreciation. I am prompted to add slightly more. This is to recognize, along with many others, and to mark the occasion and the man who has been in our midst, give or take a year or two here or there, for half a century. I write from afar and as only a summer resident but proud to be part of the great community. As a current college professor and former dean at Bard College in New York State I have spent full or part summers in Charlevoix since the early 1960s. I have come to know John Lignell over the years. I never tired of hearing the story of his coming to Charlevoix as a young doctor at the behest of Grate and Saltonstall as the third such in this place in the North of the State. But what shall one pick out of a life of service and caring and continuity that can add to the direct and special thank you of a longtime patient or two — me and Murdock who wrote last week. And the thousands of others who in need visited him along the shore of the big lake. How does one find the typical of Dr. John that indeed set aside both within and beyond our now blessedly expanded health service system that seems surely beyond his imagination and perhaps beyond that of all of us who reside in varying time in our favored place.

One knows of the usual doctor's office visit — a waiting room and then a series of private chambers with an in and out appearance of a doctor for a test or whatever done and spoken and a prescription written and a word of regimen to follow. This the now usual and such Lignell follows to its maximum. But then he has always added the instruction to come down the hall to his office/personal space where he inquires and wishes to know how life is going and to reveal slightly who is visiting him at home and this or that which has been left behind or not. It is in these moments when the 75,000 or so records in steel racks are just the records and the person is importantly cared for and mattered about.

There is an old sports type set of statements that come to mind as I write. It signifies the best. "The Shortstop's shortstop" or the "Linebacker's linebacker." Here the Doctor's doctor.

I will miss John Lignell whom I first knew as a young man and exactly this is as he remains as he moves to the next time of his life. And he remains not just as my doctor but my friend — and maybe as that and still my doctor.

Thanks for supporting domestic violence victims

Editor:

Thank you to area schools, businesses, organizations, service and faith-based groups and individual community members for your outpouring of support during the Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan's Safe Home Harvest Food and Supply Drive. Your generous donations are heart-warming and extremely beneficial.

Special thanks to Oleson's Food Store in Petoskey and their customers for helping raise needed funds for the Safe Home during an in-store donation program that resulted in more than $2,000, after a generous matching grant from the Olseon Foundation. We also thank the folks at Lite 96.3 for hosting a donation drive at Oleson's over the holidays.

The Safe Home is staffed and operated 24/7 by the WRCNM providing a secure, supportive and caring residence to survivors of domestic abuse and their children in Antrim, Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Emmet and Otsego counties. The WRCNM provides shelter residents with meals, housing, counseling and advocacy at no charge. Last year, the Safe Home provided more than 10,000 meals and 3,382 nights of refuge to 119 survivors and their children.

Donations of food, supplies and gifts will be put to good use by the many families staying at the Safe Home now and throughout the year.

On behalf of the families impacted by domestic abuse, we thank you. Please know you have helped make a difference in the lives of others in your community.

LOOKING BACK...

In the mid 1930s, realtor and soon-to-be-renowned builder in stone Earl Young, an accomplished amateur photographer, took his camera downtown early on a summer Sunday and recorded the entire west side of Bridge Street from the channel to the Antrim Street corner. The resulting series of 25 images is an invaluable record of a portion of Charlevoix as it looked almost three-quarters of a century ago. Mounted end to end on boards at the Haraha House Museum, the panorama stretches about 16 feet. At one time they were displayed on a basement wall of the Charlevoix State Bank. Here are shown, from left, Emrey's Men's Store (now Kilwin's), Jimmy Bracken's tavern in the old Charlevoix County Bank building (now the Townhouse Bar — the words "Beer on Draught" can be seen in the right window), and Don Campbell's Boot Shop (later Carey Shoes until just a few years ago, now the Man Cave).

Whitneys liquor license transferred to Beaver Island business owners

SHERI MCWHIRTER-O'DONNELL
Courier editor

Charlevoix city leaders agreed to transfer the liquor license once used by Whitneys to the new tenants at the downtown spot on Bridge Street.

D&E Hodgson Inc. is owned by Eric and Dana Hodgson, of Beaver Island, who intend to operate a new business called Quay Restaurant and Terrace Bar. Attorney David L. Campbell on Monday appeared before the Charlevoix City Council to request the formal license transfer.

Campbell said the Hodgsons already operate several businesses on the Lake Michigan island, including the Shamrock Restaurant and Pub and the Beachcomber. He also said they plan to open their planned Charlevoix business as a fine dining restaurant with possible entertainment on the top terrace.

Council member Shirley Gibson said that past businesses at 307 Bridge St. generated some public concern regarding excessive noise from the open air musical entertainment late at night on the terrace. But Campbell said he envisions solo guitar players and the like might possibly be booked for the venue in the future, rather than loud rock bands or raucous crowds.

"That's not the type of businesses they run on Beaver Island," Campbell said, adding nor do they intend to do so in Charlevoix.

Mayor Norman Carlson Jr. asked whether council members wanted to schedule a public hearing on the liquor license transfer, or simply approve the request. Council member Greg Stevens said he didn't see the need for a public hearing.

"They are going to serve food and they are going to serve drinks — there isn't anything different there," Stevens said.

The other council members agreed and unanimously voted Monday to approve the liquor license transfer to D&E Hodgson Inc.

Additionally, the city council set the coming public hearings at 7 p.m. Monday, Feb. 17, at city hall, for the city's proposed 2013-2014 budget amendment and 2014-2015 city budget. Copies of the proposed budget are available at city hall, 210 State St., Charlevoix.

A memorial service for Victor J. Gibbons will be at a later date. Memorial donations in honor of Victor J. Gibbons may be sent to Keep Charlevoix Beautiful at P.O. Box 1, Charlevoix, MI 49720.

Betty LoAnne Andersen Brown, 84, of Charlevoix, passed away on Friday, Dec. 27, 2013. Her three daughters were with her during her final days in Grand Rapids, where she had been living for the past few years.

A memorial service will be scheduled for the spring at Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix and she will be interred in the Brookside Cemetery in Charlevoix next to her parents and grandfather.

LoAnne was born in Peru, Ill., on Dec. 19, 1929, to Mamie (Sorenson) and Klaus Andersen. Klaus was a Coast Guard lighthouse keeper and the family moved to Charlevoix in 1941. LoAnne remained a resident of her beloved Charlevoix from that time on.

LoAnne graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1947, and immediately began working at the Charlevoix County State Bank. She started as a 17-year-old bookkeeper/teller and worked her way up to vice president at the time of her retirement in 1993. She was recognized as one of the Distinguished Women in Michigan Banking in 1989 and received the Citizen of the Year award from the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce in 1991. She served as the president and secretary of the Charlevoix Community Chest, as the secretary, treasurer and director of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce, and was instrumental in developing the Charlevoix County Industrial Fair beginning in 1984.

Her family meant everything to her. She is survived by her sister, Viola (Jim) Waller; her three daughters from her marriage to Donald Brown, Marcia (the late Stephen) Peterson of Grand Rapids; Terri (Jim) Peightal of Long Beach, Calif., and Andrea

The family would like to thank her friends in Charlevoix who watched over her in her later years, especially Aunt Viola, Karen Gulovich, and her neighbors, Bea and Ken Warner.

In lieu of flowers, the family suggests donations be made in her name to Save the Lake Michigan Lighthouses that meant so much to her: The Charlevoix Lighthouse and Buoy Depot, Ile Aux Galets (Skullagalee) and Sturgeon Bay Lighthouses. These were the places that were the memories of her childhood with her sister, Viola, parents, Mamie and Klaus Andersen, and grandfather, Christ Andersen.

Timothy Bryan LaBlance, 48

Timothy Bryan LaBlance, 48, of Charlevoix, died Friday, Jan. 3, 2014. He was born Dec. 1, 1965, in Petoskey to Thomas and Maureen (Brennan) LaBlance. He grew up in Charlevoix and graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1984. Tim earned a Bachelor of Science from Alma in 1988, and returned home to begin work at the First State Bank in Charlevoix with Lou Hollow. On June 18, 1988, he married Carrie Richardson in Charlevoix.

Tim loved sports with his kids, coaching basketball, and was one of the founders of Pop Warner Football in Charlevoix. He enjoyed supporting his daughter, Jacie and wife, Carrie with their horseback riding and barrel racing. He also loved hunting and spending time in deer camp.

Tim was a member of the Charlevoix Elks Club and the Antrim Dells Golf league.

He attended the Ellsworth Wesleyan Church.

Tim is survived by his wife, Carrie Sue of Charlevoix; sons, Nathan Rod of Highland, Keegan Thomas of Charlevoix; daughter, Jacie of Charlevoix; mother Maureen LaBlance of Charlevoix; sister, Colleen (Cliff) Clark of Chelsea; brothers, Patrick (Sandy) LaBlance of Belleville, Mark (Sarah) LaBlance of Chicago, Luke LaBlance of Charlevoix; mother and father-in-law, Linda and Rod Richardson of Norwood; brother-in-law, Corey Richardson. He was preceded in death by his father, Thomas, and brother-in-law, Casey Richardson.

A memorial service will be 3 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 9, at the Charlevoix Middle School gym. The Reverend Chris Wallace and the Reverend Michael Dennis will officiate.

Memorial contributions may be made to the LaBlance Family Memorial Fund, c/o Charlevoix State Bank, 111 State Street, Charlevoix, MI 49720.

Richard John Wimmer, 94, of Charlevoix, died Dec. 31, 2013.

He was born on June 23, 1919, in Manitowish, Wis., where he lived until 1967. He moved to Charlevoix, Mich., at that time and resided there until his retirement in 1984, from Medusa Portland Cement Company after 47 years of employment.

He and his wife of 65 years, Anita (Westphal) Wimmer, enjoyed their retirement years in the Upper Peninsula and Arizona until moving back to Charlevoix in 2009, to be closer to family. Anita preceded him in death in August of 2013.

Richard was a veteran of World War II, where he proudly served our country as an aircraft mechanic in the U.S. Army Air Corps. He enjoyed the outdoors, working on household projects and watching Green Bay Packer football.

He is survived by his children, Greg, Brian, Gerard (Virginia) and Neil (Gina) of Rochester, Minn.; Jane of Portland, Ore.; Ellen of East Jordan, Mich.; Christopher (Beckie) of Charlevoix, Mich.; Barry (Ylandra) of Tuba City, Ariz.; Carl of San Francisco, Calif.; Julie Scheier (Paul) of East Jordan, Mich.; Elizabeth Lundeen (Ken) of Columbia, Md., and Mary Souder (Scott) of Monument, Colo.

A rosary will be recited at 9:30 a.m. on Saturday, Jan. 4, at St. Mary's Catholic Church in Charlevoix, with a funeral Mass to follow at 10 a.m. The Rev. Matthew Wigton will officiate. A luncheon will be served after the Mass.

Donations in memory of Richard can be made to St. Mary's Catholic Church. Sign Richard's guestbook at www.winchesterfuneralhome.com online.

New trustees announced for foundation board

EAST JORDAN — The Charlevoix County Community Foundation recently appointed four new trustees — Bill Aten, Ann Hollis, Karen Johnson and Jack Poindexter.

Aten, of Boyne Falls, re-torts to begin a second term as a trustee. Now retired from his position as principal of Boyne Falls Schools, Aten is an active member of the community. He currently serves as president of the Challenge Mountain board of directors, while also serving on the board of Boyne Thunder and the Boyne Valley Trailway. In addition to his service on the foundation's board of trustees, Aten will also serve on the foundation's distribution committee, which oversees the organization's grant-making activities.

"I'm so pleased to return to the community foundation board," Aten said, adding, "it's such a good organization and I'm excited to work with the rest of the trustees to continue to support the foundation's good work."

Ann Hollis, with her husband, Joe, settled in Charlevoix several years ago after living in several other states. A retired educator who taught in California and Michigan, Hollis has been an avid community volunteer everywhere she has lived, serving on councils and vestries of several churches, while also sitting on educational advisory and hospital boards. In addition, she is currently an active member of the Charlevoix Garden Club.

"I'm very pleased to join such a worthwhile organization, and I'm looking forward to engaging with the other trustees to continue to advance the mission of the community foundation," she said.

Hollis will also serve on the foundation's distribution committee.

Johnson, of Beaver Island, has a strong background in business, having worked first in sales and marketing with PepsiCo and Kraft, before starting her own seasonal boutique, The Blue Pearl, on Beaver Island. A 2013 graduate of Leadership Charlevoix County, Johnson actively gives back to her community, serving as member of the board of education of the Beaver Island Community School, as well as a literacy volunteer and student mentor.

"I'm excited to be a part of the Charlevoix County Community Foundation," she said, adding, "and I'm proud to be a part of such a positive and healthy organization."

Like the other new trustees, Johnson will also be a member of the distribution committee.

Poindexter, of East Jordan, is the vice-president, CFO and corporate treasurer of EJ, formerly the East Jordan Iron Works. Like the other new trustees, Poindexter is immersed in volunteer service, having served previously on the boards of the Jordan Valley District Library and the East Jordan Learning Alliance. He is currently the secretary of the East Jordan Rotary Club, where he plays an active role in many service projects. Poindexter will join the other new trustees in grant-making activities on the distribution committee.

"The community foundation's growth over the years has been remarkable for a county of our size, and I'm looking forward to working with the other trustees as we continue to build the foundation's capacity moving forward," he said.

Don Spencer, chair of the foundation's board of trustees, is looking forward to working with the new trustees.

"Bill, Ann, Karen and Jack are enthusiastic and engaged community members, and the community foundation will benefit from the skills and experiences they bring to the group," he noted.

Valerie Snyder and Paul Witting of Charlevoix, and John Kempton and Barbara Malpass of East Jordan.

The Charlevoix County Community Foundation is a grassroots charitable organization made up of various funds, all established by local donors. The funds are held in permanent endowment, so they can continue to grow and generate income to enhance the quality of life in Charlevoix County, now and for generations to come.

Mallory

Grad gains top IT status

Andrew Mallory, graduate of Charlevoix High School, recently achieved the Cisco Certified Design Expert (CCDE) accreditation of which it is estimated there are fewer than 200 in the world. Mallory already holds the Cisco Certified Networking Expert (CCIE) in two disciplines: route switch and service provider. It is estimated that there are fewer than 4,000 in the world today.

One of the certifications is an industry standard of excellence, and very respected worldwide. To have a CCIE and to be a holder of a CCDE, it is estimated that there are less than a hundred in the world — easily putting Mallory in the top .01 percent of the IT networking industry globally.

Tech classes on tap

The Charlevoix Public Library will host a line-up of January technology classes. Excel Basics at 10:30 a.m. on Jan. 14 and 16 will provide a basic working knowledge of this spreadsheet program. iPad Basics at 10:30 a.m. Jan. 21 and 22 will teach the basic use of the iPad. I have a new eReader, Now What? at 10:30 a.m. Jan. 28, will give basic instruction on how to use eReaders and how to check out digital and audio books from the library. Participants should bring your eReader and/or iPad to each class.

The technology instructors at the library include Roger Gowell, who has mastered the method of teaching core skills and Scott Silberhorn, who has clocked hundreds of hours of teaching the use of Apple devices. Library builds up LEGO's programs in January

The Charlevoix Public Library will host two different LEGO opportunities this winter for elementary age kids.

The LEGO Simple Machines Series will be offered at 3:45 p.m. on six consecutive Thursdays beginning Jan. 16. This series will introduce elementary age students to key simple machine concepts while building teamwork and communication skills. Students will discover basic physical science concepts such as gears, levers, and wheels and learn through observation, reasoning, prediction and critical thinking. This series will be presented by LEGO master Vermeesch in the trustees conference room. Funding for the LEGO Simple Machines sets was provided through a grant from the Leo S. Gull-

The LEGO Club will once again be meeting in the youth activity center, the second Monday of each month, at 3:45 p.m. Kids will be able to utilize the library's giant LEGO table and collection of LEGOs, including new kits to help spark kids' creativity while building on the theme of the month. For information about this or other youth activities at the Charlevoix Library, 220 W. Clinton St., visit them at www.charlevoixlibrary.org online or call, (231) 237-7350.

Charlevoix County has organizational meeting

MORGAN SHERBURNE Northern Michigan Review

Charlevoix County commission chair Joel Evans is on the hook for the job one more year.

He was voted in as chair for the third time during the county board of commissioners' annual organizational meeting on Friday.

"I'm honored. It was a unanimous vote, and I do appreciate their confidence in me," said Evans.

Vice chair will again be Ron Reinhardt.

Commissioners Chris Stenseno, Reinhardt and [unclear] will be on the personnel and internal government committees while Rich Gillespie, George Lasater and Larry Sullivan are appointed to the public safety, judicial, building and grounds and renovation committees.

Christensen will act as liaison to the Charlevoix County Humane Society Board, the Northern Lakes Economic Alliance, the council of governments, the IT/GIS committee, the land bank committee and 9-1-1 Central Dispatch. Evans will be a liaison to Department of Human Services, North Country Community Mental Health, the housing oversight committee and the sanitary code board of appeals. Reinhardt will serve as liaison to the road commission committee, the planning commission, the Michigan Associated Counties, the Emmet-Charlevoix County Fair Board, the Health Department of Northwest Michigan, and the transit committee.

Gillespie will serve as liaison for the sanitary code board of appeals, the commission on aging, the transportation authority and the land bank committee.

Sullivan will serve as liaison for the sanitary code board of appeals, the Michigan Townships Association, the Health Department of Northwest Michigan, the Brownfield Redevelopment Authority.

Finally, Lasater will be liaison for Charlevoix County Veterans Affairs, Area Agency on Aging of Northwest Michigan, substance abuse, community corrections, Northwest Community Action Agency and the Emmet-Charlevoix County Fair Board.

Council seeks cold camel investigation

SHERI MCWHIRTER
O'DONNELL
Courier editor

At least two city leaders want an official investigation regarding the camels involved in the annual New Year's celebration. Temperatures proved sub-freezing and some local residents grew concerned for the creatures' safety.

City council member Jeff Porter said on Monday that camel rides in Bridge Park on New Year's Eve was a public display of the "height of animal cruelty" because of the cold temperatures in the single digits and a frigid windchill. He said he feels "uncomfortable" that no officials ordered the animals to be moved to a place with more natural protection from the elements, such as near the bandshell in East Park.

Porter even accused the animal control officer who came to inspect the camels in the park of suggesting that "these farm animals deserved to be there." He wants a city investigation and formally requested one during this week's public meeting.

Council member Greg Stevens also said that since this issue stirred community discussion, an investigation is in order.

"Were they truly OK?" Stevens asked. "I think it deserves an answer of some kind."

City officials hired Kirk Elya, owner of Whispering

Pines Mobile Zoo from Reed City, to participate in the event along Bridge Street. He said last week that it was a fun event and revelers seemed to enjoy the petting zoo and camel rides.

But with multiple concerned citizens calling authorities about the situation, Charlevoix County Animal Control supervisor Emily Reynolds said she went to the site to inspect the situation. She said the animals were "well-taken care of" and no citations were issued, nor a report written because she found no violations.

"There was adequate shelter there. There were buildings around, there are trees in that park," Reynolds said.

The camels didn't show any signs of hypothermia, she added.

"They weren't weaving and they were being walked around," Reynolds said.

Meanwhile, veterinarian Ryan Warnemuende of Jensen's Animal Hospital in Petoskey said the animals appeared to both have a thick hair coat and be comfortable in the environment after viewing photographs from the New Year's event. The well-known veterinary practice is known both for its small and large animal patients, including many area horses.

Warnemuende this week researched camels like those brought to Charlevoix and reported that with the many different breeds of camels — 97 dromedary breeds, in fact — those in question are among those well-adapted to the cold temperatures of Northern Michigan.

"As long as they have adequate nutrition and shelter if exposed to the elements," he said. "Each individual animal is going to have its own unique range of temperatures that are tolerable. The average temp that I found published for a low is -22 to -40 degrees Fahrenheit."

Camels are naturally distributed across the globe in the hot arid deserts of Africa and the Middle East, mostly in Somalia and Sudan, as well as the cold desert regions of Iran, Afghanistan, Pakistan, Kazakhstan, Mongolia and China, according to online information provided by the San Diego Zoo. That means camels are evolved to handle both hot and cold climates.

Elya said last week that his camels tolerated the weather conditions just fine.

"I wish people would ask questions and learn," he previously said. "Just like horses, cattle and other animals, they can adjust to the temperatures."

More information about Whispering Pines Mobile Zoo can be found at www.whisperingpinesmobilezoo.com online.

City manager Roh Straebel on Monday told the Charlevoix City Council he would look into the incident and report back at a later meeting.

UPDATE

According to a Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office news release issued on Dec. 27, family members took William Grice to Charlevoix Area Hospital on Dec. 22, about eight hours after an incident had taken place at his home in the early hours that morning. Earlier reports had indicated there may have been an altercation with a family member, police said.

Grice was later transferred to McLaren Northern Michigan hospital in Petoskey where he underwent emergency surgery. Grice died on Dec. 24 as the results of his injuries. He was further transported to Grand Rapids for a forensic exam. Police said alcohol is believed to have been a contributing factor in the incident.

Telgenhof said Wednesday that the autopsy report is the main piece of information he is awaiting before deciding if he will authorize charges stemming from Grice's death. He said he had received no word on when the autopsy report might be complete.

Five tips for finding a suitable retirement home

1. Decide on your budget and your care needs. Before you start looking for a retirement home, you need to know how much you can afford to pay and what kind of care you need. This will help you narrow down your choices.

2. Visit a lot of homes. Don't just visit one or two. Visit as many as you can. This will give you a better idea of what is available and what you like.

3. Ask questions. Don't be afraid to ask questions. The staff should be able to answer them. If they can't, that's a red flag.

4. Talk to the residents. This is a great way to get the inside story. Ask them about the food, the staff, and the overall atmosphere.

5. Spend some time there. If you can, spend a few days in the home. This will give you a better idea of what it's like to live there.

log Jarema were being marked as attorney grievance hills, but actually should have been attributed to the larger lawsuit.

Charlevoix County's liability insurers, Darwin Select Insurance Company, refunded $68,518.44 to Charlevoix County on Dec. 16.

"They were labeling everything as a grievance, and they weren't related to the grievance," said Browe.

"The total cost back to Charlevoix: $108,447 out of $180,958.

Charlevoix County's insurance agent is Charlevoix Agency, which could not comment on its client's policy.

Fanara had filed a grievance, separate from the lawsuit, against Jarema with the Michigan Attorney Grievance Commission for allegedly intentionally failing to file a brief with the Michigan Court of Appeals that dealt with defense attorney payments during the Charles Merfman murder case. Former commissioner Shirlene Tripp also filed a grievance, alleging abuse of his office staff and lying to elected officials.

"The county had already hit its deductible on the larger lawsuits," said Browe.

"I just was really pleased," said Browe. "I'm 100 percent certain we have paid what we needed to pay, and not any more."

SULLIVAN

"pull this junk."

"The people did vote. They voted him in," Doherty said. "Put him in office where he belongs. You don't have the right to override the people."

Former city council member Gabe Campbell also asked why not wait until the attorney general's opinion comes in, but both Graham and city manager Roh Straebel encouraged action to formally protect the city from any legal fallout.

"This could be an ongoing battle if you don't act on this tonight," Straebel warned.

Stevens underscored how the resolution the city council approved requires city leaders to return to reconsider the situation. Also, Graham said city council members had two choices — to either take Sullivan at his word that he will respect the expected state legal opinion, or approve the legal document that provides the city a legal mechanism to protect the city — both of which would ultimately achieve the same goal.

The council will meet again at 7 p.m. Monday, Jan. 6, at Charlevoix City Hall, 210 State St. On the agenda for that meeting is a liquor license transfer for 307 Bridge St., the Whitney's location.

EXPANSION

The rest of the marina's existing 70 slips range in size from 28 to 44 feet. Also, the end of Dock A can accommodate a 115-foot vessel, while the end of Dock B can accommodate a 96-foot vessel.

The proposed expansion could mean even more.

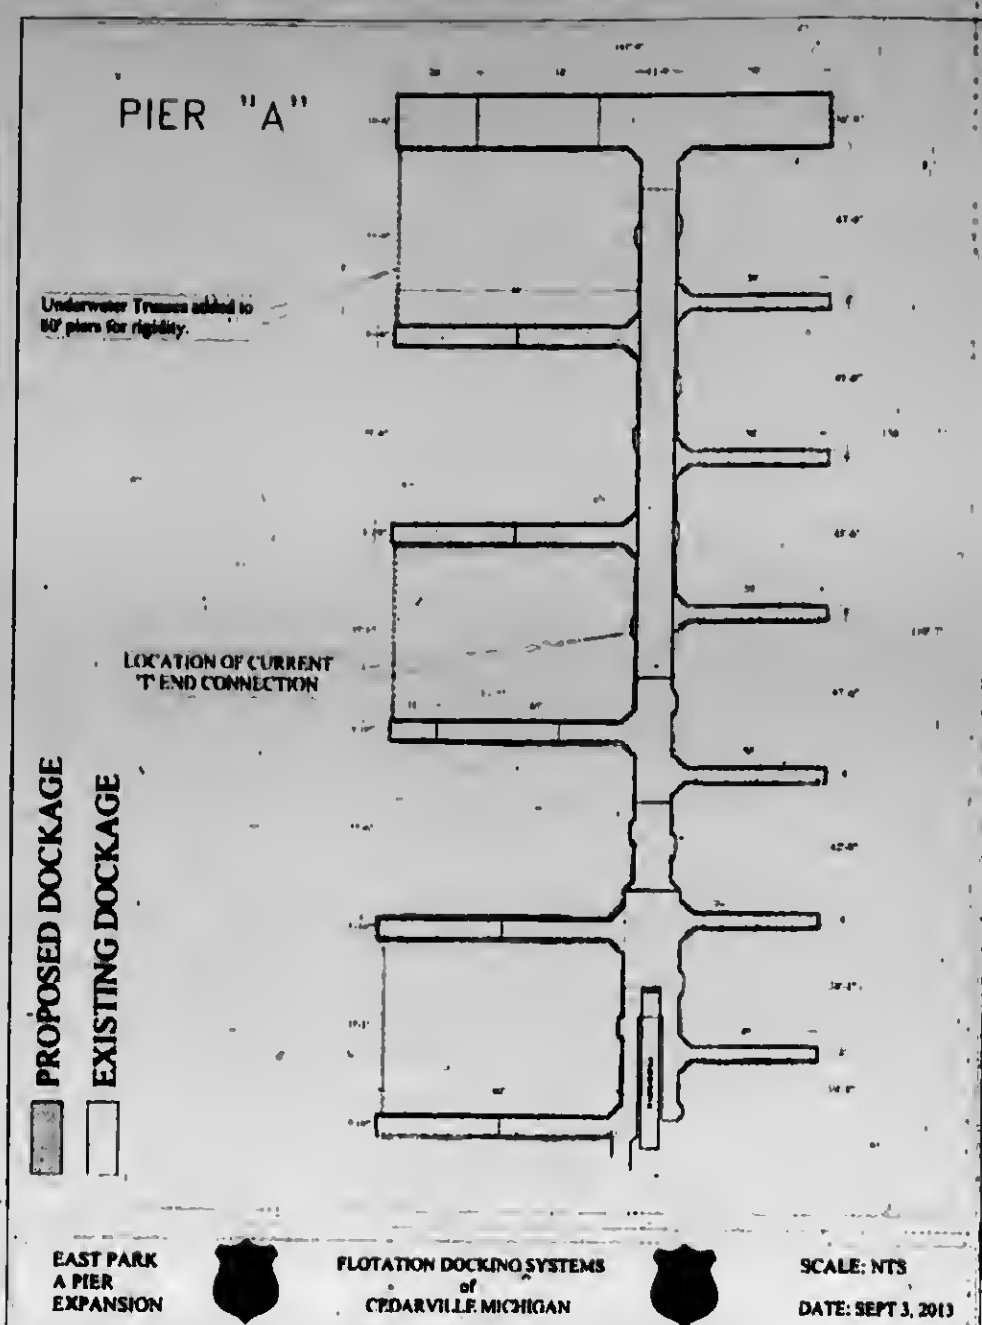

City manager Roh Straebel said that in preliminary discussions, officials with the Michigan Waterways Commission proved receptive to the marina expansion. However, he said the biggest hurdle the city might face in making the expansion a reality is coming up with a way to pay for the nearly $400,000 estimated price tag.

Straebel said the city is not in a position to pay for the improvements up front or to borrow the money to pay for it. He suggested one option that might be available is to pre-lease the new slips for four or five years, which likely would raise enough capital to pay for the project.

Council members sent the issue to the planning commission for further consideration.

Rayders get fresh snow and ski coaches

DREW KOCHANNY
Northern Michigan Review

If there's two people who can appreciate the 66-plus inches of snow Northern Michigan has accumulated so far this winter, it's Erik Lundteigen and Mike Washburne.

And with good reason. Both Lundteigen and Washburne are stepping into their first seasons of coaching the Petoskey and Charlevoix-East Jordan High School ski teams, respectively.

Lundteigen, who previously coached the varsity Charlevoix team for a 12 year span into the early 90s and was most recently the Charlevoix Middle School coach, fills the Petoskey vacancy left by Travis Hill.

Hill carried on and added to the illustrious history of the Petoskey ski program, which has captured 27 combined girls' and boys' state championships, including a dual state title last year.

The pressure to follow in Hill's and previous coach, Brewster McVicker's footsteps, isn't felt by Lundteigen, though.

"I don't feel any," he said. "I don't go down the hill. You put kids into position for them to be successful. That's what it's all about."

Having more than 60 inches of snow by the first of the year certainly helps to put the team in the right position to open the season, as well.

"The weather has been fantastic and the hills are in great shape," Lundteigen said. "We've had some good practices leading up to our invite (Jan. 8). It never seems like you've had enough, but we're snow, compared to last year's 17 inches at this point, has been a huge help for Washburne and his team, who have been in full practice for two weeks already this season, with the help of Bo Boss at Mount McSaub.

"We put a big kudos out to Mount McSaub here in Charlevoix for letting us train on both front and back, and it was the earliest they've ever been opened," Washburne said.

"That's been really, really, big for us. I know last year (Charlevoix) didn't even have enough snow to get out and train for their first meet. It's been fun, it's been a lot of fun."

Helping Washburne along in the early going of his first coaching season has been Lundteigen, as the two have been friends over the years.

"I've known Erik for quite a few years, mainly through Mount McSaub," he said. "He taught his own kids out there and he was the Middle School coach for Charlevoix last year."

As for the two taking over with fresh coaching starts in the same season, Washburne didn't think that was the funniest part.

"What's weird is, I'm a graduate of Petoskey and he's a graduate of Charlevoix and I'm doing Charlevoix and he's doing Petoskey. That part is kind of funny."

Either way, picking up hardware as a team comes February is still the number one goal for both programs, something Petoskey has done well over the recent years and what Charlevoix looks to get back to.

going down the right road."

The Northmen were expected to get under way on Wednesday, Jan. 8, in the annual Petoskey-Harbor Ski Invitational at Boyne Highlands.

An added perk to Lundteigen taking the position at Petoskey has been the ability to coach his sons, Gunnar and Garrett Lundteigen, a senior and sophomore, respectively.

Both return as All-State members, along with Trevor Kingsbury.

"It's been great," he said. "Gunnar, he was first team All-State all three years before this and was also individual champ in slalom last year. Garrett, was a freshman last year, he was a first team All-State member last year as well. Then there's Trevor Kingsbury, he was a second team All-State member last year."

In Charlevoix, Washburne steps into his first ever varsity coaching position, having previously taught lessons at Charlevoix's Mount McSaub for 19 years and 11 previous years at Nub's Nob, now entering his 12th year.

"We're excited to get going this year. It's been good so far," said Washburne. "I don't have huge numbers, but what we're doing is we're going to try to build a team and look into the future of building this team, make it into something that can compete with some of the other schools that do quite well in this area."

Charlevoix-E.J.

First-year coach Mike Washburne inherits a Charlevoix-East Jordan team combined with 15 total athletes.

"It's totally something different," Washburne said as he replaces longtime coach Sue Miller. "This year is building year and we want to build a team. We want to have the middle school team there with us at practice so they can see that the high school kids are doing."

Having been at Mount McSaub for close to 20 seasons and as a ski instructor at Nub's Nob for the past 12 years, Washburne gives a lot of credit to Bo Boss at Mount McSaub in helping the team prepare for this season.

"I think my biggest thing this year and major kudos goes out to Bo Boss at Mount McSaub," Washburne said. "Having a facility like that to practice has been a major help. (Former Petoskey ski coach) Brewster McVicker told me we have a huge advantage over other teams to be on a rope tow."

"To be able to run gates straight for two hours and to build that upper body strength is huge."

A total of skiers comprise the Charlevoix-East Jordan girls team, as senior Cora Taylor returns for her third season. Sophomore Kylee Scholten, who raced in several CUSSA events in middle school, is back in ski racing, while sophomore Sarah Rockafellow is also expected to be a top three skier.

The rest of the girls lineup is comprised of foreign exchange students including four from Germany, one from Switzerland and one from Japan.

On the boys side, senior Brandon Cardwell returns after narrowly missing out on an individual state qualifying berth in GS, while freshman Brad Klinger makes his varsity debut as will Matt Good.

Good, however, will miss some time because of a broken arm.

Another sophomore, Ben Boss, will make his varsity debut along with senior Luke Klinger. The boys team also has a foreign exchange student in Guillermo Yout.

"It will be a building year and with Matt (Good) going down, that hurt the boys team a bit, but the goal is to get a few people to qualify for the state meet," Washburne said.

Pete Scholten, who also coaches the middle school program, will be Washburne's assistant.

Boyne City

Veteran Boyne City High School ski coach Bob Simpson likes the make up of both his teams this winter.

"We have 20-some kids overall and it's a good mix," Simpson said.

On the boys side, senior Corey Bohnet returns to the lineup after qualifying as an individual for the Division II state meet last season as a junior in GS, where he placed 32nd.

Also back for the Ramblers are juniors Kory Skop, Max Cuper and JohnPaul Cooper-smith, along with sophomore Devin Baker. Senior Chris Moore will be making his varsity debut, while other newcomers include sophomore R.J. Yardley and freshman Griffin Powers.

"We'll do fine this year," Simpson said of his boys team. "We have some really, really good kids."

For the Rambler girls, senior Emilee Evans returns to the lineup and is the lone senior skier, while juniors Paige Hombeck and Lauren Richards return along with sophomore Abby Bohnet. Bohnet finished a team-best 13th in slalom last season in the regional meet to lead the team.

Sophomore Mary Anderson is also returning, while other underclassmen include sophomore Kelly Moran and freshmen Grace Ellwanger and, Alyse Whittet.

"The girls will do good," Simpson said. "There's some good skiers there and they will do fine."

STEVE FOLEY
Northern Michigan Review

HARBOR SPRINGS — Those watching Charlevoix girls' basketball junior Madeline Boss on the court this season have been seeing a lot of double.

As in her production of course, as Boss recorded her third double-double of the young season on Wednesday, in a 49-46 Lake Michigan Conference win for the Rayders over Harbor Springs.

Boss scored 21 points and grabbed 12 rebounds to go along with four steals on the night for the Rayders, now 3-2 overall, 1-1 in league play.

Charlevoix led after the first quarter 11-7, had a one-point, 26-25 lead at the half and again edged out the Rams 38-37 after the end of the third quarter.

"Harbor played a high intensity defense and we struggled at times but our players executed when it mattered most," Charlevoix coach Liz Shaw said. "We just had little victories throughout the game that paid off for us in the end."

"I thought we did a good job when it mattered in the end."

Along with Boss, Kelsey Engstrom scored seven points, Gabby Gray scored six points with four assists and three steals and Ellie Way had four assists.

For Harbor Springs, 1-6, 0-4, Shallon Grawey led with 14 points, while Perry Bower and Morgan Reeves each had 11 points.

Harbor Springs won the JV game, 60-27, over Charlevoix.

NOTICE OF Mortgage Foreclosure Sale THIS FIRM IS A DEBT COLLECTOR ATTEMPTING TO COLLECT A DEBT. ANY INFORMATION WE OBTAIN WILL BE USED FOR THAT PURPOSE. PLEASE CONTACT OUR OFFICE AT THE NUMBER BELOW IF YOU ARE IN ACTIVE MILITARY DUTY.

ATTN PURCHASERS: This sale may be rescinded by the foreclosing mortgagee. In that event, your damages, if any, shall be limited solely to the return of the bid amount tendered at sale, plus interest.

MORTGAGE SALE: Default has been made in the conditions of a mortgage made by Barbara Ann Bowden, unmarried woman, original mortgagor(s), to Mortgage Electronic Registration Systems, Inc., as nominee for The Huntington National Bank, Mortgagee, dated March 22, 2010, and recorded on March 26, 2010 in Liber 916 on Page 147, and assigned by said Mortgagee to The Huntington National Bank as assignee as documented by an assignment, in Charlevoix county records, Michigan, on which mortgage there is claimed to be due at the date hereof the sum of One Hundred Thirty Thousand One Hundred Ninety-Six and 32/100 Dollars ($130,196.32).

Under the power of sale contained in said mortgage and the statute in such case made and provided, notice is hereby given that said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises, or some part of them, at public venue, at the place of holding the circuit court within Charlevoix County, at 11:00 AM, on January 17, 2014. Said premises are situated in City of East Jordan, Charlevoix County, Michigan, and are described as: Lot 3 and 4, Block C of Stone's Addition to the Village of South Lake, now City of East Jordan, and all of that part of Lots 5 and 6, Block C, Stone's Addition to the Village of South Lake, now City of East Jordan, according to the plat thereof recorded 9/25/1982 in Liber 1 of Plats, Page 46, Charlevoix Register of Deeds described as follows:

Commencing at the Southwest corner of Lot 6; thence North 120 feet along the Eastern boundary of Josephine Street; thence East 72 feet; thence South 120 feet to the Northern boundary of West Division Street; thence West 72 feet to the point of beginning.

The redemption period shall be 6 months from the date of such sale, unless determined abandoned in accordance with MCLA 600.3241a, in which case the redemption period shall be 30 days from the date of such sale. If the property is sold at foreclosure sale under Chapter 32 of the Revised Judicature Act of 1961, pursuant to MCL 600.3278 the borrower will be held responsible to the person who buys the property at the mortgage foreclosure sale or to the mortgage holder for damaging the property during the redemption period.

Marina expansion idea to be re-tooled

SHERI MCWHIRTER O'DONNELL
Courier editor

"It becomes more a parking lot than a marina."

— Pat Duffy,
Charlevoix resident

Charlevoix city planning commissioners on Wednesday asked city staffers to come up with more design options before they further consider the proposal to expand the marina in Round Lake.

City planner Mike Spencer described the initial concept as born from the popular city marina's growing demand in recent years for slip spaces to fit larger boats and yachts, potential customers that have been turned away in past summers. The plan would extend the main dock by an additional 150 feet, while the existing dock already stretches 170 feet from the breakwall.

The number of slips would be reconfigured to boost the number of 80-foot slips from three to 10, plus the number of 50-foot slips from five to 11. Other slip sizes would also be adjusted, if the marina expansion is pursued.

The docks would remain open to the public, said harbormaster Hal Evans, and the planned expansion wouldn't impede Beaver Island ferries nor Venetian Festival fireworks, though fireworks trajectory and the boat parade route may need to be altered. Increased marina revenues could pull up to a bonus $100,000 in the first year and state officials have in the past estimated that each boater spends $250 a day while docked in boating communities, he said.

But city officials said they don't want to spend more time on this effort if the public won't support such a move, especially since the rough estimate for the expansion price tag is between $300,000-$400,000.

"We don't want to pursue a project unless we know it has public support," Spencer said.

City planning commissioners agreed by consensus that they want to Plant tour, public hearing on tap

SHERI MCWHIRTER O'DONNELL

Charlevoix's wastewater treatment plant is expected to cost taxpayers about $11 million in coming years thanks to a new state discharge permit.

Michigan state officials issued the new permit in April 2011 and Charlevoix's wastewater treatment plant cannot currently meet the state's standard for wastewater discharge. City officials said the facility now approaches the end of its useful life and significant upgrades are required.

"It's all regulated, so we don't have an option," said Steve Teunis, from the city's wastewater treatment plant.

In fact, the project is the big ticket item in the coming 2014-2015 city budget for Charlevoix. And big ticket items come with big ticket price tags.

City officials propose significantly increasing sewer rates — by 71 percent during the next five years — to pay for the required plant improvements. Officials will host a public hearing about the needed plant overhaul and proposed increased sewer rates at 7 p.m. Monday, Jan. 20, at city hall, 210 State St., Charlevoix. That will come after a one-hour tour at 3 p.m. of the wastewater treatment plant at 15116 Lake Shore Drive, Charlevoix.

"We hope residents will take this opportunity to tour the city's wastewater treatment plant and learn more about a complex and fascinating treatment process that most of us take for granted. It is important to educate our residents about some of the challenges in working with a 40-year old plant and better describe how the city will comply with future state ammonia discharge limits," said Rob Straebel, city manager.

The plant was constructed in 1972 and some of its equipment must be modernized and upgraded to meet design and safety standards, but the biggest issue driving the project is regulation changes from the Department of Environmental Quality on what the city can discharge from the plant.

Under the new regulations, the city will have to limit the amount of ammonia it releases beginning Oct. 1 this year. Even more restrictive limits will be in place by December 2015.

"It is important to educate our residents about some of the challenges in working with a 40-year old plant..."

— Rob Straebel,
city manager

Further complicating the matter is the Northern Michigan climate.

The plant uses water from Lake Michigan to treat wastewater. During the winter, the water is too cold for the biological mechanisms that break down ammonia to work.

High ammonia levels can be harmful to aquatic plants and animals.

The city already received two grants totalling $876,000 that covered about 90 percent of the engineering costs to date, but the big bill will be for the project itself. The idea with this state-mandated overhaul is to provide for the facility's needs for the next two decades, officials said.

Local COLOR*It's official: Camp is township park*STAFF REPORT

The former Camp Sea-Gull property along the north shore of Lake Charlevoix officially became a Hayes Township park on the morning of Jan. 6. With 1,400 feet of lake frontage, the 20-acre site offers public access to the lake for numerous recreational opportunities, with a number of the camp's facilities slated for public use and year-round enjoyment.

While the township plans to open the property to the public immediately for things such as Lake Charlevoix access for ice fishing, many of the steps required to convert the property from a private camp to a public park will take time.

"Some of the buildings need to be removed, and some will be renovated for public use," said township clerk Marlene Golovich. "We'll be enlisting the help of community volunteers for some of this work, but we'll also be applying for development funds in order to develop public recreation facilities."

Township supervisor Ethel Knepp said that the manager's residence on the property will be retained, and that the township plans to employ an on-site manager.

"We might not be able to make that happen right away," Knepp said, "but it's an important part of our long-term plan."

Hayes Township officials received a lot of help from the late Emmet County Controller Lyn Johnson and parks and recreation director Laurie Gaetano in planning for the acquisition and development of the park. Emmet County has a long and successful track record of protecting and enhancing recreational properties, including Camp Pet-O-

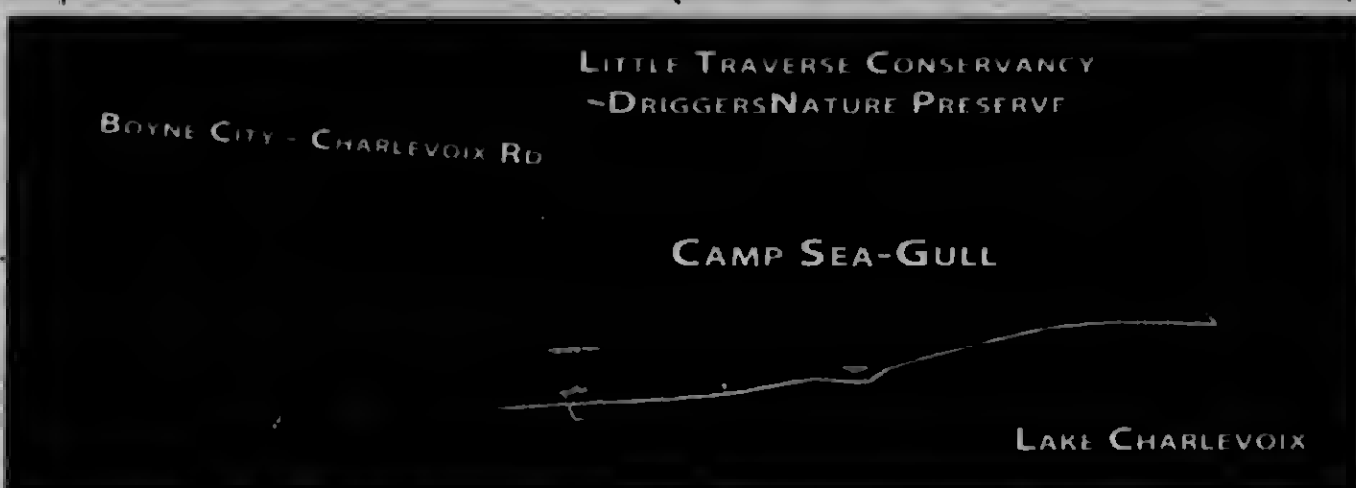

Se-Ga on the shore of Pickerel Lake.

"When Little Traverse Conservancy director Tom Bailey introduced us to the Emmet County staff, it was like 'off to the races' after that. It really was," said Golovich. "It was so positive. They kept telling us, 'You can do this, you can do this.'"

With a price tag of $4.2 million, the project was daunting, but together, the group came up with a plan.

In 2012, Hayes Township Parks Committee member Anne Kantola worked with Golovich and the Conservancy's Ty Ratliff to submit a grant request to the Michigan Natural Resources Trust Fund. Funded by revenues from oil, gas and minerals on state-owned land, the trust fund makes grants to help local units of government acquire land for public recreation and conservation. In December 2013, the Camp Sea-Gull project was recommended for funding and a $3.75 million grant from the trust fund. The 25-percent local match requirement was met with $500,000 from the township's recreation fund and some $672,000 raised in a public fund raising campaign with help from the conservancy. More than 260 individuals, families and foundations contributed toward the project.

"The Camp Sea-Gull land acquisition is a great example of the type of project the Michigan Natural Resources Trust Fund makes possible," said Steve DeBrabander, manager of Recreation Grants for the DNR. "This project will provide the public with additional high quality access to Lake Charlevoix for swimming, boating and other outdoor recreation uses. The Department of Natural Resources is proud to be a partner in this project."

The acquisition of Camp Sea-Gull fulfills a long term dream of Hayes Township.

"Through a 2008 township survey, our residents identified the need for more lake access as a high priority," Knepp said.

Since that survey, township officials have been actively looking for property to acquire, with a special interest in a place to launch small boats. When the Camp Sea-Gull property came on the market, the township held a series of public hearings and determined that there was widespread support for acquisition of the site. One of the advantages is that the property is just across the Boyne City-Charlevoix Road from the 75-acre Nathan "Barry" Driggers Preserve which was acquired through a 2007 grassroots fund raising campaign.

"The people of Hayes Township have proven over and over again that they want to establish a healthy balance between land development and land protection," said conservancy executive director Bailey. "This new public park will be a tremendous resource for people who live in the Township and those who come here to visit."

Bailey also noted that the previous owners of the Camp Sea-Gull property, the Schulman family, deserve a lot of credit for sticking with the partners through what ended up being a three-year process. "We wouldn't have the property to consider as a park site if the Schulmans had not provided good stewardship for the land," he said, "and the sale would not have been possible without their patience." "Camp Sea-Gull has been part of the Schulman family since 1955, offering families and children the opportunity to experience our beautiful northern Michigan outdoors," said a representative from the Schulman family. "That legacy can now continue indefinitely under the township's stewardship."

Blood donations needed after stormy January

SHERI MCWHIRTER-O'DONNELL
Courier editor

Severe winter weather in recent weeks resulted in shortfalls in available blood and platelets for patients across the Great Lakes region.

American Red Cross officials cancelled nearly 30 blood drive events in the region since Jan. 2 because of inclement — or even dangerous — weather conditions. That resulted in a shortfall of nearly 8,400 blood and platelet donations, according to the nonprofit.

Red Cross officials said there is an urgent need for blood donors with types O, A negative and B negative in the days and weeks ahead to offset the shortfall.

"It's the blood products already on the shelves that help save lives when severe weather hits," said Jim Flickema, chief executive officer for the agency's Great Lakes Blood Services Region. "Thanks to generous Red Cross blood and platelet donors, blood products were available for patients who still needed transfusions despite the weather."

Karen and Mike Moon, of Charlevoix, both recently donated at a blood drive at Community Reformed Church of Charlevoix, at the corner U.S. 31 and Meech Street. They said they are repeat donors who give when they can, while they gobbled up brownie ice cream sundaes volunteers served them as an after-donation snack.

Lying nearby on a donation cot was Zach Scharenbroch, also of Charlevoix, who patiently waited while nurse Freda Holley, of Afton, wrapped up his donation by filling vials for various tests.

"I like to help out this way," Scharenbroch said. "It never hurts anything."

Flickema said these repeat donors are invaluable, and now the Red Cross needs even more help.

"We invite those previously frozen out from giving blood or platelets to come in soon," he said.

Platelets, a key clotting component of blood often needed by cancer patients, must be transfused within five days of donation, so donations are constantly needed. Red blood cells, the oxygen carrying component of blood, are the most widely transfused blood product and must be transfused within 42 days.

Potential donors can make an appointment at www.redcrossblood.org online or call (800) 733-2767. A blood donor card or driver's license, or two other forms of identification are required at blood donation check-in. Donors who are at least 17 years old, weigh 110 pounds and are generally in good health may be eligible to donate blood.

Upcoming blood drives planned across the region include those from: 11 a.m.-4:45 p.m. Friday, Jan. 17, at the American Red Cross, 2350 Mitchell Park Drive, Petoskey; 9:30 a.m.-3:15 p.m. Tuesday, Jan. 21, Eagles Lodge; 106 River St., Boyne City; 10 a.m.-3:45 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 23, Concord Academy Boyne; 00401 E. Dietz Road, Boyne City; 8:30 a.m.-2:15 p.m. Friday, Jan. 24, Boyne City High School, 1035 Boyne Ave., Boyne City; noon-5:45 p.m. Monday, Jan. 27, Central Lake High School, 8190 W. State, Central Lake; and, 1-6:45 p.m. Tuesday, Jan. 28, Petoskey Middle School, 801 Northmen Drive, Petoskey.

Radon found in local home

Owner encourages testing

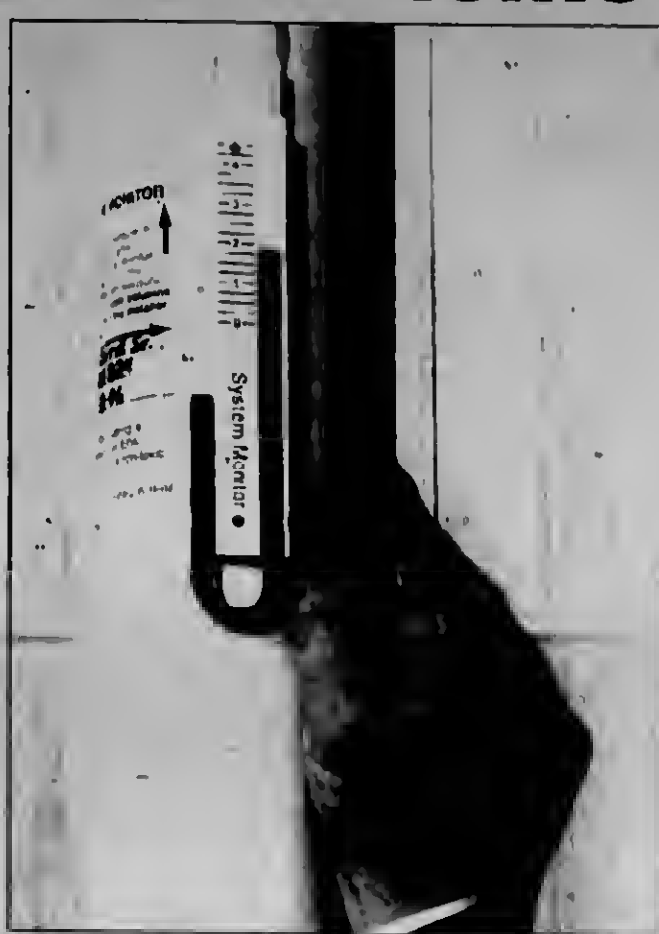

Winter in Northern Michigan means homes are closed up tight — and that's the best possible time to test your home for cancer-causing radon.

More than 21,000 Americans are killed each year by radon-induced lung cancer, says the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency designating January as Radon Action Month.

Radon is detected often in homes throughout Northern Michigan. It is a radioactive gas that comes from decaying uranium and uranium occurring naturally in the earth. It is the second leading cause of lung cancer overall, and is the leading cause of lung cancer among non-smokers. Radon is odorless and invisible, so the only way to know if your home has a problem is to test for it. Radon levels can vary greatly from one home to the next. Complete do-it-yourself test kits are available for $15 through the Health Department of Northwest Michigan.

Bill Dietrich has been a real estate professional in Northwest Michigan for more than 40 years, working with home buyers, sellers and inspectors every day. He finally decided to test his own home in Charlevoix for the presence of radon. To his surprise, he discovered radon levels in his home exceeding the EPA's recommended action level.

"My wife and I were very concerned about the results,

EAST JORDAN

Four injured in one-vehicle crash Saturday

Four Northern Michigan residents were injured in a one-vehicle traffic crash in Charlevoix County's South Arm Township Saturday.

Charlevoix County Sheriff's office officials identified the injured as the driver, Lois Nachezel, 44, of Ellsworth; and her three passengers, Sara Nachezel, 18, Dana Nachezel, 15, and William Lafferty, 17, of East Jordan. All four were transported to Charlevoix Area Hospital by East Jordan Ambulance where they were treated for their injuries and released.

Deputies said the crash happened at about 11:30 a.m. on Ellsworth Road near Ranney Road. Authorities said Nachezel was driving east on Ellsworth Road when she lost control of the 2013 F-150 pickup she was driving on the icy roadway and the vehicle slid over an embankment and into a ditch.

The East Jordan Fire Department also assisted at the scene. Officials said the road was closed for a short period of time while crews removed the vehicle from the steep embankment.

Deputies believe weather was a factor in the crash, but the crash remains under investigation.

Central Lake man dies in accident

SHERI MCWHIRTER-D'ONNELL
Courier Editor

Authorities said weather likely is to blame for a fatal snowmobile accident near East Jordan in northern Antrim County.

Officials reported a witness on Jan. 7 found the body of 50-year-old Nick Allen Potter, of Central Lake, pinned under a snowmobile in a parking lot at Echn Township Hall in Antrim County, about 11 miles south of East Jordan.

Cause of death was listed as traumatic asphyxia.

Andrea Albert, a conservation officer with the Michigan Department of Natural Resources, said drifting snow likely caused the accident.

Albert said it appeared Potter failed to maneuver around a snow bank. Witnesses reported poor visibility around the time Potter was last seen.

Potter was known as a motorcycle and snowmobile enthusiast and worked for many years at East Jordan Iron Works, according to obituary information. Funeral arrangements were handled by Mortensen Funeral Homes, with more details at www.mortensenfuneralhomes.com online.

Starting last weekend, Michigan authorities reported how weather was a factor in at least three roadway deaths and five deaths involving snow clearance.

My refuge

January in Northern Michigan is a tough time for a dedicated botanist. I do know that under all that snow, plants are alive and even developing, but the visible world is disappointingly black and white this time of year. I have a refuge.

About 15 years ago, I cashed in some savings certificates and ordered a small greenhouse kit, which I hoped to attach to our home, so the structure would not require supplemental heating. We had to build a foundation partly below ground, and it had to be on the east side of the house for reasons of lot horders. It had a white, painted aluminum frame and triple-glazed durable plastic sides and roof. We were very pleased with the outcome.

Initially there was enough non-plant space so we could have morning coffee in it. That quickly changed, and within a couple of years, the plants took over every possible bit of room. Shelves and a bench provided even more plant space. My particular botanical interest is in a family of tropical plants related to our local Jack-in-the-Pulpit, and I have collected a significant group of them. They grow well enough so I have actually paid for some of the greenhouse supplies by selling surplus bulbs of the tropical plants to a supplier in California. I have even sold a few locally, although many more have been given away. Most of them are not good house plants, although they produce beautiful, gigantic leaves that may be 5 feet high and 6 feet across. After a few years of seasonal growth, in a large pot, they are likely to produce a flower stalk that is attractive to carrion-loving flies and beetles. They smell powerfully of decaying animal carcasses. At least one of them goes by the common name "corpse-flower," and for good reason. All of which is fine if they bloom in the summer months and can be placed out of doors for a week or so. But winter blooming is a problem, best and not completely solved by double plastic bags.

Recent years have brought a reduction in the troublesome plants and the introduction of some that require less care and are pleasant year-round.

One of the joys of a more diverse collection of plants needing less care is the occasional emergence of the unexpected plant. These either arrive as seeds with potting soil, or are the result of some accidental introduction. This winter's surprise is what has become the longest tomato plant I have ever grown, indoors or out. The plant is not doing well this winter. It has grown very long and thin, and the leaves on most of the single stem have dried and fallen off. That leafless stem is now more than 7-feet long and at the end is trying to produce tiny, grape tomatoes. They are rare and delicious.

EAR TO THE GROUND

An old man cactus, the kind covered with long, gray hair-like fibers is nearing 2 feet tall, all from a pot less than 6 inches in diameter. And our aloe plant, kept available to treat kitchen burns, is thriving, even this winter.

There are other wonders in this 8-by-8-foot space, but they are likely wonders only to me. Winter is less depressing if there are a few green, growing things close at hand.

Roger Knutson is a professor emeritus of biology from Luther College in Decorah, Iowa, where he taught for 30 years. He holds master's degree and a doctorate from the botany department at Michigan State University.

Ban fracking in Michigan

Editor:

The insanity of fracking hit me one night while vacationing in Roosevelt National Park in North Dakota. At night the sky lights up with thousands of flares from fracking wells. Fracking there is done for oil because it is more valuable than gas. However, gas comes up with the oil. Since it is less profitable, it is flared (burned) off into the atmosphere as a waste product. Why is this important to Michigan? Because multinational corporations are leasing our state land at rock-bottom prices, clear-cutting forests, destroying recreation and wildlife areas that provide habitat for animals and tourism dollars for residents — so they can drill for the very same gas that is considered a "waste" product and burned off into the atmosphere in North Dakota! This is insane waste.

It gets worse. Since they get the water for free, the fracking industry is setting national records for water use and contamination here in Michigan. Encana recently applied for permits to use and contaminate 35 million gallons of groundwater. Droughts and water shortages are becoming more common and severe. We should not allow our water to be squandered, poisoned and destroyed.

We don't have to destroy our environment to keep the lights on. Wind and solar energy technology continues to improve and costs to consumers are going down. Meanwhile, fossil fuel costs are rising as gas and oil reserves become more and more difficult to extract. Fracking has been banned in Vermont and in three Canadian provinces. New York State has a moratorium and more than 400 municipalities across the country, including in Michigan, have passed resolutions restricting or banning its use.

It's time our state government stopped subsidizing multinational gas and oil companies. We need a state energy policy that promotes wind and solar. We must ban fracking in Michigan.

Built in 1944 in Duluth, Minn., as part of a two-year federal government program that produced several vessels of the kind during World War II, the 180-foot U.S. Coast Guard cutter Sundew called in Charlevoix many times. In 1958, the ship was stationed in Charlevoix, where she remained for 22 years, ranging from as far south as Saugatuck up to the St. Marys River at Sault Ste. Marie, carrying a handful of officers and more than 40 enlisted men. One of the Sundew's first assignments that year was searching for and bringing back to Charlevoix the two survivors and several bodies of those who perished in the November sinking off of Beaver Island of the lake freighter Carl D. Bradley, a tragedy reported worldwide. Actually, the Sundew traveled to all of the Great Lakes when needed. A prime duty was ice breaking. One January, the ship spent 19 days in the Straits of Mackinac in an attempt to extend the shipping season, contending against the worst ice the Sundew had yet encountered — all in one stretch a mile wide and 12 feet deep. On returning home, it took the ship two hours to ram through the last mile and a half of ice into the channel. The Sundew was reassigned back to Duluth in 1980, but for one generation of Charlevoixites, the Sundew was the only Coast Guard cutter they had ever known until the arrival of the Mesquite.

Veteran of the month: Douglas Warren Daman

STAFF REPORT

The veteran of the month for January 2014 is Douglas Warren Daman.

Born on Jan. 25, 1937, in Monroe, Mich., Daman grew up in Monroe and after completing three years and five months of high school he enlisted in the U.S. Army on Jan. 26, 1954. After he completed basic training at Fort Benning, Ga., Daman was assigned to The 534th Signal Corps and attended the Southeastern Signal School at Camp Gordon, Ga., in April through June 1954, graduating as a Lineman. In 1956, he passed the High School Battery Test and received his Government Education Diploma and on June 16, 1955, Daman was promoted to the non-commissioned officer rank of Specialist Third Class Technician.

On Jan. 25, 1957, at The Separation Center, Fort Benning, Ga., Daman was transferred to The U.S. Army Reserves, Michigan Military District, and on Jan. 25, 1962, having completed his military obligation, he received an honorable discharge and was awarded the National Defense Service Medal. After completing his active service in 1957, Daman returned home and went to work for Ford Motor Company in Research and Development, Allison Gas Turbine Department.

On Sept. 7, 1957, in Monroe, Daman married Mary Ann Brown and while working full-time, Daman continued his education by receiving an associate degree from Washtenaw Community College, a bachelor's degree from Wayne State University, a master's degree in Engineering Technology from Eastern Michigan University and a master's in business administration degree from Indiana Wesleyan University.

Daman gave back to his community by teaching the hunter safety program and promoted the Junior Reserve Officers Training Corps Program at the Hall of the Divine Child Military Academy in Monroe. He was a member of the Boy Scouts of America, serving as scout master from 1961-1962, Charlevoix Rod and Gun Club, American Legion and Knights of Columbus.

Daman retired in 1992, as a senior manufacturing engineer, built a retirement home in the Petoskey area, continued to work as an electrician, pursued his life-long passion as a hunter and trapper that was a big part of his entire life, and also enjoyed spending time with his family. On Feb. 2, 2013, Douglas Warren Daman answered the final call and is being honored by his wife, Mary, and his family.

To honor a veteran, call the program chairman at (231) 588-6067 or on Tuesdays call (231) 582-7811 between 3:30-8:30 p.m. The ceremony is at 6:15 p.m. on the first Thursday of each month in front of the American Legion Post at the corner of South Lake and Main streets in Boyne City.

Rev. James Green leaving Bible Baptist Church after 26 years

After 26 years of ministering to Charlevoix residents, Charlevoix's Bible Baptist Church pastor the Rev. James Green is taking a position in Lansing at the Parker Memorial Baptist Church. His last day behind the pulpit at the Bible Baptist Church on M-66 as senior pastor was Sunday, Jan. 12.

Jim and Terri Green moved to Charlevoix back in 1987 after three years of serious consideration and prayer.

"I have always loved the Charlevoix-Petoskey area. That is where my mother was from," the Rev. Green said.

Green was asked to take over the church that met in the small white building on May street near the former Charlevoix Middle School when the Rev. Jim Luginbihl retired after pastoring the church for 32 years.

The little building served the needs of the congregation well until the mid-90s.

"We had to put chairs down the center aisle and Sunday mornings were standing room only," the Rev. Green said.

The Rev. Green launched a building program to construct a well-researched 11,000 square foot facility with a sanctuary, a fellowship hall/gymnasium, classrooms and kitchen. The building was completed in only nine months with much donated labor from the community.

"The most exciting part was working on the building together and then seeing it paid off completely in 2006," The Rev. Green said he grew to love his small town community and proudly raised his five children to love and serve the community he loved. He and his family traveled to speaking engagements where he developed a reputation for Biblically addressing family principles. He began teaching at Grace Baptist College in Gaylord in 2002 and was given an honorary doctorate degree in 2012.

In his new position, the Rev. Green will take over serving as pastor for the congregation that his father has led for the past 58 years. His son, Philip, will be taking over as pastor at Bible Baptist Church following his departure.

The church is at 5855 M-66 North, just one-half mile south of Kmart.

A coming event planned in Boyne Falls will focus on inland lakes, such as Lake Charlevoix, where sailboats often are seen during the summer months.

Inland lakes collaborative convention set for May

MORGAN SHERBURNE
Northern Michigan Review

For the first time, several statewide inland lakes organizations will meet in one, larger conference.

The inaugural Michigan Inland Lakes Convention will take place Thursday-Saturday, May 1-3, at Boyne Mountain Resort in Boyne Falls.

"We've got a number of groups that have been working largely independently on these types of education and outreach projects," said Brian Gunderman, fisheries biologist for the Department of Natural Resources. "We thought it would make more sense to combine our efforts to reach a larger audience with less effort."

The convention will be comprised of educational presentations, aimed at teaching the public and lakefront homeowners about issues such as riparian rights, managing lake shorelines and watershed management plans.

Petoskey's Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council will be giving two presentations, one of which will be an overview of watershed plans.

"We'll be talking about watershed management plans in general, then will be showing our work from the Chain of Lakes, Little Traverse Bay and Cheboygan's Duncan and Grass bays," said program director Grenetta Thomassey.

"Then, we'll focus in specifically on Lake Charlevoix."

Recently, the watershed council organized a meeting between itself and Charlevoix County governmental entities to teach local units of government about its Lake Charlevoix Watershed Plan.

Jennifer Gelb, restoration ecologist for Tip of the Mitt, will be presenting as part of the Michigan Natural Shoreline Partnership.

The organizations include the DNR, the Michigan Chapter of the North American Lake Management Society, the Michigan Lake and Stream Associations Inc., Michigan State University Extension, Michigan Natural Shoreline Partnership, Michigan Department of Environmental Quality and Michigan State University Institute of Water Research.

Most of these organizations have annual conventions to discuss issues that inland lakes face, including riparian rights, managing lake shorelines and watershed protection plans.

Registration for the convention, which is open to the public as well as researchers and government officials, is open at www.michiganlakes.msu.edu online.

The conference will take place over three days, and will include presentations, discussions, workshops, tours and exhibits, according to a press release from the DNR.

Shelia Davis appointed to NWA School Board

Northwest Academy, a public school charter academy in Charlevoix and Saginaw Valley State University, has appointed Shelia Davis as its newest board of education member. Davis and her family relocated to Charlevoix in November 2007 from the Kalamazoo area. Davis has owned Heaven Sent Adoption Services Inc. since 1999, she served on the March of Dimes board for several years downstate, was 2009 Salute to Women in Business Award winner and served as PTO president for Northwest Academy.

Upon researching and visiting the schools available in this area, the Davis family selected Northwest Academy for their children's education needs because of the small class sizes, individual academic attention and advanced curriculum.

"It was important to me as a parent to be sure each of my children is given the opportunity to achieve their personal best in education," Davis said.

"During the six years Davis' children have been attending Northwest Academy, she has been involved in many activities within the school. She has been a chaperone for many class trips and also at annual five-day arts camp for several years. She volunteered and served on PTO committees and was PTO president for two years. It was during her time as PTO president that Davis wrote a grant application and through Charlevoix County Community Foundation allowed the school to purchase iPads for the resource room to assist special education students.

Davis has two children currently enrolled at Northwest Academy, a daughter in 10th grade and a son in fifth grade. She also has a daughter who graduated as salutatorian with honors last year and she is currently attending Saginaw Valley State University on a full-ride scholarship.

"Northwest has given my children opportunities and advancements a larger public school couldn't," she said. "I believe in this school and the education excellence they have to offer. I have been involved with so much within the school and am looking forward to working with the board on future growth of Northwest Academy. This community has not realized the value of charter school education the way other communities have and I hope to be able to help families see what a great public school option Northwest Academy is."

DeKorte — Ford

Thomas and Evelyn DeKorte of Charlevoix are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Diane DeKorte, to Bryan R. Ford, both of Yakima, Wash.

The bride-elect is a 2003 graduate of Calvin College and is employed by Pacific Northwest University of Health Sciences in Yakima.

Her fiancé is the son of Richard and Jean Ford of Federal Way, Wash. Bryan graduated from Northwest University in Kirkland, Wash., and is employed at Yakima Valley Memorial Hospital as a cardiovascular intensive care nurse. Bryan also owns Bryan R. Ford Photography.

Diane and Bryan are planning a May wedding in Lakewood, Wash.

OBITUARIES

John Robert Alberts, 84

John died Jan. 4, 2014. One of his goals was to make it to the new year and he succeeded in that. He loved life, appreciating and treasuring every moment and felt fortunate to have each day that he was given. He never complained, even after his long illness confined him to his wheelchair and eventually to the house. Every morning he looked out of the window and commented on the beauty that he saw outside.

For most of his life he had a great deal of energy which allowed him to enjoy many interests and activities. He loved music, especially jazz and classical. Other favorites were writing poetry, photography, art museums, art associations and galleries, sailing, hiking and backpacking, sports car driving and races, horseback riding, skiing, antiques, and travel. In every country and city that he visited he found interesting and friendly people, history, culture and beauty.

John was an animal lover, especially dogs and cats. He worked for animal rights and conservation. He did not eat meat from factory farms for many years because of the inhumane conditions under which the animals were raised. He also worked for human rights. He had strong convictions and principles and stood behind them squarely.

After graduating from Arthur Hill High School in Saginaw, John worked for Harley Brothers and for Northern Industrial Supplies of Saginaw. He then joined the Army, serving during the Korean Conflict. When he was discharged from the Army, he enrolled at Michigan State University where he starred in a Main Stage Production as well as many other events.

On Aug. 9, 1958, he married Rachel Goetz and they remained together for 55 years until his death. After they taught in Michigan they decided to move to California where they lived for 30 years, continuing to teach. John served as a drama teacher in Pomona, California, and with the great student help, he created an invitational celebration of theater that hosted the finest student talent in Southern California. Later, he became a member, then chairman of the Pomona Cultural Arts Commission. At that time the Fox Theater, which had hosted the Hollywood previews of new films, was preserved as a landmark. While in California, John and his wife also ran an antiques business and managed several of their rental units.

Returning to Michigan, John became one of the founders of the Charlevoix Circle of Arts and was active in performance poetry, often with jazz musicians. This led to a book of his poetry and a CD of his readings, both titled "Playing Until Dark." His intention was to play until his own darkness and as well as he could, he did.

John felt that his life was a balance of what he thought of as foolish diversions and exemplary actions. This balance tipped toward the positive, to lift him to grant courage, great achievement and much pleasure to those that he taught and led, often changing lives.

John was preceded in death by his parents, Vern and Ellen Dankert Alberts, of Saginaw; his brother, Vern, and sister-in-law, Peggy Alberts, of Saginaw; his nephew, Gary Alberts, of Saginaw; his father- and mother-in-law, William and Hazel Smale Goetz, of Hessel; his sister-in-law and brother-in-law, Donna and Robert Muscoe, his nephew, Paul Muscoe, of Cedarville; and his brother-in-law, Austin "Joe" Olmstead, of Charlevoix.

In addition to his wife, Rachel, he is survived by his sister-in-law, Karen Olmstead, of Charlevoix; his sisters-in-law, Ruth Cutler and Laurel Tigner, both of Cedarville; his nephews and nieces, Tony and Micki Hagen, Leanna Mosoryak, Mark and Carol Muscoe, Brian and Dawn Muscoe, Robyn and Daryl Hill, Cris Cutler, Tracy Olmstead, Darlene Muscoe, Bill Tigner, Mary Rasanen-Tigner, Rachel Wright and Gretchen and Todd Silas. He is also survived by the wonderful children of his nieces and nephews and their families. In addition, the special people whom he considered part of the family: Michael Rayson, Gail Innes, Madison Ramsey, Scott Olmstead, Peggy Tigner, Ginny Foltz and Margaret Garvey.

John did not want a funeral but we hope to have a celebration of his life this summer. A bronze plaque will be placed on his father's grave. Next to the driveway at his home, a memorial bench has been placed adjacent to a memorial tree for his brother, a bronze tablet for his brother's son, and a memorial post honoring the many dogs and cats that we were fortunate to befriend.

You may react in so many ways; a note, an email, a phone call, or listen to some jazz or your favorite music. If you have his book, "Playing Until Dark," or his CD of the same name, you could attend to the last poem, "Brief Instructions on Going Home." He wrote it a few years ago as his own farewell.

Gerald Lee Selph, 90

Gerald Lee Selph, 90, of Eveline Township, passed away Saturday, Jan. 4, 2014, at his home.

He was born Aug. 30, 1923, in Prairie View, Ark., to Leland and Elizabeth (Cummins) Selph.

On Sept. 7, 1946, he married Evelyn J. Hulet.

Gerald served in the U.S. Navy during World War II, in the Asiatic Pacific.

Gerald was an automotive mechanic and worked at Cooper Pontiac/Cadillac in Charlevoix before owning the Gulf Service Station in Charlevoix during the 1960s and '70s. He retired from Medusa Portland Cement Company in 1985.

Gerald and Evelyn enjoyed spending their winters in Florida before she passed away on Dec. 22, 2011.

He is survived by his children, Roger Selph of Buckley, Tim (Leah) Selph of Charlevoix, Pamela (John) Marek of Custer, Julie (Mike) Wood of Mason; grandchildren, Annette (Bob) Purple, Any (Cory) Liddy, Michael Wood, Sarah (Ryan) Atkins, Mary Wood, Gordie (Emily) Selph, Tiffany Cowles; 15 great-grandchildren; sisters, Miriam (Eb) Koch of Prairie View, Ark., Kate Smith of Fort Smith, Ark.

No services are planned. The Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix is handling the arrangements.

Local flu activity increasing

Still time to get vaccinated

RACHEL BROUGHAM
Northern Michigan Review

The flu is here and area health officials say reports of the influenza virus are on the rise in Charlevoix and Emmet counties.

The Michigan Department of Community Health reports at least six deaths so far this season and many hospitals are reporting an increasing number of patients infected with the flu.

"We're just seeing an upswing now and I expect to see an increase in activity over the next few weeks," said Joshua Meyerson, medical director with the Health Department of Northwest Michigan. The department covers Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet and Otsego counties.

"(The health department) gets reports from schools and hospitals, and statewide we're seeing an increase, along with here in the northern region," Meyerson said. "Influenza has definitely been reported in our region and those reports are increasing."

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention reports Michigan is one of 12 states that currently lists flu activity as regional. And while a spokesperson for McLaren Northern Michigan in Petoskey said the hospital hasn't seen too many cases yet this season, there has been a steady increase in Influenza A cases at Charlevoix Area Hospital's emergency room since December. Some of these cases have required hospitalization.

"On a positive note, Charlevoix Area Hospital has seen a decrease in number of patients with flu-like symptoms, who are seeking medical attention, in comparison to last year," said Carun Withers, infection prevention and employee health coordinator for Charlevoix Area Hospital. However, Withers did note there may be unreported cases since many individuals remain untested because they do not seek medical attention unless their condition worsens.

Influenza is a contagious respiratory illness caused by flu viruses. It can cause mild to severe illness, and at times can lead to death. The flu is different from a cold. The flu usually comes on suddenly. People who have the flu often feel some or all of these symptoms: Fever, cough, sore throat, runny or stuffy nose, muscle or body aches, headaches, fatigue and some people may have vomiting and diarrhea.

Most people who get influenza will recover in a few days to less than two weeks, but some people will develop complications (such as pneumonia) as a result of the flu, some of which can be life-threatening and result in death.

Health officials say it's not too late to get a flu shot to protect against this year's influenza season.

Meyerson said that the majority of the flu activity within the state and Northern Michigan is the H1N1 influenza virus. The Michigan Department of Community Health reports that more than 90 percent of positive influenza specimens at its lab are of the 2009 H1N1 strain. During the 2009 H1N1 pandemic, severe disease was also seen in young and middle-aged adults. Patients with underlying medical conditions or obesity have an increased risk for severe complications of the virus.

State and local officials are urging those who have not yet been vaccinated for this year's virus to do so. This year's vaccination does include protection against H1N1.

"It's definitely not too late," Meyerson said.

Meyerson added that in addition to vaccination, the best ways to stop the spread of the flu include frequent hand washing, covering your mouth when you cough or sneeze and to stay home if you are sick.

Michigan residents can get vaccinated at their health care provider offices, local health departments or pharmacies. As long as flu viruses are circulating and causing illness, vaccination can provide protection against the flu. Even unvaccinated people who have already been sick with one flu virus can still benefit from vaccination since the flu vaccine protects against three or four different flu viruses that are expected to circulate each season.

Local organization earns accreditation

North Country Community Mental Health again obtained accreditation for a period of three years for several programs, including Assertive Community Treatment, Case Management/Services Coordination (adults and children), Community Intervention, Crisis Intervention (adults and children), Crisis Stabilization, and Outpatient Treatment (adults and children), according to CARF International.

This accreditation decision represents the highest level of accreditation that can be awarded to an organization and shows the organization's substantial conformance to the CARF standards. An organization receiving a three-year accreditation has undertaken a rigorous peer review process and has demonstrated to a team of surveyors during an on-site visit that its programs and services are of the highest quality, measurable and accountable.

"We are very pleased by this decision, which represents our commitment to quality and client care," said North Country CMH director Alexis Kaczynski. This is our third accreditation award from CARF, and we have performed with distinction."

CARF is an independent, nonprofit accrediting body whose mission is to promote the quality, value and optimal outcomes of services through a consultative accreditation process that centers on enhancing the lives of the persons served. Founded in 1966 as the Commission on Accreditation of Rehabilitation Facilities, and now known as CARF, the accrediting body establishes consumer-focused standards to help organizations measure and improve the quality of their programs and services.

North Country Community Mental Health provides services to residents of Antrim, Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Emmet, Kalkaska and Otsego counties experiencing a severe emotional problem, serious mental illness or developmental disability. Persons wishing to know more about the agency are encouraged to visit www.nncocmh.org or to access services call (800) 834-3393.

Castle Farms announces military wedding contest

Castle Farms of Charlevoix announced its inaugural Castle Farms Dream Military Wedding Giveaway.

The well-known Northern Michigan wedding destination will accept nominations for the new give-away program. The contest is open to all Northern Michigan couples with one or both people active or retired members of any branch of the U.S. Armed Forces. Castle Farms joined with local vendors to provide one special military couple with the dream wedding of a lifetime.

Contest nominations open on Monday, Jan. 27. Couples must be nominated by someone other than themselves and five finalists will be announced on Friday, Feb. 7. Voting by the general public is open Feb. 10-12 through Castle Farms' Facebook page at www.facebook.com/CastleFarms online. The winning couple will be announced on Friday, Feb. 14 - Valentine's Day.

Not only must one or both of those engaged be active or retired members of the military, one or both must also live within the following Northern Michigan counties:

METRO CREATIVE SERVICES

Alcona, Alpena, Antrim, Benzie, Charlevoix, Chéboygan, Chippewa, Crawford, Emmet, Grand Traverse, Iosco, Leelanau, Luce, Kalkaska, Manistee, Mackinac, Missaukee, Montmorency, Ogemaw, Oscoda, Otsego, Presque Isle, Roscommon or Wexford.

Couples must be unmarried, and not in the process of getting a divorce. Couples also must be above the age of 18 years, and citizens of the United States. The winning couple will have until the end of 2014 to plan and host their wedding in the Queen's Tavern at Castle Farms. Guest count is limited to 50 or less, including the bridal party. The winners may not include and/or pay for extra guests. Alcohol is not provided and if desired, must be purchased by the winning couple and also be served by a licensed and insured bartender at the couple's expense.

All nominated couples must give their express permission and agree to the stated terms and conditions of this contest. The number of nominations submitted per couple does not impact their chances of winning.

To nominate a military hero for "A Salute to our Soldiers: Castle Farms Dream Military Wedding Giveaway," submit the following information: Names and ages of the couple; contact information including address, phone and email for both; military service information including branch, service date and current status, plus a photo of just the couple. Also, a blurb of 500 words or less about how the couple met and/or their love story, one fun fact about the couple and finally, why they deserve to win the dream military wedding giveaway.

For complete contest rules, visit Castle Farms' Facebook contest page.

Ferguson hired as chamber V.P.

The Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce announced that Richelle "Shelly" Ferguson was named vice president of the organization, effective immediately.

Ferguson worked for the chamber since 2000 and served in various capacities within the organization during that time.

She currently is responsible for managing day-to-day business operations for the membership and organization, tracking chamber finances, overseeing the staff and coordinating a variety of events and meetings.

Chamber board chairman Steve Seely said Ferguson is an important team member.

"The chamber executive committee has been working very closely with Shelly over the past several months and have found her contributions to the chamber to be invaluable," Seely said. "We wanted to not only reward Shelly for her outstanding work and commitment, but also identify her as an integral part of the chamber's success when we bring in the new president."

Ferguson is a Charlevoix native and enjoys everything about Charlevoix, she said. She enjoys spending time with her family and outdoors activities, especially camping, hiking and biking.

Hospital hires new physician assistant

Heather Ferber joined the staff of Charlevoix Area Hospital and Boyne Area Medical Center. Ferber is a graduate of Central Michigan University in Mount Pleasant, and a board-certified physician assistant.

Ferber said she is delighted to be joining Boyne Area Medical Center.

"It is exciting to be working with three primary care physicians, and another physician assistant to provide excellent health care. This is a great opportunity to work with skilled health professionals," she said.

With the addition of Ferber, Boyne Area Medical Center will employ three primary care physicians and two physician assistants.

With her addition, community members will have fast and convenient access to health care, officials said.

For more information about Charlevoix Area Hospital and Boyne Area Medical Center, visit www.cah.org online.

Pool board hires new director

The board of directors of the Charlevoix Area Community Pool announced its new pool director will be Kevin Hawley, currently of Traverse City.

Hawley replaces long-time executive director Al Gooch, who is retiring after more than 15 years of dedicated service to the pool.

Hawley, originally from Ohio, earned his bachelor's degree in parks, recreation and leisure service administration from Central Michigan University, with a concentration in commercial recreation. He served as a critical member of the National Cherry Festival team as operations and volunteer coordinator and his most recent experience is with the Grand Traverse County Civic Center.

Hawley's accreditations include Certified Pool Operator, Certified Lifeguard Instructor and Water Safety Instructor.

Kevin said he looks forward to extending the pool's community involvement with businesses, nonprofit groups and individual patrons, through new and innovative outreach efforts. He and his wife, Danielle, are looking forward to acquainting themselves with Charlevoix and its surrounding communities.

The nonprofit pool offers aquatic recreational programming to the entire community, regardless of age or ability. For more information about the pool and program offerings, visit website www.charlevoixpool.org or call (231) 547-0982.

review more options for such a marina expansion before they forward any plans on to the Charlevoix City Council for consideration. But, by and large, they all agreed how they are not opposed to a marina expansion.

Not everyone is sold, however.

Bill Henne, of nonprofit environmental organization WATCH, said that years ago when the city overhauled the marina and East Park in downtown Charlevoix, the group struck a compromise deal with planners to minimize the impact to Round Lake and others who use the natural resource. It was a controversial issue, he said.

Henne was surprised to hear the city was considering expanding the marina in conflict with that compromise, Henne said.

Henne was just one of several citizens to speak during the public hearing at Charlevoix City Hall.

Charlevoix resident Pat Duffy said she retired to this community because she enjoys the parks and the water, but already believes there is enough boater congestion in Round Lake.

"It becomes more a parking lot than a marina," Duffy said.

Local medical doctor James Stewart, who said he lives in Charlevoix Township but works inside the city, said he also wants city officials to stick to the deal they struck with WATCH years ago.

"We'd be taking a finite piece of Round Lake and selling it for $100,000," Stewart said. "We will have destroyed another piece of the lake and we'll never get it back. Once you put a price tag on this portion of the lake, you've broken the mold — you've set a precedent."

Meanwhile, city manager Rob Straebel said the city doesn't have the needed cash in hand to build such a marina expansion, but officials thought about pre-leasing the larger boat slips to generate the needed up-front capital.

Spencer said he will contact the engineers who drafted the preliminary proposal — at United Design Inc. — and learn more details about why they recommended certain specifics over others. Also, additional designs could be explored before he will report back to the Charlevoix Planning Commission again on Feb. 10.

BOYNE CITY

Former Lions kicker to speak in Boyne City

DREW KOCHANNY
Northern Michigan Review

There's a lot to be said about doing things the right way in life and sports.

Success often follows high character and integrity and when it does, it's all the more sweet.

Former National Football League and Detroit Lions kicker Jason Hanson is a clear example of doing things the right way with positive results, not only in football, but in life, and come Saturday, Jan. 18, Hanson will share his experience with Northern Michigan student athletes as a guest speaker in the Boyne City High School gymnasium.

Hanson will speak with athletes and parents from 8-10 a.m. about what it takes to be successful as a collegiate and professional athlete.

Pastor Jason Loewen of Walloon Lake Community Church was one of a few responsible for Hanson to be making the trip.

"I'm definitely really excited for what he has planned," Loewen said. "I think he has a lot of potential to encourage the student athletes to take the high road of honesty, integrity and character," versus getting your way the easy way. His kind of journey."

After a 21 year NFL career, all with the Detroit Lions, the same team that drafted him in the second round of the 1992 NFL Draft, Hanson holds over eight NFL records and multiple franchise scoring records, including becoming the first NFL player to score 2,000 or more points with one team.

A 4.0 student in high school growing up in Mead, Wash., Hanson went on to become an All-American at Washington State University and has long been known as one of the most honorable and loved players in Detroit Lions history.

"I think that he's a very public figure and really a great example of really what it takes to truly be successful at that level with that type of spotlight on you," added Loewen. "I think that Jason Hanson is a good testimony of how you can have a good career, still come out smiling at the other end of it and not broke."

Later in the evening on Saturday, from 7-9 p.m., Hanson will return to the Boyne City auditorium, to speak on his religious beliefs and personal story, as well as hold a kicking competition.

Admission to both events is free, paid in full by local businesses.

"I'd like to give a big thank you to Boyne Mountain, Bay Area Clean Care, BC Pizza, Bradford Cleaners," Loewen said of the event sponsors.

For more information, contact the Rev. Jason Loewen at (231) 881-7162.

Cheboygan 53,

Fouls have a way of coming back to haunt teams.

Such was the case for the Charlevoix girls' basketball team on Monday, as foul trouble sank the Rayders into an early deficit and kept key contributors on the bench in a 53-35 non-conference loss to Cheboygan in the Charlevoix High School gym.

"We were in foul trouble early," Charlevoix coach Liz Shaw said. "And we never really got going tonight."

The Rayders trailed by one, 9-8 at the close of the first quarter. Trailing 16-14 midway through the second, fouls settled in late before half with Cheboygan in double-bonus. The Rayders would eventually trail 22-16 at the half and 39-28 to close the third quarter.

Olivia Storm scored eight points while Alexis Tribfelner and Kourtney Putman each added seven for the Rayders during a non league loss to the Chiefs on Monday.

Also for Charlevoix, Tribfelner grabbed six rebounds and three assists. Putman had seven rebounds, Madeline Boss scored six points and grabbed eight rebounds and Gabby Gray had three steals and three assists.

For Cheboygan, Macey Charboneau scored 14 points and Ashley Hempenstall scored 12 points.

Charlevoix, 3-4 overall, 1-2 in the Lake Michigan Conference, hosted East Jordan Tuesday, in the Charlevoix High School gym.

East Jordan 50,
Ellsworth 23

ELLSWORTH — Make that two in a row.

The East Jordan girls' basketball team completed their first win streak of the season on Monday, defeating Ellsworth 50-23 in a non-conference meeting in the Ellsworth High School gym.

The Red Devils, 3-4 overall now, 1-2 in the Lake Michigan Conference, paired their overtime conference victory from Friday with Monday's win to get out of a four game skid.

"The biggest difference I'd say is we started playing with a little more intensity," East Jordan coach Steve Hines said. "We had some cold shooting as well, we struggled to put the ball in the basket and we came out of it a little on Friday and really came out of that last night. We had six 3-pointers in the game."

The Red Devils led just 7-4 after the first quarter and 18-11 at the half, but exploded in the third quarter, scoring 21 points to the Lancers three to make it a 39-14 game at the end of three.

Lindsey Schroeder led the Red Devils with 13 points on the night, while Tori Godrich had 11 points and Colette Tuck, eight points.

For Ellsworth, 4-4, 4-2 in the Northern Lakes Conference, Katelyn Sowers led with 10 points.

East Jordan traveled to Charlevoix for a Lake Michigan Conference meeting Tuesday, in the Charlevoix High School gym.

Ellsworth planned to head to Harbor Light for a conference meeting on Wednesday, Jan. 15.

Charlevoix 48

KALKASKA — Madeline Boss recorded her fourth double-double of the season scoring 18 points and grabbing 13 rebounds for the Rayders in a Lake Michigan Conference loss to the Blazers Friday, Jan. 10.

Charlevoix jumped out to a 14-13 lead at the end of the first quarter, and carried a 24-22 lead into halftime.

"We played strong defense throughout the game," Charlevoix coach Liz Shaw said. "We just could not handle the ball very well, and made some costly turnovers."

Kalkaska outscored Charlevoix 41-24 in the second half for the win.

"We were a little flat coming out of halftime," Shaw added. "Kalkaska's press overwhelmed us at times."

Also for Charlevoix, Boss had six steals and three assists, while Kelsey Engstrom scored 15 points and had five steals while Alexis Tribfelner added four steals.

For Kalkaska, 6-1 overall, 3-0 league, Taylor Kibby had a game-high 20 points, while Reyann Homan added 11 points. Charlevoix is 3-3 overall, 1-2 in league.

Charlevoix was set to play Cheboygan on Monday.

East Jordan 42,
Harbor Springs 41 (OT)

HARBOR SPRINGS — Lindsay Schroeder and Miranda Burks each finished with 11 points as East Jordan slipped past Harbor Springs Friday, Jan. 10, in a Lake Michigan Conference contest.

With the win, the Red Devils improve to 2-4 overall, 1-2 league, while Harbor Springs falls to 1-7, 0-5.

The Red Devils overcame a 10-4 first quarter deficit and were down 19-12 at halftime and 28-22 entering the fourth quarter. Burks had six fourth quarter points as the Red Devils tied the end at the end of regulation, 37-all, before Schroeder had one basket and Kayla Keane added two free throws and Paige Poindexter had another free throw for the winning margin.

Also for the Red Devils, who shot 13-of-28 from the free throw line, Colette Tuck had eight points.

For Harbor Springs, Shallen Grawey finished with a team-high 11 points, while Perry Bower added nine points and Maddy Savard had five points.

East Jordan was set to play again Monday at Ellsworth.

Ellsworth 10

ELLSWORTH — Raegan Pedigo led the Loggers with 14 points, 14 rebounds, and eight steals during a Northern Lakes Conference win over the Lancers on Friday.

For Ellsworth, Taryn Rozema scored six points.

Boyne Falls jumped out to an early lead, 10-5, to close out the first quarter.

The Loggers would stretch its lead to 28-8 at halftime.

"Raegan (Pedigo) played a really well inside tonight," Boyne Falls coach Lyndell Sage said. "And, Emily Matelski had a nice floor game, after we made some adjustments coming into tonight's game."

Rayders win tourney

DREW KOCHANNY
Northern Michigan Review

The Charlevoix High School City wrestling team capped the annual Dick Dunn Memorial Tournament on Saturday, Jan. 11.

The Rayders placed first in the 11-team tournament, while Cheboygan was second, followed by Onaway, Boyne City, Fife Lake Forest Area, Kalkaska, Newberry, Munising,ancelona and Lake City.

Leading the way for the Rayders was senior Jake Novotny, who placed first in the 152 pound weight class and improved his season record to 27-2.

Also for Charlevoix, junior Sam Hovie won the 160 pound weight class and improved to 28-1 on the year.

Sophomore Mick Hinkle, who is now 21-9 on the season, placed second at 189 pounds, while freshman Camden Alden also was second at 112 pounds, improving to 25-3 on the year while freshman Tyler McCallum placed second at 119 pounds, improving to 12-13.

Placing third were junior Lucas VonLau, 130; senior Austin Cesaro, 135; freshman Malcolm Williams, 145; and senior Andrew Mitchell, 285.

Junior Lucas Blickley took second place in the 135 pound exhibition bracket.

Ups and downs
Charlevoix wins, then losesDREW KOCHANNY
Northern Michigan Review

KALKASKA:

Austin Putman led the Rayders scoring 18 points and grabbing 14 rebounds during a Lake Michigan Conference win over the Blazers on Friday.

Charlevoix would jump out to an early lead, 19-10, by the end of the first quarter.

The Rayders stretched their lead to 41-19 going into half-time.

"Jumping out to the early first half lead was nice," Charlevoix coach Bret Erskine said. "We finally settled down and put together four quarters of good basketball."

Kalkaska would cut the Charlevoix lead into single digits at the end of the third, 50-42, but in the end it was not enough as the Rayders came away with the win.

Also for Charlevoix: Matt Mackenzie scored 10 points and had 10 rebounds while Nick Plude scored 10 points.

For Kalkaska, Will Noble scored 18 points, Austin Cooper added 12 points and Aaron Zimmerman had 10 points.

Charlevoix was then 2-5 overall, 1-2 in league.

The East Jordan boys' basketball team has made one thing clear early in the season. They are a different team from a year ago.

The Red Devils proved that true once again on Tuesday, as they took down Lake Michigan Conference rival Charlevoix in a 59-37 road win.

Through six games already this season, East Jordan, 5-1 overall, 3-1 in the Lake Michigan Conference, has already compiled more wins than all of last season.

"The team chemistry is a lot better," East Jordan coach Darrin Weber said. "Our sophomores are a year older, I brought five freshmen up last year. Everyone seems to really know their roles out on the floor and the effort, whether it's diving for a loose ball, rebounding, helping out on defense."

The Red Devils led 8-5 after the first quarter, but Charlevoix, 2-6 overall, 1-3 in league, would jump out to a 6-0 run to start the second quarter to take the lead 11-8 early in the second quarter.

A 10-0 run for East Jordan would ensue, with the Red Devils taking an 18-11 lead late in the second quarter. Free throws in the final seconds of the quarter would make it a 19-12 game at the half.

East Jordan would hit the floor and the scoreboard fast and hard in the third, building a commanding lead with a 21 point third quarter.

"It was a good team win," added Weber.

"Just real unselfish play. We don't have great size, but I've got some guys with a real high basketball I.Q. Dustin Hejka had eight points in the third. He did a good job."

Leading the Red Devils on the night was Donny Cutter with 13 points, while Noah Bacchus scored 12 points and Jordan Weber, nine points.

Austin Putman led the Rayders with 12 points in the game, going 9-of-10 from the free throw line.

"I thought our guys' effort defensive wise was pretty good, we just have to get it going on the offensive end," Charlevoix coach Bret Erskine said. "Just another day where we couldn't put the ball in the basket. We just haven't found our rhythm yet."

Looking to keep the hot streak going, East Jordan will play Kalkaska at home on Friday, Jan. 17, while the Rayders will look to regroup as they travel to Grayling on Friday.

BOYER CITY — It's been an up and down season for the Boyer City girls' basketball team thus far.

Friday, Jan. 10, at the Boyer City High School gym was one of those down moments as the Ramblers fell in Traverse City St. Francis, 56-33, in a Lake Michigan Conference meeting.

Taylor Baker led the Ramblers, now 3-5 overall, 2-2 in league play, with nine points, while Rainy McCune scored seven points.

A 28-15 halftime lead for the Gladiators, 7-2, 4-0, would be followed by 20-7 point differential in the third quarter by the Gladiators, who took a 48-22 lead heading into the final quarter of play, seemingly putting the game out of reach for the Ramblers.

Heather Nichols added five points for Boyer City, while St. Francis was led by Juliana Phillips with 17 points and Sarah Carney with 12 points.

Also for Boyer, Ali Johnson added seven rebounds.

NOTICE OF Mortgage Foreclosure Sale THIS FIRM IS A DEBT COLLECTOR ATTEMPTING TO COLLECT A DEBT. ANY INFORMATION WE OBTAIN WILL BE USED FOR THAT PURPOSE. PLEASE CONTACT OUR OFFICE AT THE NUMBER BELOW IF YOU ARE IN ACTIVE MILITARY DUTY. ATTN PURCHASERS: This sale may be rescinded by the foreclosing mortgagee. In that event, your damages, if any, shall be limited solely to the return of the bid amount tendered at sale, plus interest.

MORTGAGE SALE Default has been made in the conditions of a mortgage made by Melissa M. Ludwig and Fred S. Ludwig, husband and wife, original mortgagor(s), to Fifth Third Mortgage - MI, LLC, Mortgagee, dated March 26, 2009, and recorded on April 6, 2009 in Liber 882 on Page 472, and assigned by said Mortgagee to Fifth Third Mortgage Company as assignee as documented by an assignment. In Charlevoix county records, Michigan, on which mortgage there is claimed to be due at the date hereof the sum of Two Hundred Eight Thousand Nine Hundred Eighteen and 35/100 Dollars ($208,918.35). Under the power of sale contained in said mortgage and the statute in such case made and provided, notice is hereby given that said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises, or some part of them, at public vendue, at the place of holding the circuit court within Charlevoix County, at 11:00 AM, on February 14, 2014. Said premises are situated in City of Charlevoix, Charlevoix County, Michigan, and are described as: The East 1/2 of Lot 1 and the North 16 feet of the East 1/2 of Lot 2, Block 4, Dixon's Addition to the Village (now City) of Charlevoix, as recorded in Liber 1 of Plats, Pages 35 and 36.

2100 LEGAL NOTICES

Charlevoix County Records. The redemption period shall be 6 months from the date of such sale, unless determined abandoned in accordance with MCLA 600.3241a. In which case the redemption period shall be 30 days from the date of such sale.

If the property is sold at foreclosure sale under Chapter 32 of the Revised Judicature Act of 1961, pursuant to MCL 600.3278 the borrower will be held responsible to the person who buys the property at the mortgage foreclosure sale or to the mortgage holder for damaging the property during the redemption period.

Green light for Gendron

Charlevoix superintendent three-year contract OK'd

SHERI MCWHIRTER-O'DONNELL
Courier editor

Charlevoix Public Schools leaders unanimously voted Monday to approve a three-year contract for superintendent Robert Gendron, following a brief discussion about the district's review policy.

School board president Kevin Pearsall said district officials received assistance Jan. 8 from the Michigan Association of School Boards to evaluate Gendron, involving a rubric-based system. Gendron scored 82.84 percent, which falls within the effective range, Pearsall said.

"His score is on the verge of highly effective," he said. "Good job, Bob. You did really well."

The board initially hired Gendron in July 2012 to replace former superintendent Chet Janik, who retired from education the previous April to take a position as administrator for Leelanau County. The new contract is set for this year through 2017.

As with his original contract with Charlevoix Public Schools, it is a three-year rolling contract which includes an annual $110,000 salary, plus a tax-sheltered annuity payment at $3,000 to be increased by $1,000 for each successive year of employment. The initial year's contract called for a $1,000 annuity, but this will be Gendron's third year in the job, meaning the annual payment increased each year, according to the terms. Also, the contract includes health insurance as well as dental, vision, life and long-term disability coverage.

Gendron also would annually receive 12 sick days, 15 vacation, four personal and five days of bereavement leave. There is no car allowance provided, but the district will reimburse Gendron for mileage at the current Internal Revenue Service rate.

The district's previous superintendent, Chet Janik, earned $102,144 in annual salary, health, dental, vision, long-term disability and life insurance.

Officials changed Gendron's contract to include his annual review by Dec. 31, rather than in March, according to the state's new fiscal year policy. Also, the board by consensus asked that an Larry Sullivan still hasn't decided which elected position he's going to stick with — city or county — now that Michigan's attorney general weighed into his dual elected positions predicament.

Sullivan, a Charlevoix County commissioner, is also the elected Charlevoix city clerk, though he hasn't yet been sworn into the latter office. City council members on Jan. 2 voted to bar Sullivan from taking his elected city office unless he forgoes his elected county position. Everything since hinged on the expected legal opinion from state Attorney General Bill Schuette, which his office sent to Charlevoix on Friday.

Schuette's office confirmed Sullivan must choose one office or the other — he cannot serve in both positions to which voters elected him, according to state law and the Charlevoix city

Exactly how to fill a vacancy on the Charlevoix City Council formed the crux of a lengthy conversation Monday, with arguments for public transparency pitted against traditional policy.

Greg Stevens, city council member from Charlevoix's 2nd Ward, resigned from his elected position after he moved outside city limits. City manager Rob Straehel and mayor Norm Carlson Jr. both recommended city officials accept applications from 2nd Ward residents who have an interest in this public service opportunity. Instead, city council members voted against

Michigan's Route 66 book now available

Authors fell in love with Charlevoix during research

GERIANNE DIETZE
Courier contributor

Americans have always loved the adventure, romance and discovery of road trips. And while Michigan's Route 66 might not sound as glamorous as the legendary "Mother Road" that connects Chicago to Los Angeles, our own Route 66 has now been explored, catalogued and immortalized in a new book by John and Becky Schlatter, called "Splittin' the Mitten: Get Your Kicks on Michigan's Route 66."

The Schlatters' story began when they in 2007 purchased a small cottage on Chippewa Lake, between Big Rapids and Mount Pleasant. They moved there permanently in 2012 after John's retirement from the Bechtel Corporation. From that home base, they discovered Barryton, a tour seven miles from the cottage, and they began to realize that M-66 was worth exploring.

Began in 1919, M-66 was a trunk line highway connecting the countryside to small towns and farms from south to north. Over the decades, the road was lengthened, altered, and re-routed, eventually connecting towns in 12 Michigan counties, from Sturgis on the Michigan-Indiana border, to Charlevoix, at its northern end. Today, most of M-66 is still a two-lane rural highway, and while it can be tricky to follow at times, the road is worth a look.

"Splittin' the Mitten" contains more than 250 photographs with narrative intended to take the reader through the heartland of rural Michigan. The trip is mainly nostalgic — there are only two Wal-Marts along the entire 273-mile route — and instead offers a view of Main streets (some restored, some not), beautiful old homes on shaded avenues, barns and silos, Amish homesteads, centennial farms, and plenty of open countryside.

"We had a lot of fun doing the book," John said. "We drove the entire length twice, and we took three short trips over a four-month period."

YouTube users can see a time-lapsed and dizzying view of the whole route, all in seven minutes.

The Schlatters said they enjoyed the whole route, but found some things particularly interesting.

"Ionia has a really nice brick Main Street," John said.

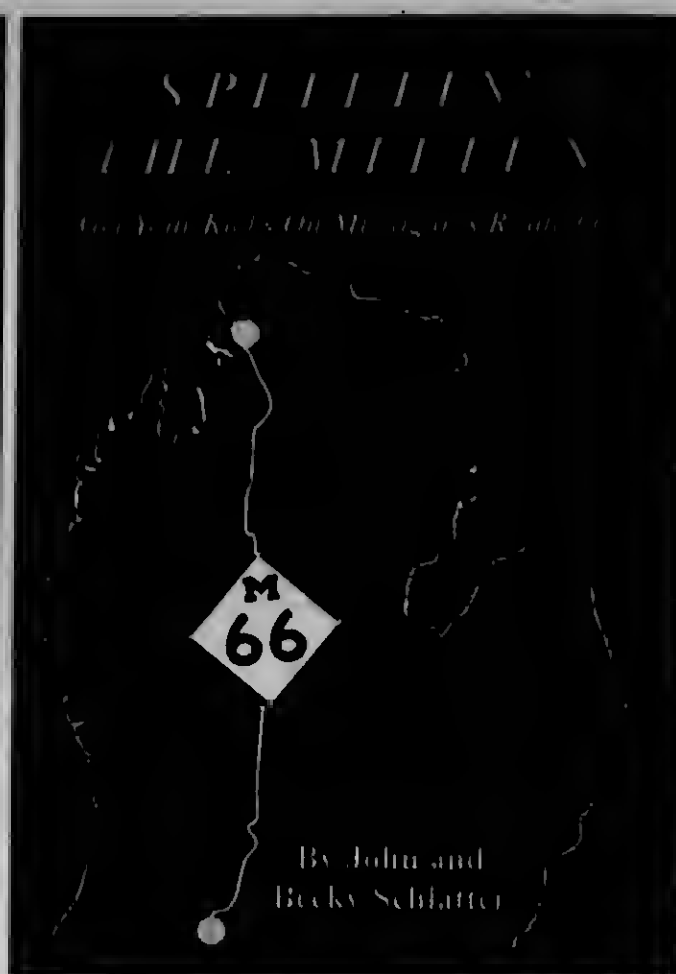

And, the couple said they were taken with a quirky combination barber shop and sportsman's store, the Bobber Shop, in Sheridan, a village in Montcalm County.

"I'm sure if we drove it again, we'd find even more to write about," John said.

Was there a favorite?

"I fell in love with Charlevoix," John said. "There's a sign outside of town that says 'Charlevoix, the Beautiful,' and they ain't lying."

The Schlatters authored two other books, including "The Bunny in the Window Well" for children, and "Postcard Memories From World War II: Finding Lost Keepsakes 70 Years Later," the story of John returning lost postcards to the families of World War II veterans.

John said his next book will honor the soldiers who died in the war in Vietnam and the families who remember them.

"Splittin' the Mitten" is available at www.amazon.com online for $8, or $19 in color, or it can be ordered via Round Lake Bookstore at 216 Bridge St. in downtown Charlevoix.

Castle Farms to be featured on PBS

Local channel will air 'Destination Michigan' episode

SHERI MCWHIRTER-

A coming episode of "Destination Michigan" on Central Michigan University Public Television will feature Charlevoix's own Castle Farms.

Castle Farms, a nationally renowned historic attraction, will be featured in the episode scheduled to air at 7:30 p.m. Monday, Jan. 27, on WCMU, the PBS-affiliated station based at the state university in Mount Pleasant. The episode will include a film montage and historic video tour of the site, as well as an interview with current owner Linda Mueller.

"Castle Farms has come a long way since 1918 and its days of sheltering prize-winning dairy cattle. The Castle has been a leading member of the Charlevoix business community for nearly 100 years now," said Kathleen Paterka, staff writer and tour guide. "It's one of Northern Michigan's premiere historical attractions and destination wedding sites."

Albert Loeh, president of Sears, built the original structure in the French Renaissance fashion and its first 10 years the spot served as a working model dairy farm. The site fell into disrepair for many years until it was used as an artist's venue from 1962-1969 and then as a rock concert venue for more than 20 years from 1973-1995.

Mueller purchased Castle Farms in 2001 and undertook a complete restoration. Now the historic site is open year-round to the public for either guided or self-guided tours.

"The Castle brought more than 47,000 guests to the Charlevoix area in 2013, most of them from out-of-town. Many of these visitors spent money dining in Charlevoix's restaurants, shopping its unique downtown boutiques, and enjoying overnight accommodations in local hotels," Paterka said. "Castle Farms is proud of the role it has played in Charlevoix's history, and looks forward to embracing the community well into the future."

Dave Miles, of the Charlevoix Historical Society, said the nonprofit organization supplied WCMU with historic photographs for the episode.

The original entrance at Castle Farms is now the entrance to the Queen's Courtyard, among the most popular outdoor bridal venues.

Engstrom enters race

Attorney is latest candidate for 33rd Circuit Court position

BRANDON HUBBARD
Northern Michigan Review

A second candidate is entering the race for the 33rd Circuit Court judgeship. Edward F. Engstrom, 52, of Charlevoix, became the latest candidate to enter the race to fill retiring Judge Richard Pajitas' seat.

Val Snyder, an attorney and Charlevoix Public School Board member, has also filed to run for the bench in November 2014.

"The reason I want to be a judge is because as an attorney it is a stepping stone to improve my life and the lives of others," Engstrom said.

The attorney is a Charlevoix native with more than 25 years as an attorney in both the private and public sector.

In 2002, he moved home to Charlevoix from the Detroit metropolitan area to help care for and raise his two children.

He became a partner at Barron & Golski, PLC in 2005, after working there for three years.

His law experience covers criminal cases, business, bankruptcy, collections, divorces, probate, real estate and zoning issues, among others.

For eight years he worked as a public defender in Macomb County.

"I've stood in front of

more than 100 judges during my career and have had the chance to see what is both good and bad about them," Engstrom said.

One example, he recalled, was an appeals court judge from Macomb County who would call both sides of a criminal case into his chambers.

"He would always suggest a way to resolve the case, and it was amazing to hear the solutions he would come up with," he said. "The way he would think and spend time on his cases was something I always thought was the best thing a judge could do."

Skills as a certified mediator is one of the skill sets Engstrom believes would serve him on the bench.

"Judge Pajitas does that now and I would want to continue it. I truly believe parties can resolve issues without the need of a judge," he added.

Engstrom said people generally do not want to go to a trial, so mediation can be an important step — especially in divorce cases.

"If two parents work out their issues themselves, they are going to get along a lot better than if a judge tells them what to do," he said.

The candidate says he sees himself as both a "worker" and a "survivor" who has covered enough varied cases to be ready to help the community as a judge.

In addition to being an attorney, he has been a volunteer soccer coach for seven years and has provided pro bono legal services for seniors.

Cronk pleads 'no contest' Friday

BRANDON HUBBARD
Northern Michigan Review

A Boyne City man entered a no contest plea Friday morning to second degree child abuse in the 33rd Circuit Court in Charlevoix County.

Steven Lawrence Cronk, a 27-year-old father, pled to the felony charge and faces a maximum sentence of 10 years in prison for physically abusing an infant.

Defense attorney Christopher Turkelson indicated to the court that the "no contest" plea was to avoid future liability in a lawsuit for damages.

Police records show that at 4:33 p.m. July 12, 2013, the Charlevoix/Cheshogan/Emmet 9-1-1 Central Dispatch received a call requesting an ambulance at 118 W. Water St. in Boyne City for an infant not breathing.

Cronk was watching the infant and other young children at the time of the incident.

When paramedics responded, they found the baby in distress and struggling to breathe. The child was taken to McLaren Northern Michigan hospital in Petoskey before being airlifted to DeVos Children's Hospital in Grand Rapids.

Doctors in Grand Rapids diagnosed the victim with having bleeding in the retina and brain, a broken right arm, a broken right leg and a possible break in the left leg, among other injuries.

A second doctor at the hospital opined in that the injuries are consistent with shaking trauma and abuse. At the time of the diagnosis, it was determined the baby would not survive if removed from a ventilator.

"I believe it is much more likely that Brooke's (brain injury) is the result of abusive head trauma, rather than a suffocation event with her sister as it has been described by dad," stated Dr. Sarah J. Brown, a pediatrician at DeVos, in a July 15 report. "I believe Brooke was abusively head injured on the afternoon of July 12."

The opinion also suggests the fracture to the humerus may have been caused by a jerking or twisting motion to the forearm or hand, as was the fracture to the femur.

The child was released July 30 to a maternal grandmother.

Cronk had previously posted a $1,000 bond for his release, but a bench warrant was issued for his arrest last week when he failed to appear for a court hearing ahead of his trial, which was slated for early February.

The defendant was arrested the same day and has been held in the Charlevoix County Jail since.

Charlevoix County Prosecuting Attorney Allen Telgenhof said in a statement that the Boyne City Police Department deserved credit for bringing justice for the infant.

"The lead investigator on the case was Craig Remsburg of the Boyne City Police Department, assisted by Michigan State Police Detectives Richard Rule and Denise Bentley," Telgenhof said. "It is only through their diligent efforts that this conviction was obtained."

Cronk is scheduled to be sentenced Jan. 31.

Crisman sentenced

Arizona man gets 25-50 years in prison for child abuse

BRANDON HUBBARD
Northern Michigan Review

A former Boyne City man who fled charges of sexual assault to Arizona in the mid-1990s could serve up to half a century in prison.

Floyd Bernath Crisman, 60, was sentenced to 25 to 50 years in prison for his conviction on two charges of criminal sexual conduct in the first degree for assaulting two victims under 13 years old.

The defendant, who assaulted two girls between the ages of 4 and 8 years old, faced one charge of first degree criminal sexual conduct in 1993, but absconded before a court hearing.

An open case check in the 90th District Court led officials to reopen the case and bring a new charge.

The Charlevoix County Prosecutor's Office credited Charlevoix County Detective Mike Wheat and Sherry Hunt of the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office for locating Crisman and providing enough information for new charges to be filed. The prosecutor also cited Charlevoix County victim advocate Libby Mikulski with her work with the victims in the case.

The prosecutor and Charlevoix County Sheriff Don Schneider authorized Wheat to travel to Arizona to find Crisman and get his confession.

Crisman was arrested Nov.

13, while homeless in Phoenix. For five counts of sexual assault of a person under 13 years old. In a plea agreement on Dec. 13, the charges were reduced in exchange for a plea of "no contest" — considered the same as a guilty plea. The no contest plea was accepted when the defense attorney, Kraag Lieberman, indicated his client had no memory of the incidents because of his long history of abusing alcohol and drugs, as well as a series of mini-strokes he had suffered during the past two decades since the crimes.

The sentencing was seen by Charlevoix County officials as a long-overdue victory for the victims.

"As one of the victims stated in court at the sentencing, this is a great day for the victims," said Charlevoix County Prosecutor Allen Telgenhof. "They do not have to be afraid of this man anymore. The judge's sentence makes it highly unlikely that Mr. Crisman will ever be free again."

Telgenhof said he was "so grateful that one of the survivors of Mr. Crisman's abuse had the courage to speak for all of the people he has hurt."

Woman charged with embezzling from patient

BRANDON HUBBARD
Northern Michigan Review

An Ellsworth caregiver pleaded not guilty in 90th District Court Tuesday to four counts of stealing more than $24,000 from her 89-year-old Hayes Township patient.

Megan Christina Potter, 37, of Ellsworth, is charged with four counts of felony forgery for "uttering or publishing" forged checks. Each charge carries a sentence of up to 14 years in prison.

The Grand Traverse County prosecutor was appointed as a special prosecutor to the case at the request of the Charlevoix County Prosecutor's Office.

A preliminary examination of the case is set for 2:30 p.m. Tuesday, Feb. 4, in district court.

Michigan State Police allege the defendant began taking an 89-year-old Charlevoix County man's checkbook while working as a home caregiver for the victim and wrote more than 48 unauthorized checks from September 2011 to April 2012 in Hayes Township.

In total, police records state Potter forged and cashed more than $24,000 in checks — including checks for $650 and $450 used as evidence to file the charge.

State troopers showed the victim the checks in question, but he stated it was not his signature and he never consented to them being written.

OPINIONS yours & ours

Commercial-free advice

Are you someone who is easily persuaded by advertisements? I remember the discussion between my dad and me when he returned home from a medical conference in San Francisco. There was an ad on our black and white claiming your headache will be relieved by taking such-and-such aspirin and nine out of 10 doctors at a medical conference recommended this specific brand. I was a naïve 10 year old who knew nothing about money and gifts to encourage someone to agree with supporting a company or product. A discussion ensued between dad and me and this conversation soon became a defining moment. I learned about commercials, product endorsement and my future in debate.

When I think about the strength of saying something with conviction and persuasiveness, it's downright scary. Growing up "you wonder where the yellow went when you brush your teeth with ... — well you know the rest. Catchy song, but my mom didn't buy into it. We used baking soda mixed with water and hydrogen peroxide. Many years later we saw the clever ads for milk; starlets gracing an upper lip laced with the opaque liquid. Again, I couldn't be persuaded, especially as someone who is lactose intolerant.

This morning my attention was drawn to a lovely newscaster who brought up the discussion of aging. She was sharing information promoting products for removing wrinkles and the return of your youthful glow. Again, I can hear dad's voice in my head, "In regards to aging, genetics plays a major role and then after that your lifestyle."

Yes, save your money. Topical creams make you look slick as a new car coming off the lot but in the long run drinking water will plump your skin and it's affordable.

In the economy we live in, I think it's time we all turned the clock back a bit to living a life that reflects saving, reusing and repurposing. My philosophy is and has always been, "when you're low on quid use your lid." Lack of finances has a way of making all of us creative.

Companies with the most money to spend on marketing usually corner the cash flow on their product. Unique ideas presented will often encourage the consumer to purchase just because the ad made us laugh or cry. Packaging is also part of the big sell. I will sometimes find myself drawn to a product because I am attracted to the cute little box, the fun shaped bottle or exquisite color it arrives in.

My husband's take on marketing is to listen and read what others say about the product. I tried this avenue and it actually seems the best tool of all. It's the old-fashioned method of word of mouth that our grandparents relied on when they needed to make a purchase. Word of mouth is the best advertising out there. It doesn't cost anything and it's time well-spent listening to someone or reading their review. In the long run, it will save you money.

When I was taking classes in commercial art I thought at first it was fun. I could focus on my artwork and be persuasive and creative all at the same time. Unfortunately, I was also given the task to promote things I didn't feel worked very well. It was then I heard dad's voice again and decided to enter the field of education, where I could be the consummate learner, share my knowledge and encourage students to come to their own conclusions.

So before you purchase your next "I just have to have this" item, take time to read the label, check where it's made, what the contents are and find out what others say about the product. Let that TV jingle be nothing more than a clever tune to remember for Trivial Pursuit. Enjoy commercials for entertainment and leave it at that — purely entertainment. Chase after and purchase what you dream of, rather than someone else's dream of what they think you need to own.

LETTER to the editor

Local officials wrong about camel care

Editor:

Dromedary, one hump, camels are a warm weather animal. Thank you to Charlevoix councilmen Jeff Porter and Greg Stevens, and to all the Charlevoix people who are showing empathy for a living creature. Dromedary, one hump, camels are not allowed outside in the winter, at any accredited zoo. If they did, the zoo would lose accreditation. Camels that can be in cold weather are bactrian, two hump camels; a different species of camel adapted to the high elevation deserts of Asia. Bactrian, two hump camels, grow thick coats of fur and have other adaptations for cold weather.

The Whispering Pines "mobile zoo" camel pictured, is a dromedary camel with no extra fur protection and shouldn't be out in even dry 30 degree weather, let alone the sub-freezing, snowy Charlevoix January! Kirk Elya should be cited for animal cruelty! Dr. Ryan Warnemuende should get new glasses, if he can look at photos of this camel and see "a thick hair coat and being comfortable in the environment." Sick to horses, cows and small animals, Ryan. Call Dr. Ann Duncan, chief veterinarian at the Detroit Zoo, when you are called on to evaluate environmental conditions for a camel; especially when you cannot distinguish how many humps or fur coat. Charlevoix County Animal Control Supervisor Emily Reynolds should also call Dr. Ann Duncan before making judgements about conditions for an animal she cannot have known, since she "found no violations."

The dromedary camel pictured is in the "height of animal cruelty." I salute those Charlevoix residents who recognized this, and tried to make a difference in this animal's life. Thank you.

Leadership Charlevoix County seeks nonprofit status for the future

STAFF REPORT

Mishelle Shooks, Charlevoix County Community Foundation program associate and coordinator of Leadership Charlevoix County, recently presented a check to Charlevoix city manager Rob Straebel and Leadership Charlevoix County Board Chairwoman Dianne Litzengruber to help the leadership group achieve nonprofit status.

Now in its third year, Leadership Charlevoix County cultivates new leaders during the nine-month program by exposing participants to various leaders and services in the community, including governmental, human service agencies, school systems, environmental groups, and more. This year's class numbers 17 people representing a variety of businesses and nonprofits located in Boyne City, Boyne Falls, Charlevoix, and East Jordan.

"We are extremely grateful to the Charlevoix County Community Foundation for their continued financial sup-

As soon as the Chicago & West Michigan Railway arrived in Charlevoix on June 26, 1892, the company brought in a local car that ran between here, Petoskey and Bay View four times a day. This car was known as the "Dummy." It may be noted from the size of the lettering on its side which town the C. & W. M. R. considered to be of greater importance. Just over a decade later, however, that lettering would have to change. The Dummy proved to be so popular its reach was extended to the south as far as Bellaire, with stops at the Belvedere Hotel here in town, Phelps in southern Charlevoix County, Ellsworth, Central Lake, and the tiny settlement of Snowflake between. Bay Shore was added on the north. Round trip from Bay View to Bellaire cost $1, with other rates from 25 cents through 90 cents applying for shorter routes. There are people in both Charlevoix and Petoskey who can still recall riding the rails between the two towns, when traveling to see friends, going on a shopping spree or simply eating out by train rather than automobile was part of the everyday picture.

Local real estate office to join Berkshire Hathaway

A historic change is headed for the face of the real estate industry in Michigan, as Prudential Preferred Properties Network, part of the Prudential Preferred, REALTORS Family of Companies announces that on Feb. 18, it will join the Berkshire Hathaway ranks as Berkshire Hathaway HomeServices Michigan Real Estate across 37 markets.

Steve Fase, broker owner and CEO, said Berkshire Hathaway HomeServices was chosen for its brand reputation, leadership and financial strength.

"The storied Berkshire Hathaway name stands for financial prowess and is respected world-wide," said Fase. "We believe our clients and sales professionals will be proud to represent this revolutionary brand."

The Charlevoix office is Prudential Preferred Properties Network, Northern Michigan, downtown at 203 Bridge St.

Built by Warren Buffet and esteemed for strength, integrity and trust, the Berkshire Hathaway HomeServices brokerage network is among the few organizations entrusted to use the world-renowned Berkshire Hathaway name.

"This is not simply a name change for us, but really an opportunity to bring a new level of quality and innovation to our future. We're merging the heritage and expertise of Prudential and matching it with the investment competency of Berkshire Hathaway," Fase said.

With the resources and technology committed to launching the new real estate brand nationwide, this is a defining moment for the entire industry. Berkshire Hathaway HomeServices Michigan Real Estate is investing significant resources to equip its agents with cutting edge technology to distinguish them in the industry statewide.

Last year was an historic year for Prudential Preferred, REALTORS. Celebrating 60 years in real estate, the brokerage surpassed the monumental benchmark of a billion dollars in closed sales volume for the first time in its history — only the third brokerage in Michigan to reach this level.

Prudential Preferred, REALTORS Family of Companies is headquartered in Grand Rapids and is a full-service brokerage founded in 1953. Family-owned with three generations of involvement, Prudential Preferred, REALTORS operates 37 offices with 550 sales professionals in markets ranging from Charlevoix to the north, Elkhart, Ind., to the south, and also Grand Rapids to Grand Blanc.

Berkshire Hathaway HomeServices, based in Irvine, Calif., is a brand-new real estate brokerage network built for a new era in residential real estate.

Librarian Laura Potter works with the community's children during Saturday play groups.

Library to launch new program

Charlevoix Public Library will present Saturday Play Group: It's a Book Trip.

The group will meet the fourth Saturday of the month at 10:30 a.m. beginning Jan. 25, at the library, 220 W. Clinton St.

It's a Book Trip will have some structure, including a story and song. This fun, active, play time will introduce young children to the library and the more structured story hours. It's a Book Trip will also include lots of time to play with other children.

This play group will meet in the Youth Activity Center and have access to all the library's fun play bins. The play bins include age-appropriate activities for interactive and educational play. The play bins help children meet the statewide core curriculum goals.

For more information about this or other youth programs at the library, call "Miss Laura" Potter at (231) 237-7350, or visit the library at www.charlevoixlibrary.org online.

Shelter needs $25,000 to finish up

SHERI MCWHIRTER-O'DONNELL
Courier editor

The planned nonprofit Joppa House women and children's homeless shelter in Charlevoix is a mere $25,000 away from opening.

The Rev. Ginger Stevens, pastor at Third Day Fellowship in Charlevoix, launched the storefront ministry in 2011. Since then she's worked to bring about a new homeless shelter specifically for women and their children. Now the finish is within sight, she said.

"But we are at a place where we are stalled because we're out of money," Stevens said. "We're hoping for donations because I'd like to have this open in the spring."

Joppa House is expected to join the ranks of other shelters across Northern Michigan — including facilities in Alpena, Cadillac, Gaylord, Petoskey and Traverse City — providing more beds for a growing homeless population.

Third Day Fellowship operates both a food pantry and a drop-in center on Bridge Street in Charlevoix. It's a benevolence ministry that distributes food to needy clients twice a day on Mondays and Thursdays. The goal for the ministry's homeless shelter is to empower women to take financial control of their lives to better raise their children. The facility will offer a sliding-scale day care service in the basement, as well.

Stevens said life skills expected to be taught include finding and keeping a job, maintaining a household, parenting, interpersonal communication and budgeting. Part of Third Day's plans for Joppa House also is to offer day care for perhaps as many as 12 children. Stevens said the main purpose of the day care is for the mothers who live at the house to have care for their children while they are out seeking and in the early stages of holding down employment.

Joppa House is housed within the local Catholic church's old convent house, which authorities relocated a block away to 801 State St. to create the shelter. Original estimates called for the ministry to need $75,000 to entirely put the project together, which did not include operating expenses, Stevens said.

Much of the largest expenses came in making the shelter compliant with the Americans with Disabilities Act, including a barrier-free shower, toilet and more on the entry level. The rest of the shelter includes five upstairs bedrooms, an upstairs bathroom, along with an innkeeper's quarters, living room and kitchen on the main floor. Finally, the basement will contain the day care and a laundry room.

At this point, it's a matter of finishing touches, Stevens said.

"We could have it done in just a few weeks to tie up these loose ends if we had the money," Stevens said while walking around the nearly finished shelter building. "Every day we're not open is a day we can't help someone."

More information about Joppa House is available at www.facebook.com/JoppaHouse online, or by calling Third Day at (231) 547-8040.

Charlevoix named a Michigan Main Street community

Charlevoix is among the cities chosen by state officials to be new associate level members of the Michigan Main Street program.

Scott Woosley, executive director of the Michigan State Housing Development Authority, recently announced eight Michigan communities were selected to take part in the program designed to promote and enhance growth and commerce along communities' primary streets.

The communities will receive training during the next year regarding the basics of the four-point approach to the Main Street program, including organization, promotion, economic restructuring and design. The training will be done by staff from the Michigan Main Street Center and select and master level Main Street communities.

"Michigan's economy cannot thrive without vibrant downtowns," Woosley said. "This program creates opportunities for redevelopment, placemaking and economic growth in downtowns across our state."

The Michigan Main Street program ties in with Gov. Snyder's placemaking efforts to help create vibrant communities in Michigan. These efforts are based on numerous studies showing that investing in place creates vibrant centers and downtowns, making the state economically stronger.

The seven other communities to this year receive this designation are Allegan, Cassopolis, nearby Central Lake in Antrim County, Dundee, Kalkaska and Lapeer.

Charlevoix sewer rate hike discussed at hearing

Wastewater treatment plant upgrades require more funds

SHERI MCWHIRTER-O'DONNELL
Courier editor

Charlevoix's aging wastewater plant is poised to cost the city upwards of $11 million in state-mandated upgrades to lessen the amount of effluent ammonia discharged into Lake Michigan following treatment. And that price tag is going to cost city residents in their utility bills — but just how much remains unknown.

It's all thanks to cold Lake Michigan temperatures during winter months.

"It's that coldness that prevents the biology functioning properly," said Mark Prein, the consulting engineer for the city's project to improve the wastewater treatment plant.

Lake Michigan water is not directly used in the wastewater treatment process, but the big lake is the city's municipal water supply. The cold winter water never warms enough — even after being used by households and businesses across the community — to allow for the chemical reactions needed to treat the sanitary sewer-sourced flow. The biological process isn't hampered in summertime, but winter effluent ammonia rates remain unacceptable, according to state standards.

"It's all regulated, so we don't have an option," said Steve Teunis, plant superintendent.

Multiple Charlevoix City Council members on Monday afternoon attended a public tour of the facility led by Prein, including Shirley Gibson, Leon Perron and Lyle Gennett. Additionally, expected incoming council member Peggy Brennan attended with her husband, Terry. (See front page story on council vacancy.)

So far, city officials completed required financial and feasibility assessments by the state's September 2013 deadline. However, the clock is ticking for the rest of it.

Charlevoix has until October 2015 to build facilities to meet state standards, then an additional two months to bring ammonia discharge rates into compliance. City authorities originally built the plant in 1972.

The city's financial consultant, Dawn Lund, spoke at a Monday evening meeting about the various ways to pay for the state-required brick and mortar construction. She noted, though, that the wastewater plant currently operates at a loss because the city kept sewer rates rather low, why the system has not been fully funded "perhaps at the rate it should be."

"The wastewater department has had several increases in the past few years to build toward financial targets. The fund is seeing cash move on an upward trend but more increase would be needed to fully fund depreciation and meet financial targets," Lund said.

Suggested options for the city's 2014-2015 sewer rates include:

— A nearly 71-percent hike the first year, followed by 3.5-percent hikes for four years afterward;

— A 35-percent increase the first and second year, followed by 2.5-percent hikes for three years afterward;

— A 24.5-percent hike for the first three years, followed by a 2-percent jump for two years afterward; or — Five consecutive years with a 14.5-percent increase.

Charlevoix's solution to this situation will continue to be determined by city leaders throughout the 2014-2015 city budget process.

No members of the public offered comments during Monday's public hearing about possible sewer rate changes, though one man asked a question about the mathematics of depreciation.

Phyllis A. Block, 97

Phyllis A. Block, 97, of Charlevoix, passed away Tuesday, Jan. 21, 2014, at her home. She was born March 18, 1916, in Boyne City, the daughter of Charles and Mercy (Jarnan) Woerfel, and attended school in Boyne City and East Jordan. On Dec. 25, 1936, she married James Block. Most of their married life was spent in Grand Rapids, retiring to Charlevoix.

Phyllis loved gardening, joined the Charlevoix Area Garden Club in 1982, and in 2007, became a life member. She was an accredited Flower Show Judge, held a First Instructor's Certificate in Ikehana, and belonged to Ikehana International.

Phyllis was a member of the First Congregational Church in Charlevoix, and the Order of the Eastern Star Chapter 72, Charlevoix, both of which were an important part of her life. She also loved playing bridge. Her willingness to volunteer was one of her greatest qualities.

She is survived by her daughter, Linda (Robert) Cousins of Grand Rapids; grandchildren, James (Venus) Snoeyink of Valparaiso, Ind., David (Janet) Snoeyink of Wyoming, Mich., Todd (Melanie) McNitt of East Jordan, Devin (Bill) Wise of Auburn, Dana Lenhart of Wyoming, Kyle (Eric) Retan of Grandville; 15, great-grandchildren; one great-great-granddaughter. Phyllis was preceded in death by her beloved husband, James in 1995; daughter Janet Lewis; son-in-law, Kenneth Snoeyink; grandson, Michael Snoeyink; brother, George Woerfel.

Funeral will be at 2 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 25, at the First Congregational Church in Charlevoix, where friends may meet Phyllis' family beginning at 1 p.m. The Rev. Neil Wilson will officiate and Charlevoix Chapter No. 72, O.E.S. will conduct a memorial service.

In lieu of flowers, please consider the Down Syndrome Association of West Michigan, 233 Fulton St. E #108, Grand Rapids, MI 49503, or Just For Us, (for breast cancer support), c/o Margo Todd, 888 Grand Ave., Petoskey, MI 49770.

Eugenia "Genie" Vreeland, 90

Eugenia "Genie" Anne Vreeland, 90, of Beaver Island, passed away Sunday, Dec. 29, 2013, in Charlevoix. She was born May 16, 1923, in Grand Rapids, the daughter of Andrew and Anna (Geldersma) Setsma, and graduated from Ottawa Hills High School in 1941. She attended Western Michigan University, and later taught high school. She retired from the Kindel Furniture Company in Grand Rapids, where she wrote ad copy.

On Feb. 14, 1952, she married Harold W. "Bucky" Vreeland in Caledonia. Bucky and Genie moved permanently to Beaver Island in 1980, where they had been part-time residents since 1956. For 16 years, they had spent half of each year in Feakle, Ireland. They were members of Holy Cross Church on Beaver Island.

Bucky preceded Genie in death on Dec.

21, 2005. She was also preceded in death by her sister, Ruth J. Korhom.

Funeral will be in the spring of 2014 at the Holy Cross Church on Beaver Island. Burial will be in Holy Cross Cemetery. Contributions may be made to Holy Cross Catholic Church, the Beaver Island Game Club, or to the charity of choice.

The Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix is handling the arrangements.

Tickets now available for State of Community event

The Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce will host the fourth annual State of the Community address from 7-9 a.m. Friday, Feb. 7, at Castle Farms.

This year's event will feature five speakers recapping the accomplishments and challenges that the community faced in 2013, and will take a look at future plans for 2014. Presenting sponsor Berkshire Hathaway — formally Prudential Preferred Properties — will also give a short report about the major changes within its company.

Speakers at the community address include: Steve Seely, chairman of the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce; either Norm Carlson Jr. or Roh Straebel from the city of Charlevoix; Jeff Crouse, assistant superintendent for Char-Em Intermediate School District; Lyn Jenks, chief executive officer for Charlevoix Area Hospital; and Bill McDonough, representing the community of Beaver Island.

"This is a great event for anybody who wants to learn more about our community," said Bethany Pearson, Char-levoix's community economic development director. "It's exciting to see how much we can accomplish in a single year and how we can work together to make our community a better place."

Additionally, the chamber will present six members of the community with its annual awards. Awards include Business of the Year, New Business of the Year, Young Professional of the Year, Best Customer Service, Ambassador of the Year and Citizen of the Year.

Admission is $30 per person or $230 for a table of eight. Tickets include a catered, gourmet breakfast by Grey Gables, and a community organizational booklet with more than 40 reports from different community sectors that impact Charlevoix.

The general public is encouraged to attend and reservations are encouraged by calling the chamber at (231) 547-2101, or send email to ferguson@charlevoix.org online. Tickets are sold on a first-come, first-served basis, and are limited to 200 people admitted.

County's medical examiner retiring

STEVE ZUCKER
Northern Michigan review

After nearly four decades serving in perhaps the most somber position in county government, Charlevoix County Chief Medical Examiner Dr. Reed Freidinger recently announced he will be stepping down from the post later this year.

At its regular semi-monthly meeting Wednesday, the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners discussed Freidinger's letter, dated Jan. 6, in which he gave notice of his intent to leave the medical examiner's position effective July 1.

The board voted to accept Freidinger's resignation and to post the position now in hopes of having a new doctor in the post prior to his departure so there is no gap in medical examiner coverage.

Freidinger said he's been a county medical examiner for 39 years and most of those as chief medical examiner. He explained that the job of the medical examiner is "to evaluate unexpected deaths, violent deaths and deaths while incarcerated."

In his letter, Freidinger, who was not at Wednesday's county board of commissioners meeting, thanked the board for its support and noted that he is "proud that there have been no major issues to the board in reference to the medical examiner."

He also pointed to the value that he has found in having four "good doctors" as deputy medical examiners to assist in his duties. The deputy medical examiners include Dr. Michael Harmeling, Dr. Catherine Wonski, Dr. Edward Newcomb and Dr. Mitchell Carey. Dr. Freidinger noted that the deputies are valuable because not only are they spread throughout the county, thus often reducing re-

Gibson wants to cut chamber funding

SHERI MCWHIRTER-O'DONNELL
Courier editor

Not everyone in Charlevoix city government believes their public coffers should contribute to the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce — at least not a carte blanche check.

Charlevoix City Council member Shirley Gibson said during a recent city budget work session that she doesn't believe the city should fork over any cash to the chamber organization. But not everyone agreed with her.

"I don't think we should subsidize the chamber. They get that building for $1 and I think that's enough of a subsidy," Gibson said.

It's true the chamber does rent from the city for $1 a year its current home at 109 Mason St. in downtown Charlevoix.

Gibson raised her objection funding the chamber when the budget work session came to a $6,700 line item in the proposed 2014-2015 city general fund budget. The chamber's mission is to serve as an energizing force in Charlevoix, striving to unite residents, retail and industrial business to promote commerce and community betterment.

But at least city council member Lyle Gennett disagreed with Gibson. "I think we need to work together," he said, adding "so long as it benefits Charlevoix."

Bethany Pearson, the city's new community economic development director, who formerly worked for the chamber in various capacities, said she wanted to play devil's advocate and reminded city officials that the chamber does not charge dues to the city for any of its multiple city facilities or programs that are regularly promoted. Gibson retorted that the chamber doesn't pay rent, either.

Roh Straebel, city manager, said the city has annually dedicated $6,700 to the chamber for many years for promotion and marketing efforts.

"Years ago, we used to give the chamber a whole lot more than that," said Norm Carlson Jr., mayor.

Carlson asked whether city leaders want to begin charging the chamber monthly rent. Another idea was to from now on bring all chamber bills before the council for approval. Straebel said the latter policy can easily be implemented.

Steve Seely, chamber board chairman, said he strongly believes in the benefits the chamber provides to the city and the entire surrounding community.

"We have a good story to tell. We just have to put the facts and figures in front of people," Seely said.

Horse Liniment Erases Pain

THALEAH, FL. — An ingredient often used to treat inflammation in racehorses' legs, is now back on the market in its original doctor recommended clinical strength formula.

According to a national drug store survey, the formula at one time became so popular that it rose to the top of pharmacy sales for topical pain relievers. But the company marketing the product at the time changed the formula and sales plummeted. One of the inventors of the original formula has brought it back to the market under the trade name ARTH ARREST and says it can relieve pain for millions.

ARTH ARREST works by a dual mechanism where one ingredient relieves pain immediately, while a second ingredient seeks out and destroys the pain messenger signal before it can be sent to the brain. Considered a medical miracle by some, the ARTH ARREST formula is useful in the treatment of painful disorders ranging from minor aches and pains to more serious conditions such as arthritis, bursitis, tendonitis, & more.

ARTH ARREST is available in a convenient roll-on applicator at pharmacies without a prescription or call 1-877-581-1502. Now at:

Saxophone quartet to play Jan. 26

Northern Michigan will have an opportunity to hear the Charlevoix Saxophone Quartet, as part of the Great Lakes Chamber Orchestra Sunday Series Recitals.

The quartet will perform at 4 p.m. on Sunday, Jan. 26, at the First Congregational United Church of Christ in Charlevoix, 101 State St. Admission is free.

Margie Guyot (Alto Sax), Judy Willey (Alto Sax), Claire Rasmussen (Tenor Sax) and Gail Baldrige (Baritone Sax) came together as the Charlevoix Saxophone Quartet in January 2010. Jayne Winchester, who is also the first clarinetist for the Great Lakes Chamber Orchestra, will be joining the quartet on saxophone.

The group met during their participation in Charlevoix's Pine Lake Winds and shared a common desire to showcase the versatility of the saxophone. Since that time these women have provided North-em Michigan entertainment for art gallery openings, holiday gatherings, weddings, church sponsored events and community entertainment such as the Venetian Festival and Petoskey Rocks.

The Charlevoix Saxophone Quartet developed their musical style to include classical, Americana tunes, swing, blues and Motown, each contributing to a unique blended sound. The coming concert explores these musical styles, by including music by Handel, Debussy, Stan Kenton, Astor Piazzolla, Freddie Mercury and others.

The program will also include songs of love and loss performed by soprano Jamie Platte and pianist Peter Sims.

The Sunday series provides the community the opportunity to experience an intimate musical event. Chamber music has a long history of musicians gathering to play and sing for one another and a group of good friends. The programs are presented free of charge with the support of the Roger and Peggy Dicken Schwer Fund, administered by the Petoskey-Harbor Springs Area Community Foundation.

The Great Lakes Chamber Orchestra produces live orchestral performances that provide entertainment, education and inspiration for Northern Michigan. Support for the orchestra is provided by the Michigan Council for Arts and Cultural Affairs, the National Endowment for the Arts, the Petoskey-Harbor Springs Area Community Foundation, the Bay Harbor Foundation, the Charlevoix County Community Foundation, Meijer and hundreds of individual patrons of the arts.

Laughter at the library Jan. 25

Laughter is the best medicine. But, in today's high pressure, high tension, and competitive world, laughter is fast disappearing. Join Tiffany from Yoga Roots in a Laughter Yoga class 2-3 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 25, at the Charlevoix Public Library. Laughter Yoga is a breakthrough laughter delivery system that enables a person to laugh continuously for 15 to 20 minutes. It is a powerful exercise routine fast sweeping the world and is a complete well-being workout.

Earlier, people laughed at least 18 minutes a day, but nowadays we laugh not more than 6 minutes per day, despite the huge increase in the standard of living. Researchers have proven that laughter has the ability to unwind the negative effects of stress; the catalyst for many of our health problems. It has been scientifically shown that laughter lowers blood pressure, relaxes muscles, improves blood circulation, increases oxygen levels in the body, elevates mood, brings hope, enhances communication and most importantly boosts the immune system, which is the master key for maintaining good health. But, until now there was no reliable and effective system to deliver laughter. Humor was the only tool available, and it is not reliable and seldom leads to continuous hearty laughter.

Laughter Yoga is the brainchild of Dr. Madan Kataria, an Indian physician from Mumbai who started the first laughter club in 1995. Today, it has become a worldwide phenomenon with more than 6,000 social laughter clubs in 60 countries. It combines unconditional laughter with yogic breathing, called Pranayama. The concept of Laughter Yoga is based on a scientific fact that the body cannot differentiate between fake and real laughter. One gets the same physiological and psychological benefits. Join the craze of healthy living through laughing by attending this session. For information about this or other library events, visit www.charlevoix-library.org online or call (231) 237-7340.

Tax hike sought for Charlevoix refuse program for PDF of refuse budget online.

City officials recommend in the coming fiscal year a 0.1-mill increase in the refuse tax — intended to generate an extra $23,000 — to cover increasing costs for leaf and brush pickup, plus spring cleanup services for city residents.

The program annually ran a budget deficit since 2010, said public works superintendent Pat Elliott, and even with the increased tax dollars, officials still predict a $2,100 shortfall that would be made up with transferred funds from the general fund, as usual. City officials discussed the problem and several possible solutions at last week's five-hour budget work session.

"When we talked about cutting this back before, we had kind of a revolt," joked mayor Norman Carlson Jr., explaining how this service is widely appreciated by city residents.

Elliott discussed a couple of possible options for adjusting the program, such as limiting residents to four biodegradable bags of leaves and brush weekly, or perhaps scheduling pickups by neighborhood. As it is now, city employees simply go collect the leaves and brush whenever and wherever the piles show up.

"This has never been tried, but I think it could work," Elliott said about a five-day neighborhood pickup rotation.

That avenue could save the city between $20,000-30,000 annually, he said.

A third option is to simply eliminate the service, Elliott said, which would save around $220,000 each year. But that choice is not recommended, officials underscored.

"All that stuff if going to end up in somebody's yard," said Mike Spencer, city planner.

Other options are eliminating compost and chipping, but keeping refuse services, which would save $170,000. Or, allowing citizens to haul their own compost materials would keep $120,000 in city coffers.

Part of the problem is eliminating abuses by some property owners or their tenants, officials said, such as putting out excessive amounts of leaves, brush and refuse for collection by taxpayer-funded workers, often more often than policy allows. City council member Jeff Porter suggested officials issue tickets to residents who violate the city's refuse program rules on the first offense — no warnings — but Spencer argued it makes for better public relations to instead ticket repeat offenders and work with first-time offenders with education efforts.

The tickets would be considered a civil infraction, with fines starting at $50, then up-ticking by $25 for each additional offense to a maximum $100 fine.

Carlson wrapped up the conversation by suggesting a combination of ideas including maintaining the same services, increasing the tax as recommended, while also boosting education efforts and the issuance of tickets to rule-breakers.

No consensus decisions at the budget work session are binding, as the refuse millage rate will be finalized through the city's 2014-2015 budget process.

EAST JORDAN

Annual Sno-Blast set to blast back into town

Snowmobile-themed event launches other activities, too

BROOKS VANDERBUSH
Courier contributor

East Jordan's ever-popular Sno-Blast Festival makes a triumphant return in two weeks from Feb. 2-9. The events run the gamut, from Super Bowl Sunday fun to the Blessing of the Sleds and much more, and folks certainly are gearing up for a hit of chilly fun in East Jordan.

"East Jordan has been the home of a winter event for many years," said Shannon Fender, of the East Jordan Area Chamber of Commerce. "The event was started by a local group of snowmobilers — The Jordan Valley Trailblazers. The event started as a snowmobile race and poker run. The festival was taken under the umbrella of the East Jordan Area Chamber of Commerce over 20 years ago."

The chamber worked with East Jordan Sno-Mobilers Inc. to add other events, such as the Sno-Sculpture Contest, softball in the snow, a grand parade, chili supper, frozen pancake toss, a poster contest for third- and fourth-grade students at East Jordan Elementary School, antique and classic snowmobile show, crowning of the Belle of the Blizzard and Winter Knight and, new this year, a blessing of the sleds event and indoor family games.

"My favorite event is the frozen pancake toss," Fender said. "This event came about when the Sno-Mobilers Club had some leftover pancakes from their weekly Sunday Sno-Lovers Breakfast and they started tossing the pancakes around the kitchen and someone suggested they freeze them each week so other people could enjoy tossing them as well."

The annual winter-themed festival was born out of that amusing tradition.

"The Sno-Blast gives people a reason to get out and enjoy some fun family events in the snow and cold weather after being inside for so long," Fender said. "We offer several indoor events as well because not everyone likes the cold and snow."

The Sno-Blast certainly is a welcome bit of fun and diversion near the end of a Northern Michigan winter. Community camaraderie and good times await those who venture out-of-doors.

"The Blessing of the Sleds should be a great time for snowmobilers to have their sleds blessed for the winter riding season," Fender said. "Father Jim Gardiner will do the blessing at the East Jordan Sno-Mobilers clubhouse located on Mount Bliss Road at 10 a.m. sharp."

Additionally, Softball in the Snow is another great event to watch, she said.

"There's nothing more fun than watching the players dig through the snow to find the colored softball after it has been hit and to see them try to run in the deep snow around the bases," she said, laughing.

Charlevoix's Gustin named recycler of the year

Diane Gustin of Charlevoix has been awarded the Charlevoix County Recycler of the Year Award for 2013.

Diane has been a member on the Charlevoix County Recycling Committee for 10 years. The Committee was dissolved at the last county board meeting of 2013.

"It has been a pleasure and an honor working with Charlevoix County," Gustin said.

In the last 10 years, Gustin contributed to a strong recycling progression. She compiled a list of several companies to bid on taking fluorescent and mercury bulbs, reducing the price the county pays by thousands of dollars a year.

Gustin was part of the reward program for several years. The committee passed out reward coupons at all county sites to those who recycled. The coupons were good at local retailers for the recyclers' efforts to keep the facilities clean and running efficiently. McDonald's, Darlene's, Suhway and other businesses participated.

Gustin is best known for videotaping governmental board and committee meetings and creating programs for Public Access Channel 97. She helped create Facebook, YouTube and websites for Charlevoix Recycling, and when former county commissioner Bob Drebenstedt couldn't attend a meeting because he was called overseas to be with his son, he was able to watch the board meeting online.

For the last four years, with support from the Garden Club and the Recycling Committee, Gustin hosted a special spring collection day for plastic plant containers. East Jordan Plastics collected the containers and recycled them, keeping jobs in Michigan.

Gustin assisted in helping the county save $30,000 a year in expenses for the two household hazardous waste collection events. Rather than charging for waste removal, the new vendor paid the county approximately $800 a year for the county's electronics.

"There is money to be made in recycling," Gustin said. "The county owes due diligence to the taxpayer. A great example of this is when the county commissioners took over the recycling haulers bid."

Frank Shaler, maintenance director for Charlevoix County, credits Gustin with championing "single-stream recycling."

"Thank you, Diane, for making it easier for everyone in the county to recycle," he said. "Diane also arranged for almost 30,000 pounds of paint to be picked up by E Paint, saving the county over $14,000 a year."

E Paint recycles the paint and sells it in stores such as Habitat for Humanity ReStore.

In the future, Gustin said she would like to see more recycling containers in local parks. Another project in the making is the collection of textiles and clothing from Beaver Island. Such textiles will be taken out of the waste stream and given to the Salvation Army to be sold, sent overseas, used for rags or even be recycled. A future goal is to see the textile program used across the entire county.

Gustin said she plans to continue volunteering with the recycling program.

"Diane has been an inspiration and tireless worker. Thank you for your hard work and vision. You have been a beacon advocate for the Charlevoix recycling community," said Shirley Roloff, former county commissioner and founder of the recycling program in Charlevoix.

Kelly Martin of the Charlevoix Conservation District is the new recycling coordinator and can be reached at (231) 582-6193.

"It is concluded that the requirements of the Incompatible Public Offices Act) include the same person from being a Charlevoix County Commissioner and City Clerk for the City of Charlevoix where the County presently provides election-related goods and services to the city at the city's expense while looking to the city and the city clerk for the care and keeping of the county's election equipment that is used and used by the city clerk for the administration of elections held in the city," said Matthew Schneider, chief legal counsel in the attorney general's office.

Sullivan said those are his marching orders.

"I'm a man of my word and I will abide by the attorney general's opinion," Sullivan said Monday.

He just hasn't made his choice yet.

Sullivan told city leaders at Monday's council meeting that before he makes his decision, he wanted to listen to the conversation during the city's compensation commission set for 4 p.m. Thursday in the main floor conference room at city hall, 210 State St., Charlevoix. The outcome of that session remained unknown at Courier press time.

City council members spoke at length about what they want included in the job description for city clerk, including a reduction in pay, a range of required work hours, time sheet submissions and a set office work schedule. City policy calls for the salary of incoming city clerks to be 90-percent of the outgoing clerk, making it about $37,400 for Sullivan, should he take the seat.

"That's way too much money," said Shirley Gibson, 3rd Ward council member, adding the city also will incur certain training expenses to teach Sullivan the job.

However, Mayor Norm Carlson Jr. reminded council members they don't set salaries. That duty lies with the five-member compensation commission, he said.

"Council does not control what the clerk makes," he said.

City Manager Rob Straebel concluded the conversation by suggesting officials consider a city charter change to make the city clerk position an appointed one, rather than an elected position. He explained how city coffers drained by thousands spent on legal opinions about the state's incompatibility of public offices law during recent months, all while city leaders could have long ago appointed somebody with the appropriate skill set, were it an appointed city job like his.

On a related topic, Straebel later during the meeting discussed the city's options when it comes to changing the charter. Either the city can elect a charter commission to take on the task, which he said can be a "lengthy, protracted" process, or city leaders can formulate amendments regarding the city clerk job description, and other issues, to then put before city voters.

Council members agreed by consensus to take the amendments route in order to change the city charter, and each is expected to return with suggested changes at the Feb. 17 meeting.

addendum be added to the contract to allow for an additional year extension for the contract. The language of that requested addendum is expected to be considered for approval at the next board meeting set for 6 p.m. Monday, Feb. 17, at Round Lake Educational Center, 108 E. Garfield Ave., Charlevoix.

Board approves $60,000 in bond dollars for transportation

Members of the Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education voted 6-1 to allow up to $60,000 of bond money to be spent on support vehicles for the district.

Secretary/treasurer Valerie Snyder cast the sole dissenting vote against the measure after she voiced her concerns about the requested process to buy vehicles with taxpayer dollars. She questioned whether it is proper for the board to authorize public money being spent on vehicles outside of the normal bidding process.

"I remember buses in the bond request, but not support vehicles, though I understand the need," Snyder said.

Superintendent Robert Gendron said the request allows for district employees to actively seek the purchase of a passenger van and other transportation-related items, though any purchase more than $20,000 must return to the board for consideration. He said he sought direction from the board regarding the use of $60,000 on support transportation line items.

"I want to make sure this is the way we want to move," Gendron said.

Gordon Russell, transportation supervisor, said a lot of district support vehicles are purchased used and good deals don't always wait a month for the next board meeting.

"I think we should spend money that we've got," said Dick Joseph, board member.

Snyder said knowing what is yet to be spent on school buses, she questioned if that meant spending what remains of the bond money on transportation and said she's not ready to agree to that yet.

On a related note, board member Bo Boss said he believes any vehicle expected to be used to transport students — such as the passenger van in question — should be purchased new.

Also this week, Charlevoix School Board unanimously voted to elect Kevin Pearsall president, Joseph vice-president, and Snyder as secretary/treasurer.

that notion in favor of choosing their own candidate.

Council members Leon Perron, Shirley Gibson and Jeff Porter all voted against accepting applications from interested city residents after the discussion about the replacement process and public perceptions of council actions. In fact, Perron suggested the council immediately appoint former city shade tree commission member Peggy Brennan to promptly fill the empty chair.

But Strachel said he suggested an application method — with a quick Jan. 29 deadline — to promote transparency in city government and publicly offer the chance to serve. Then Carlson bolstered that argument by voicing his concern that a speedy replacement may look as if the appointment was "done behind closed doors."

On the contrary, Porter said asking for volunteers is not the best way to seek a replacement for Stevens. In the past, remaining council members recruited replacements which tends to garner more qualified candidates, he argued, adding that volunteers should instead seek election the regular way on the ballot in spring.

"You don't think anyone else should have the opportunity to apply?" Carlson asked.

"They can file their petitions in May," Gibson said.

Typically, replacement candidates surfaced via conversations with existing council members, officials said. And additionally, Perron argued it's unlikely any additional candidates will step forward on their own, suggesting it's widely known Stevens planned a move outside the city and anyone interested in assuming his public role would have spoken up by now.

"The moving van was up there 10 days ago," Perron said.

Council member Lyle Gennett said that like Carlson, he worries about public criticism if they rush to action, and would rather wait to ensure the situation is well-known public information disseminated by the media — "for the sake of doing it," he said. Council member Shane Cole agreed, saying Brennan would be a great fit, but waiting for the next meeting would at least be transparent for the public.

Former council member

Gabe Campbell spoke during the public meeting about how this situation has always been handled in the past.

"I think we should do what we have always done," Campbell said. "In my opinion, it should be done tonight."

Stevens also spoke about his departure and his desire for it to be well-planned for, but clarified that no moving van was ever parked outside his home in recent days or weeks. He stored a trailer on his city property for the last couple of years, but that had nothing to do with the move, Stevens said.

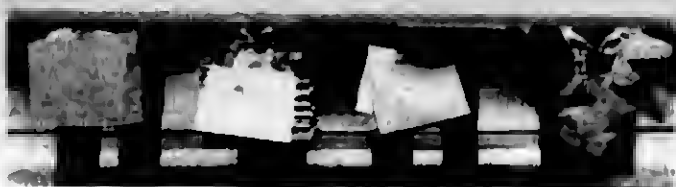

Ultimately, the city council did not appoint a replacement for Stevens, but also voted not to allow city officials to accept applications for the post. Council members are expected to revisit the issue at their regularly scheduled Feb. 3 session.

"He's been outstanding," Lasater said. "He was always there when you needed him. Charlevoix County has been very lucky to have him."

Freidinger also provided his annual report to the board on the deaths that happened in the county during the past year. He reported that there were 205 deaths in Charlevoix County in 2013. He reported that 92 occurred at home, 70 in nursing homes, 11 at the Charlevoix Area Hospital, 13 in the hospital's emergency room and 18 at adult foster care homes.

Freidinger reported that 34 of deaths were medical examiner cases and seven were sent on to pathology for a more accurate determination of the cause of death for legal reasons. He reported six deaths by gunshot and one by hanging. He reported five accidental deaths, two by traffic crash, two by methadone overdose and one by alcohol overdose. He reported no homicides.

GRAYLING

BOYS' BASKETBALL

Rayders take OT victory in Grayling; fall to St. Francis

DREW KOCHANNY
Northern Michigan Review

Charlevoix sophomore Austin Putman had a career-high 26 points and pulled down 15 rebounds as the Rayders earned a Lake Michigan Conference overtime victory, 71-68, over Grayling on Friday.

Rayder guard Shane Sutherland made a lay up with five seconds remaining in the fourth quarter to push the game into overtime where Charlevoix scored 17 points to pull in the win.

The Rayders led 29-26 at the half, then trailed by two points, 40-38, at the end of the third quarter. With the Rayders down 54-52, Sutherland would tie the game and give Charlevoix a chance to bring home a win in overtime.

Also leading Charlevoix on the night, Justin Pearl scored 11 points, Sutherland added 10 points and Nick Plude scored nine points.

For Grayling, Tyler McCalman scored 18 points and Geoff Wilson scored 16 points.

On Monday in Traverse City, a late push from the Charlevoix boys' basketball team would be too little, too late, as the Rayders fell to Traverse City St. Francis, 76-65.

The Rayders, now 3-7 overall, 2-4 in league play, trailed 22-12 after the first quarter with St. Francis center Noah Phillips scoring 18 of the Gladiators' 22 first quarter points.

By halftime, the Gladiators' lead was stretched to 40-31.

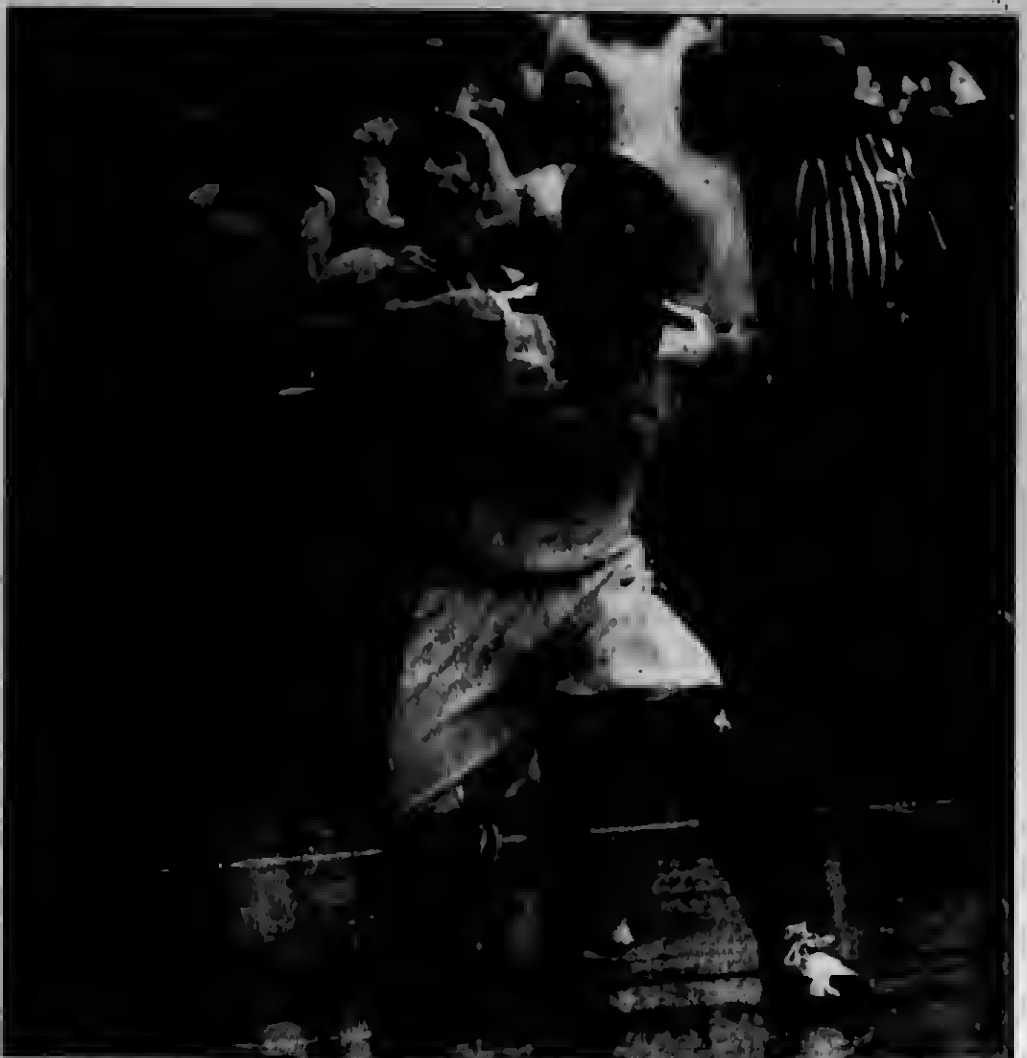

Despite the loss, Charlevoix coach Bret Erskine was impressed with his team.

"We played really hard, our effort was great, we just made some costly mistakes," Erskine said. "Other than that, it was a good game. I'm proud of the guys."

At the end of the third quarter, St. Francis held a 56-45 lead, but the Rayders would trim the gap to six points early in the fourth, before the Gladiators closed the door thanks to late turnovers from Charlevoix.

Sutherland led the Rayders with 15 points, while Putman scored 11 points and Nate Moon, 10 points.

Phillips led St. Francis, 2-5, 1-4, with 31 points, while Byron Bullough added 20 points.

GIRLS' BASKETBALL

Rayder girls top Grayling, 52-49; Boss leads team

KURT GRANGOOD
Northern Michigan Review

GRAYLING — Charlevoix junior Madeline Boss earned her fifth double-double of the season to lead the Rayders with 22 points, 14 rebounds and five steals during a Lake Michigan Conference win over Grayling, 52-49, on Friday.

Charlevoix jumped out to an early 14-13 lead to end the first quarter.

Grayling battled back, however, to close out the second quarter with a narrow 26-25 lead.

"We were able to take care of the ball better in the second half," Charlevoix coach Liz Shaw said. "Grayling likes to press and we were able to break it in the third and fourth quarters."

The Rayders would end the third quarter with a three-point advantage, 42-39.

Also for Charlevoix, Kelsey Engstrom and Gabby Gray

each scored eight points and had three steals, while Kourtney Putman added six rebounds and Ellie Way had six assists.

On Monday in Traverse City, Boss scored 12 points and grabbed eight rebounds during a Lake Michigan Conference loss to Traverse City St. Francis, 51-30.

St. Francis held the lead at each quarter break which included 18-9 at halftime and 35-15 at the end of the third quarter.

"St. Francis applied a lot of pressure," Shaw said. "We could not adapt which caused a lot of turnovers for us."

For St. Francis, 9-2 overall, 6-0 league, Sarah Carney scored 15 points and Suzanne Britten added nine.

Also for Charlevoix, Kourtney Putman scored five points while Gabby Gray had three steals and two assists.

Charlevoix is 5-5 overall, 3-3 in league.

WRESTLING

Rayders take second at tourney; Cesaro places first overall

STEVE FOLEY
Northern Michigan Review

The Charlevoix High School varsity wrestling team placed second at the 11-team annual Josh Chartier Memorial Wrestling tournament.

West Branch Ogema Heights won the tournament title, while the Rayders were second followed by Shepherd, Whittemore-Prescott, Mio, Alpena, Warren Fitzgerald, Pinconning, Houghton Lake, Elkaska and Roscommon.

For the Rayders, senior Austin Cesaro placed first overall at 135 pounds as he defeated Gerrit Gage of Pinconning in the finals, 14-13.

Also for Charlevoix, senior Jake Novotny, 145, and freshman Camden Alden, 112, each placed second, while junior Sam Hovic, 160, and sophomore Mick Hinkle, 189, placed third.

Finishing fourth was freshman Tyler McCallum, 119, and sophomore Sam Fuess,

FENDER-BENDERS

That Will Make You Chuckle... Read On!

With the thousands of fender-benders that occur each year, police officers and insurance companies are bound to hear a few crazy stories. Keep in mind that many of these statements are made while the person filing the report is still in a state of shock and when nerves are on-edge. But that doesn't make them any less amusing!

The accident was caused by a small man, in a small car, with a very big mouth.

That telephone pole just hit me head-on!

An invisible car came out of nowhere, hit my vehicle and then disappeared.

I was going home but went to the wrong house and hit a tree that didn't belong to me.

The truck backed up into my windshield and into my wife's face.

I moved over to the side of the road, glanced at my mother-in-law, and ended up in the ditch.

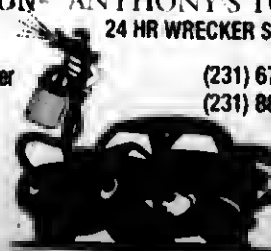

I signed the accident report but it doesn't count because I wasn't wearing my glasses and couldn't make out a single word of what I had just read.

Between eating a sandwich, changing the radio station and answering the cell phone, I momentarily lost my concentration.

From minor dents to major body repairs, we'll get your car back in shape.

Diocese of Gaylord

Diocese of Gaylord Catholic Schools MISSION STATEMENT

The Catholic Schools of the Diocese of Gaylord will work together to provide a faith-centered Catholic Education rooted in the Gospel Message and evidenced in Worship of God, and Works of service to others.

The mission and intent of Catholic schools in the Diocese of Gaylord is to provide a distinctly Catholic education and an environment with the highest standards of academic excellence for all who participate in the life of our school communities. As we look to the future of our Catholic schools, we must remember the words of Jesus as He sent His disciples into the world to "go and teach" and to "make disciples of all nations...teaching them to observe all I have commanded you."

St. Mary School PHILOSOPHY

St. Mary Catholic School is a Faith Community — students, parents, staff, parishioners and friends. Teachers, in partnership with parents, are dedicated to providing the spiritual and academic development of each child.

Each person is a child of God, a unique and gifted individual. The curriculum is designed to nurture creativity, academic excellence, and spiritual, physical and emotional growth.

We instill responsibility, respect and compassion for all people. We are committed to making our students aware of social issues while providing the foundation and experiences necessary to be living examples of the Gospel

St. Mary School MISSION STATEMENT

The St. Mary Catholic School community empowers students to grow spiritually, academically, artistically, and physically so they may experience, understand and live their responsibilities to God, family, community and self.

Catholic Schools Week ~ January 26-February 1 2014 Theme: Catholic Schools Raise the Standards

This year's theme, "Catholic Schools: Communities of Faith, Knowledge and Service", expresses our school's focus on faith development, academic excellence and dedication to community service. We have planned a variety of activities to promote this theme in our school.

Sullivan's decision:

Declines city clerk's post, opts to retain BOC seat

STEVE ZUCKER
NORTHERN MICHIGAN REVIEW

Charlevoix resident Larry Sullivan has decided to decline his election to the post of Charlevoix City Clerk and retain his seat on the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners.

Sullivan

Sullivan made the announcement Friday, and issued a letter in which he explained the reason for his decision as follows:

"Making this decision has been difficult on both my family and I. Many have advised me to take the job which pays the most (city clerk's position). My running for city clerk was based upon my belief that I could legally fill both positions. Since I am unable to do so, in my heart, I believe that I must fulfill my pledge when running for county commissioner to do the best I could in representing the residents of both Charlevoix Township and the City of Charlevoix. As a result, I am declining to accept the position of the Charlevoix City Clerk."

Sullivan, who was elected to the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners in 2012, ran for, and was elected to the post of Charlevoix City Clerk in November of 2013. Sullivan has said he consulted three attorneys prior to filing to run for the city clerk's post and was advised that there would be no problem for him to serve in both elected positions at the same time.

However, following his election, attorneys representing both the city and the county opined that it would be a violation of the state's Incompatible Offices Act for Sullivan to simultaneously serve both as a county commissioner and as city clerk. Concerns were also raised that the city's charter also prohibited such a situation.

On Jan. 2 the Charlevoix City Council voted to bar Sullivan from Business partners plan beer room

Liquor licenses requested from officials

SHERI MCWHIRTER-O'DONNELL
COURIER EDITOR

Beer is on the agenda for lunchtime today, Friday. No joke.

Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority officials will gather at noon today, Friday, Jan. 31, at city hall for a special meeting to consider a business plan and redevelopment liquor license request by The Round Lake Group LLC, which intends to open a downtown craft beer tavern called Bridge Street Tap Room. The DDA board members on Monday reacted with enthusiasm at the prospect of a 50-seat craft beer tap room opening at 204 Bridge Street, with its gorgeous views of Round Lake and adjacent Bridge Park.

"We want to create a craft brew haven here," said Phil Parr, of Charlevoix, one of the business's principle team members and former restaurant and bar general manager at The Inn at Bay Harbor. The DDA board called today's special meeting after not being able to vote on the request at Monday's regularly scheduled meeting because it wasn't included on the publicly posted agenda in advance. Parr presented the group's pitch, which will be repeated on Monday at the city council meeting.

The DDA board is expected to vote today about whether to recommend the liquor license request for approval by the city council. The council will then consider the request in three days.

"I think their project is excellent," See TAP ROOM, page A10

Snow totals nearing seasonal average

Petoskey, Traverse City surpassed usual snow depths

STEVE ZUCKER
NORTHERN MICHIGAN REVIEW

Winter's cold, blowing grip on the Charlevoix area is stacking up in the form of snowbanks — rather tall snowbanks.

While there easily is still two months remaining in the typical Northern Michigan snowfall season, Charlevoix is growing increasingly closer to hitting the seasonal average snowfall total well ahead of schedule.

On Wednesday, the National Weather Service office in Gaylord reported that Charlevoix received 87.6 inches of snow so far this season. The average seasonal total for the area is 116.2 inches. The difference is just 28.6 inches and the famed Pennsylvania groundhog hasn't even weighed in yet. Oh, and there's snow in the weather forecast, of course.

Also nearing what would normally be the crescendo of snowfall for the season is Gaylord, where 133.7 inches already accumulated. The seasonal average is 145.1 inches, leaving a difference of just 11.4 inches.

But then there are the places where this winter's snowfall already shattered the norms.

Petoskey has thus far received 123.7 inches of snowfall, almost an inch above the seasonal average of 122.8 inches, according to the National Weather Service.

Traverse City also passed its seasonal average of 93.3 inches recording 99.5 inches, as of Monday's records.

Justin Arnott, a forecaster at the National Weather Service office in Gaylord said much of the snow and bitter cold that has gripped Northern Michigan and much of the Midwest this season has been the result of a stubborn low pressure system.

"We have had a trough of low pressure that has been anchored over North America for two months that has been causing a lot of this weather," he said.

Although the cold snaps have lasted longer than they typically do, Arnott said the area is not likely to break any records for the coldest winter on the books.

"People are noticing (the end and snow) a lot more this year because we've been spoiled the last few years," he said. "It's also the persistence of the pattern — the cold lasts so long."

And don't expect the pattern of very cold temperatures to change soon.

Arnott said the long-term forecast calls for below normal temperatures to linger at least through the first half of February.

Speaking of records, given the forecast for continued cold weather and how much snow the area has seen already, it might lead one to

Smithsonian exhibit arrives in Charlevoix

Opening reception to be 6 p.m. Monday

SHERI MCWHIRTER-
O'DONNELL
COURIER EDITOR

A little bit of national treasure is coming to Charlevoix.

The traveling Smithsonian Journey Stories exhibit will be displayed at Charlevoix Public Library, starting with an opening reception at 6 p.m. Monday, Feb. 3. The show will remain up through March 21 at 220 W. Clinton St., downtown Charlevoix.

"This is a Smithsonian exhibit coming to Charlevoix and it gives the opportunity for everybody in the area to see a Smithsonian-quality exhibit," said Valerie Meyerson, library director.

Journey Stories is designed to tell the tales of how our ancestors came to America and the various modes of transportation they used to get here, and move around once arrived. More than 100 classrooms are scheduled to take field trips to the library to view the exhibit, from schools as far away as Pellston and Traverse City, Meyerson said.

"It's quite a thing," Meyerson said.

The exhibit's opening reception will include a topical lecture by Anna Pegler-Gordon, Michigan State University professor in the James Madison College. She will discuss the immigration trends in Michigan, and light refreshments will follow at 7 p.m.

"We are looking forward to the opening, to hear Anna's talk and to get some feedback on the exhibit itself," Meyerson said.

The 700-square-foot exhibit includes six stand alone kiosks all with audio, video and interactive pieces. There also will be an oral history piece in which 90-second personal stories can be recorded and then uploaded to the Smithsonian's Stories on Main Street website, all to be listened to for generations to come.

The truck carrying the exhibit items arrived in Charlevoix Wednesday — perhaps appropriately — after having traveled across treacherously snowy Upper Peninsula highways and crossing the windswept Mackinac Bridge, Meyerson said.

Meanwhile, in a partnership with the library, the Charlevoix Historical Society created its own local journey story exhibit called Journeying to Charlevoix: Why They Came and How They Traveled. This show will be displayed at the historic Charlevoix Railroad Depot and will be open for visitors on Saturdays.

"We are excited to partner with the library and are looking forward to showcasing the Depot to the hundreds of school children visiting," said Denise Fate, society president. Many of early Charlevoix area settlers came for the fishing and lumbering, but that changed in 1869 when the two channels were cut.

"More people began to discover the town's attractions, that sowed the seed for our third industry — resorts and tourism — which still exists," said the society's Dave Miles, who arranges the historical photos published each week in the Courier.

Miles said the exhibit isn't just one of perspective, but also of personal stories and generational reflection about local ancestors.

"What I want this exhibit to do is not only to learn about them, but try to have our visitors trace back to when their first generation of Charlevoix-ites arrived here — why they ended up here, when, how they traveled (and) what happened along the way," Miles said. "Some of the stories we've discovered so far have been amazing, and we're trying to convey that through historic archival photos and text."

The Charlevoix Historical Society has been active since the late 1800s. Its main mission is to protect and preserve the iconic structures of Charlevoix, such as the South Pier Lighthouse, the Harsha House and Museum and the Railroad Depot. The society also provides community enrichment with programs and events to celebrate Charlevoix's storied history.

Exhibit guides will be available from 10 a.m.-4 p.m. every Saturday at both locations of the exhibit. Guides also will be available for special group bookings.

To book a group tour, call (231) 237-7360. For more details about the Journey Stories exhibit, visit the website at www.museumonmainstreet.org/journeystories/ online.

Journey Stories was made possible through grant funding by the Michigan Humanities Council. Journey Stories is part of Museum on Main Street, a collaboration between the Smithsonian Institution and State Humanities Councils nationwide, with funding provided by the U.S. Congress.

Northern artists contribute to new Circle of Arts exhibit

MICHAEL KADE MORROW
COURIER CONTRIBUTOR

The Charlevoix Circle of Arts is paying tribute to the artists who have helped it grow, who have given of themselves to enhance the arts organization and to these local artists who are pillars of their community.

The Artists North show is all about the artists who have been pivotal in the creation and continued success of the Charlevoix Circle of Arts.

"The artists in this show have been the ones that have helped us throughout the years," says committee chair Ann Henriksen.

Artists North promises to be rather spectacular.

"We have the best art in for this show, and all of the art pieces are big and beautiful. Todd Warner is in the show, and Todd Warner has been here since the very beginning," said Henriksen.

"Cal Kempainen is also in this show, and he has been wonderful to us. He teaches many classes, and is such a wonderful teacher. He brings food for his students, and makes sure you leave with something good. Kempainen also did this year's Venetian Festival poster," Henriksen continued.

"Margie Guyot will be with us as well. She is such a wonderful artist. You just have to see her gallery, it is simply beautiful and there are paintings everywhere. Guyot really is such an interesting person, who started with us years ago."

"We will also have Michael Dorooff and will also have some of his big wonderful paintings in this exhibit as well. He is really well known for these big beautiful animal portraits," said Henriksen.

Other artists participating in Artists North include James Koslosky, Capel Campbell and Igor Zaytsev.

Artists North will be such a special exhibit that it will feature two opening receptions. The first one will be 6-8 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 1, with the second one scheduled for 6-8 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 15.

"Another wonderful surprise will be the special dessert donated by Alfred Soriano who will be opening a new specialty CreBive Cupeake store in downtown Charlevoix," Henriksen said. "This is a new business in town and is already helping the community grow, which is just so neat."

"This event is just going to be simply wonderful. These artists have all given us so much. Most of them have taught classes and given half of their proceeds back to the Circle of Arts, or have been founding members, and all are very well known. This is just going to be a must see event," Henriksen said.

Artists North will be on display at Charlevoix Circle of Arts, 109 Clinton St., through March 29. For further information about this event, upcoming events and classes, can be found at www.charlevoixcircle.org online.

Wifi study to be fully funded after DDA board meeting

City and chamber also partners in feasibility study

Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority board members voted on Monday to fund the coming feasibility study of the prospects for wireless Internet services to be provided throughout the downtown area.

The DDA will chip in $700, just like city government and the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce, for a $2,100 contract with Childs Consulting Associates, of Mackinaw City. The study is meant to determine the logistical requirements and price point for such wireless service, which would be available for residents, visitors and local business proprietors.

But it wasn't a unanimous decision. Board secretary/treasurer Kirby Dipert cast the sole vote against spending DDA cash for what he thought was a feasibility study for a pointless service.

"I don't think it's necessary," Dipert said, explaining that these days, anyone with smart phones or devices already has Internet access through their phone service providers.

"I think we're wasting $700 and whatever else later on," he said.

Others, though, said they believe the idea deserves further inquiry.

"It seems the study is a necessary evil," said John Yaroeh, board member.

Both the city and chamber already approved funding their respective portions for the collective $2,100 bill.

"This is budgeted for in the 2014-2015 budget, but (city manager) Rob (Straebel) wants to get the study started immediately," said Bethany Pearson, Charlevoix's community economic development director.

"Officials with the consulting company are now tasked with figuring out placement of wireless service nodes throughout the authority's district for the best possible service, as well as various funding possibilities and even suggestions for continued maintenance costs.

Officials don't have to go any further, or spend any additional money, should they not wish to, Pearson said.

"It's not necessarily all in one package," she said.

Mayor Norm Carlson Jr. said this company has long worked with the city for other feasibility studies, as well as a plethora of other communities, including larger downstate municipalities.

"A lot of it has to do with working with the fiber," Carlson said, which is a system this company created for the city, he added.

Questions raised by DDA board members included cost-worthiness, comparisons with other cities, management costs, bidding process for installation and future costs.

"It sounds like Phase 1 (of the study) has some of our questions," said Dan Barron, the newly elected DDA board chairman.

Also during Monday's meeting, DDA board members discussed the proposed city marina expansion project, both the benefits and drawbacks. By and large, they agreed a bigger marina to accommodate larger yachts with working crews could only mean economic buoyancy for downtown Charlevoix.

"It's a tangible way to support economic development in downtown," Barron said.

The board unanimously voted to support a resolution of support for the marina expansion proposal.

However, Leon Perron, city council member from the 2nd Ward, spoke during the public comment section to say he's not hearing support for a marina expansion in his neighborhood.

"I'm not getting any positive feedback from my constituents," Perron said, despite his personal support for the idea. "Basically, what I heard was, 'the marina is done, leave it alone.'"

Carlson said that isn't the case with him, though he concedes that as a boater he more often interacts with the boating community.

"I've had the exact opposite," the mayor said.

The proposed marina expansion remains a pending item before the Charlevoix Planning Commission, where officials recently asked for more information and additional design options.

Next city clerk salary set by commission

Pay rate and accountability among topics discussed

City compensation officials gathered last week during a special session to discuss how to pay Larry Sullivan when he became the next city clerk, all before Sullivan later opted not to accept the post to which city voters elected him (see story on page A1). But perhaps the most significant element of the session involved the compensation commission members strongly arguing for city officials to strive for the position to be an appointed one, rather than a publicly elected office.

Charlevoix Compensation Commission members met Jan. 23 to set a city clerk's salary, along with specifics of a job description and various accountability standards. Officials all agreed that a former city clerk did not keep regular and posted office hours, nor provide details about how much work was done over the course of time, and that practice needs to end.

"In the past there have been no time cards or time sheets," said John Campbell, commission chairman. "We need to address that accountability and the salary itself."

According to city policy set in 2013, incoming city clerks shall earn 90-percent of the salary of their predecessor. That means $37,388 for the next city clerk, and at a new maximum 1,500 hours per year, that works out to nearly $25 per hour. The limit on annual hours is to keep the position beneath federal requirements to provide health care insurance to full-time employees.

In the end, in addition to the salary amount, the commission adopted a city clerk job description that members worked to create last year. The commission's decisions automatically go into effect after 30 days, unless city council members vote to reject the recommendations.

At issue: city/county office legal fees

ZAC BRITTON
NORTHERN MICHIGAN REVIEW

Charlevoix County commissioner Larry Sullivan's decision Friday to not accept the Charlevoix city clerk position will not be the end of the discussion pertaining to his efforts to retain both elected city and county positions.

Fellow county commissioner Richard Gillespie issued an email on Jan. 21 — directed to Charlevoix County coordinator/human resources director Kevin Shepard — seeking that the matter be explored further, especially in regards to fees incurred prior to last week's opinion issued by the Michigan State Attorney General's office that Sullivan could not hold both positions at once.

Voters elected Sullivan to the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners in 2012, then again as city clerk in November 2013.

On Tuesday, Shepard said he could not recall receiving or reviewing the specific email from Gillespie, but did admit it could come up during the next scheduled meeting for the board on Wednesday, Feb. 12.

"It's possible," he said. "Commissioner Gillespie has been out of the state and couldn't attend the last meeting, but if he's got an issue he'd like to discuss it could be added (to the agenda). I just can't recall seeing that email."

In Gillespie's

email forwarded to the Charlevoix Courier, the District 5 commissioner stated: "As you might recall, I voted

'no' on support for legal research on Mr. Sullivan seeking another elected position while holding county office. I feel that it was inappropriate for we elected officials paying public tax dollars for something that was obviously a legal question for Mr. Sullivan and not the County Board of Commissioners. Mr. Sullivan should have paid these expenses himself and I feel that the legality of this should be

Is it warm yet?

Winter in Northern Michigan is a good time to talk about global warming. Our situation makes it possible to clearly understand the difference between weather and climate.

Our current local weather is clearly cold, possibly colder than previous years. Our current global climate shows worldwide warming. That clearly does not mean that it is warmer at this time or that it is warmer everywhere. Weather is a local phenomenon, and as changeable as folk wisdom tells us it is. "Just wait a few days," we say. For climate change the wait is at least decades.

To argue about whether the climate is changing and what has caused it is useless. Everyone has an opinion, and even an informed opinion doesn't establish much. There are a few dependable and irrefutable facts related to climate change. The first and most important is that the carbon dioxide content of the earth's atmosphere is rising at a rapid rate, and it is currently higher than it has been for thousands of years. That is not an opinion, mine on anyone else's. It is a genuine fact. Carbon dioxide can be measured with great precision, and no one argues about the method of measurement. It is even possible to measure with accuracy and precision the carbon dioxide content of any bubbles of the earth's atmosphere from thousands of years ago. Such bubbles have been preserved in the ancient ice from the depths of old glaciers in Greenland and Antarctica.

The second real fact is that carbon dioxide absorbs the infrared wavelengths of electromagnetic radiation that transmit heat. Light comes to earth from the sun mostly as visible light, but ultraviolet light and infrared light arrive from the same source. Infrared wavelengths are invisible to us, although we can feel them as they radiate off hot objects. The earth is warmed by sunlight, and as does any heated object gives off infrared wavelengths. Carbon dioxide in the atmosphere captures those wavelengths and sends them back to earth. The earth is warmed. More carbon dioxide in the atmosphere means a warmer earth. That is not an opinion, that is a fact. We could discuss how much warmer the earth gets; that is a matter of measurement. Most measurements indicate that the earth's climate is warming, and carbon dioxide in the atmosphere is the cause.

We could also discuss how much of the carbon dioxide in the atmosphere is the result of human activity, such as burning large quantities of oil, natural gas and coal. Carbon dioxide also is increased by the removal of trees and long-lived vegetation from the earth. Both of those are human activities. The question of importance is what can be done about rapidly rising carbon dioxide levels in the earth's atmosphere, and the global climate change that will result.

This is really the first worldwide problem that humans have ever faced. We speak in history of World Wars, but horrible as they have been, they were not world-wide problems.

The only true worldwide problems we humans have faced were in stories about the invasion of earth by troublesome aliens. In each of those fictional cases, the world's humans banded together and solved the problem.

No such banding seems to be occurring over the global climate change problem, rather the opposite.

Polls, which may or may not be accurate, suggest that more than 70 percent of Americans identifying themselves as Republicans believe that global warming is some sort of hoax. Only about 25 percent of people identifying themselves as Democrats believe that. That is another troublesome fact. Are most Democrats wrong and most Republicans right? That seems unlikely, given the nearly equal distribution of intelligence among political parties. The fact does not seem to be related to climate change.

Finally, science will never prove anything with absolute certainty. But consider this. Suppose your child was tested for leukemia and the doctor told you there was a 90 percent chance that the child had that disease. You would likely call for another test. If that test told you there was a 95 percent chance the child had the disease, would you then question the test, and suggest that mistakes must have been made? Or would you proceed with treatment?

That child is our world, and we have 95 percent certainty that the global warming disease is real and troublesome, possibly even fatal. Should we continue to question the diagnosis, or should we act to reduce the carbon dioxide content of our atmosphere. It is our choice.

LOOKING BACK...

With the Super Bowl around the corner, it's time for a look backward to when "The aroma of sweat-soaked leather and liniment — indicative of the football season — will make an early advent in Charlevoix this year." That was the opening paragraph of a Charlevoix Courier article from July 29, 1942. The Detroit Lions decided to come to Charlevoix for their annual early training session on the south side football field. An indoor training facility, plus showers and lockers, would be provided in the school gym, now the library stacks. The men stayed at the Bartlett Hotel on Park Avenue, today the west side of the Captain's Watch condominium parking lot. They were so taken with landlady Nettie Bartlett Lamphear that, on her 80th birthday, they bought this cake and the dress she is shown wearing. She liked the dress so much it became her favorite and she was buried in it a few years later. It must have been quite a party. The Lions went on to have the worst season of their history up to the debacle of 2008.

Annual Shiverfest on tap Feb. 15-16

MICHAEL KADE MORROW
COURIER CONTRIBUTOR

Ellsworth is offering its annual winter festival the weekend of Feb. 15-16, a chance to get out and enjoy some wonderful activities available within that community.

The fourth annual Shiverfest is planned as a fun-filled affair with events available to the whole family.

"Shiverfest was created to showcase everything that Ellsworth has to offer during these winter months," said Alana Haley, event coordinator.

It all kicks off with an ice fishing event on Saturday.

"We haven't had it for the last two years, and you can fish on both Ellsworth Lake and St. Clair Lake," Haley said. "The best part about the fishing event is that it falls on Michigan's free fishing weekend, and this is a free fishing contest as well, so it is a way to come out and fish totally for free."

The state's free fishing weekend allows fishers to participate without a license, but one must still follow all laws and regulations.

"We are also hosting a Breezeway snowmobile ride in, from noon-3 p.m. on Saturday the 15th, to highlight the trail coming right into town. The trail ends right at the pavilion in town at Community Park. There will be hot dogs, s'mores and a warming fire to help take away the chill," Haley said.

Kids will have their own events 1-3 p.m. Saturday at Ellsworth Community Park.

"Shiver in the Park events will have a warming fires, hot chocolate and s'mores, as well. They also have the opportunity to make snow art. They can draw in the snow, and then color them in. Last year, we had kids making many different designs. Some of them made snow angels and then painted those in," Haley said.

The kids are also encouraged to build and bring cardboard sleds to enter into a contest and ultimately, a race.

"We had the best cardboard sled entries the last year," Haley said.

The sleds are to be made only with cardboard and tape, with only the running surface waxed. They can be decorated with paint, stickers and more.

There will be a guided dark sky hike 7-9 p.m. Saturday at House on the Hill Bed and Breakfast.

"All the trails are groomed, and the tour will be guided so it is accessible to most everyone," Haley said. "If you don't wish to take part in outdoors activities, the Lioness Club is holding a euchre tournament that begins at 7 (p.m.)," Haley said.

The tournament takes place at the township hall.

Then, from 9 p.m.-1 a.m. the Gold Nugget Bar and Grill will have live music to wind down the night.

Sunday's events include a snowmobile fireworks fun run, in which riders can drive to different stops and pick up tokens and prizes. The event runs from 9 a.m.-4 p.m. and the stops are at East Jordan Snowmobile Club, Mallard Golf Club, Flight Deck Bar, House on the Hill Bed and Breakfast/A Matter of Taste (with chili and bonfire 1-3 p.m.), Gold Nugget (with appetizers and prizes at 4 p.m.).

There is a $15 entry fee that benefits Ellsworth's fireworks display, Haley said.

Foundation provides grant for birding trail

The Charlevoix County Community Foundation recently provided major funding for the creation of the Beaver Island Birding Trail in Charlevoix County, a project initiated by the Beaver Island Association, a nonprofit organization dedicated to supporting economic and environmental sustainability on Beaver Island, and its project partners, to provide significant benefit to the Beaver Island economy, while serving to protect our natural resources by providing sustainable recreational use.

The Beaver Island Birding Trail identifies a comprehensive listing of habitats and birds likely to be seen at 33 public birding sites on Beaver Island. The birding trail project includes printed maps of the birding trail for island visitors, noting quality bird sighting locations, listing best birding practices, and providing "eBird" tracking information. The eBird program is an online database, developed by the Cornell University School of Ornithology, of bird observations providing researchers and amateurs with real time data on bird distribution and quantity.

Interpretive signs will be posted at select locations and a companion Beaver Island Birding Trail website is under development to provide extensive information about each location and the birds to be found in that habitat. The website is www.beaverisland-birdingtrail.org online and is expected to be active at end of January.

In addition, a birding tri-fold checklist based on the Michigan Birding Atlas will be provided to birders. The Beaver Island Community Center, which is open seven days a week, will act as the trail head site. A trail dedication will take place May 24-25 on Beaver Island, with regional and state officials, along with national birding experts leading field trips.

The Charlevoix County Community Foundation is a local charitable organization dedicated to enhancing the quality of life for all citizens of Charlevoix County by building permanent endowment, addressing needs through grant making, and providing leadership resources to serve the community. More information about the Charlevoix County Community Foundation may be found at www.c3f.org or by calling (231) 536-2440.

Benefit concert to feature Joshua Davis Trio Feb. 5

Charlevoix High School will host a concert with award-winning singer/songwriter Joshua Davis at 7 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 5.

Davis is winner of Album of the Year in 2012 at the prestigious Michigan Jammies, and also is the front man for three of the top touring acts in the Midwest. He is touring with Mike Lynch and Mike Shimmin.

This powerhouse trio features a masterful blend of keyboards, guitar, percussion and vocals. The music is a blend of roots rock, folk, blues and vintage soul. The percussionist in the trio, Shimmin, recently played with such notable artists as Aretha Franklin and Irish legend John McSherry. He currently is finishing up a tour in Ireland, England and Scotland with McSherry and Tyler Duncan.

In January, they will be performing with Padraig Rynne at the National Concert Hall in Dublin, Ireland, and at the Liverpool Philharmonic Hall. Mike Shimmin is one of the finest percussionists in the world and has won numerous awards for his performances on jazz, folk, Irish, traditional Middle Eastern and blues albums. cording artist and one of the most sought after folk, blues and rock keyboardists in the United States. In the past few years, he also toured with musical legends Bob Seger, Kid Rock and Larry McCray.

The Joshua Davis Trio will perform at 7 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 5, and the concert is a benefit event for the Charlevoix Rayder Bands, at the Charlevoix Center for the Performing Arts (CHS auditorium).

Tickets are $5 for students and $10 for adults, with a $20 rate for families. Tickets can be purchased at the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce, the Charlevoix Circle of Arts and from Rayder band members.

Benefit planned to fund literacy program

Char-Em United Way and Castle Farms will present an event titled Toast To Literacy, taking place at 7 p.m. Friday, Feb. 7, at Castle Farms. This event will feature beer and wine from local breweries and wineries, as well as a food competition from several local establishments.

Char-Em United Way and Castle Farms are together hosting this inaugural event. Toast To Literacy will include a silent auction, local authors, music and many more activities during the evening.

The proceeds from the event will help support Char-Em United Way's Dolly Parton Imagination Library program.

"This program puts a book a month into the hands of children from birth to age 5," said Dee Vincent, Char-Em United Way board chairperson. "These books are age appropriate and sent directly to the child's home at no charge to the family. The cost of this program for each child is just $30 per year. We feel that this is a valuable investment for our children in Charlevoix and Emmet counties. Every child that is given the chance to start reading early is not only more prepared for school, but has more confidence and self-esteem."

Ticket prices for the evening are $15 with food tastings and entry to the silent auction. Tickets for $30 also include a wine glass and tickets for 10 tastings of choice.

The cost for a full drink will be $6.

Anyone interesting in sponsoring the event for $150 can contact Char-Em United Way at (231) 487-1006.

United Way seeks donations

Requests for assistance at a record high

Char-Em United Way seeks donations from the public as requests for assistance are at an all-time record high.

"With requests for support nearing $300,000 from local agencies and knowing there are additional needs we may want to fund through our Emerging Needs Fund, we simply cannot turn our back now on a goal that has not been met," said Therese Green, board member and chairperson of the community investment committee.

Dee Vincent, board president, agreed that now is the time to pull together to help close this gap.

"We are asking everyone who believes in helping their neighbors who are struggling with hunger, illness, or providing shelter for their families to contribute what they can. Our campaign goal is not an abstract number. It's the amount we need to raise to meet real needs that our friends and our own families experience every day in our community — critical needs that will go unmet without our help," she said.

This year requests are expected from 25 agencies supporting 30 programs; programs serving a wide variety of individuals, from early childhood preschool and behavioral programs to support for area seniors and everything in between.

The original concept of the United Way was to provide one fundraising campaign that would support multiple needs and agencies. While this concept is still in place today, the United Way is much more than just a fundraising organization. The United Way of today is looking toward making an impact in the lives of people served through United Way funded programs.

The United Way is an active community partner that works closely with other social service agencies, nonprofit organizations, community leaders, and businesses to seek optimal ways to meet the needs of residents in Charlevoix and Emmet counties. Many times United Way is a participant in community conversations and sometimes the United Way is the leader who invites other partners into a discussion regarding a community need. The collaborative efforts that have evolved over the years help all of the partners involved meet some needs and work together for the betterment of our community.

Tax-deductible donations can be made through the United Way's website at www.charemunitedway.org or by sending a check to P.O. Box 1701, Petoskey, MI 49770. More information regarding the work of Char-Em United Way can be found on the website.

For more information on the variety of ways to support the community through the United Way, call (231) 487-1006, send email to info@charemunitedway.org or visit www.charemunitedway.org online.

EAST JORDAN

One injured in crash with propane truck

An East Jordan man was injured Tuesday when the vehicle he was driving collided with a propane delivery truck.

In a news release, Charlevoix County Sheriff's office officials identified the injured man as Gregory Baker, (age unavailable). Deputies said Baker refused treatment by ambulance crews at the scene, but later was transported by East Jordan ambulance to McLaren Northern Michigan hospital to be treated for injuries he sustained in the crash.

Authorities said the crash happened at the intersection of Boyne City-East Jordan Road and Wilson Road in Charlevoix County's Wilson Township.

Deputies said Joel Telgenhof of Ellsworth was driving an Ellsworth Farmers Exchange propane truck west on Boyne City East Jordan Road, when Baker's vehicle failed to stop at the intersection and slid into the path of the propane truck. Authorities said Telgenhof reported making an attempt to avoid the collision, but was unable to do so.

The crash remains under investigation.

Charlevoix branding effort to be unveiled

State of the Community event also will feature awards

SHERI MCWHIRTER-
O'DONNELL
COURIER EDITOR

The Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce is expected to unveil a new community branding effort at the coming State of the Community breakfast event.

Five speakers are expected to address the audience about various topics, reviewing the successes and challenges Charlevoix faced during the last year. Steve Seely, chamber board chairman, said a lot of high quality ideas and suggestions from the public came to officials through economic forums and community conversations about growing Charlevoix's economic development capacity.

"We've had a lot to talk about," Seely said.

He said a major idea to come out of the efforts involves a newly created branding effort with specific imagery and symbolism intended to highlight Charlevoix. It's a concept that can be applied across the city and greater community, a way to create a consistent, powerful identity specific to Charlevoix, Seely said.

Also during the event, chamber officials will announce various community awards for customer service, ambassadorship, new business, young professional, outstanding citizen and business of the year.

The annual community report is set for 7-9 a.m. Friday, Feb. 7, at Castle Farms, 5052

M-66, Charlevoix. Some tickets remained available late this week and those interested in reserving a space are encouraged to call the chamber at (231) 547-2101.

Tickets for the breakfast event catered by Grey Gables Restaurant cost $30, or $225 for a table of eight.

BOYNE CITY

State approves revised Kirtland air quality permit

STEVE ZUCKER
NORTHERN MICHIGAN
REVIEW

The Michigan Department of Environmental Quality has officially approved a revised permit for the amount of particulate matter Kirtland Products is allowed to discharge into the air and the court cases have been decided. Now, Boyne City officials want to know what, if any, legal leverage they might have over the wood pellet manufacturer.

On Jan. 21, state officials approved a revised "permit to install" that changed the amounts of particulate matter the plant, located in the city's air industrial park, is allowed to emit into the air from its equipment used in the wood pellet production process. The permit is unchanged from the version presented and on which public comments were taken during a public hearing in November.

The permit change was in response to emissions from the plant being found to be in violation of its original permit. The changes in the permit involve the levels of particulate matter between 2.5 and 10 microns in size Kirtland's various processes may emit. In some categories the limit has been raised and in some categories the limit has been lowered. However, the limit reductions far outpace the increases, and the changes will mean a reduction in all particulate emissions from the plant by more than 40 percent from 18,245 pounds per hour to 10,845 pounds per hour.

In documents provided to the city along with the new permit, state officials answered some of the questions residents and one city commissioner had about the new permit.

One question posed by commissioner Laura Sanson was about how much of the allowable emissions limit for the entire industrial park Kirtland would be using under the new permit.

Another question raised in the documents had to do with an instance where discoloration was noted in the snow on properties near the plant. State officials noted that the instance was the result of a malfunction with the plant's equipment and that the problem was found and remedied and the plant was cited for the problem.

The answer from state officials was that at the point of greatest impact (on the Kirtland property) the plant would be using about 82 percent of the allowable emissions limit. However, officials noted, the farther a property is located from the Kirtland site, the less of the overall emissions limit it would be using.

One section of the documents provided by state officials reads, "The proposed changes were reviewed by the (Air Quality Division) and determined to be protective of health and the environment and also to comply with state and federal regulations."

A requirement of the new permit is that Kirtland must re-test its emissions within 180 days to confirm that it is in compliance with the new standards.

Shortly after the plant began operations in 2011, city officials began receiving complaints from residents in the

Baker receives NCCMH's highest recognition

North Country Community Mental Health recently hosted its annual employee recognition event at Boyne Mountain Resort.

David Baker was presented the highest form of recognition with the Achievement Award. This award recognizes exemplary service or extraordinary performance and the recipient's peers nominate staff and a committee reviews the nominations and makes a selection based on established criteria. Baker is a case manager for individuals with a mental illness and works out of the Charlevoix office.

The Team Achievement Award went to the Petoskey administrative team, which was recognized for great team work and excellent services. Members from that group are Christine Gebhard, Karen Bagwell, Jan Smith, Sean Burke, Susan Thurston, Karan Bingham, Laura Brunmeier and Linda Kleiber.

Also, one staff member was recognized for 35 years of service — Jan Smith, assistant director of administrative services from the Bellaire office.

Other employees recognized included: Alison Reed from the Gaylord Developmental Disabilities

Services office for 30 years of service; Julie Moran and Jack Londick from the Bellaire office for 25 years of service; and Cathleen Behan-Harvey from the Petoskey office for 25 years of service; Suzan Petee-Eubank and Donna Wixon for the Gaylord offices for 20 years of service; Lynn Hershberger from Rapid City for 20 years of service; and Jama Moffett from Petoskey for 20 years of service; Wayne Roisen, Carla Miller and Mary Cossens from Petoskey for 10 years of service; Jennifer Hunt, Janelle Kassien, Beverly Fyan and Tiffany Hawley from the Gaylord sites for 10 years of service; and Ruth Lenz from Rapid City for 10 years of service.

North Country Community Mental Health provides services to residents of Antrim, Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Emmet, Kalkaska and Otsego counties experiencing a severe emotional problem, serious mental illness or developmental disability, including individuals with a co-occurring substance use disorder. Those who wish to know more about the agency are encouraged to visit www.norcoemh.org online or call (800) 834-3393 to access services.

Association elects officers

The Little Traverse Association of Home Builders announced at its general membership meeting earlier this month that officers and the board of directors have been formally sworn in and have assumed their positions for 2014.

The association includes builders, remodelers, tradesmen, suppliers and affiliated businesses in Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Otsego and Emmet counties. In addition to providing membership support, the primary goals of the association's administration is to promote professional development, offer regulatory and legislative support and act as administrative liaison between the local members and their state and national level industry groups, the Home Builders Association of Michigan and the National Home Builders Association.

While the association employs a full time executive officer to run day to day operations, it is the all-volunteer board of directors that is charged with the governance of the local association. Assuming the role of association president for 2014 is Scott Gwizdala, general manager of ProBuild North in Petoskey. Joining Gwizdala as officers of the board are vice-president Carl Wagar of Wagar Builders, secretary Christine Cole of DTE and Adam Caron CPA of Rasmussen, Teller, O'Neil & Christian, P.C.

The remaining members of the 2014 board are: Stephanie Baldwin of Edgewater Design board is a long-standing member of the association and does business throughout all four counties of the association's service area.

"I am very excited for this year and for our association," said Gwizdala. "The last few years the economy has been difficult for us in the building industry, but it also helped to make us stronger in the long run. Our association has had some of the same experiences and is poised in 2014 to bring good value to our members through strong programming and industry representation in our local communities and in the state and national arenas."

Gwizdala went on to encourage any and all businesses involved in the building and construction industry to consider joining the Little Traverse Association of Home Builders as a full-time member, if they have not been able to in the last few years.

For more information about the Little Traverse Association of Home Builders, or to become a member, contact the association office at (231) 348-9770 or at www.ltahb.com online.

Charlevoix's talent gets a chance to shine

The Charlevoix's Got Talent Show was performed on Saturday, Jan. 25, in the Charlevoix High School Auditorium and featured 15 acts, ranging in age from elementary to adult, introduced by emcee The Rev. Michael Arp.

The show included a variety of talents including singing, dancing, guitar, ukulele and trombone playing, plus magic tricks. Winners took home cash prizes.

Emily Chapdelaine took first place with the vocal solo, "Cowboy Cassanova," while "Serious Magic" by Lizzie Petroskey and Emma Buday took second place. Also, Maya Whitley took third place with the vocal solo, "Set Fire to the Rain."

Because of the large amount of younger acts performing this year, the event also gave out a Rising Star Award to Tyler Quast for a dance routine to "Bring it All Home." Finally, Kyle Cyr received an honorable mention from the judges for his original guitar composition, "Delay."

Charlevoix Performing Arts reported that other acts in the show included Dani Milazzo, Jacob Archey and Hudson Elowsky, Avery McCreadie, Maggie Drost, Kirsten Wagner, Megan and Makayla Clees and Autumn Graham, Kristina Kuzmik, Caroline Boss and Emily Roloff, Sam Peterson, Zoe Brodtn and Kelsey Smith, and Margaret Sheets. The audience was entertained with piano solos by Helen Hanchin and Malcom Williams while judges Steve Overton and Julie Pierpont tallied their scores.

These are the performers at last weekend's Charlevoix's Got Talent show.

DECISION

being sworn in as city clerk until the Michigan Attorney General's office weighed in on the matter.

Last week the attorney general's office issued an opinion agreeing with earlier opinions that Sullivan may not serve in both positions at the same time.

In his letter, Sullivan thanked the voters in both the city and Charlevoix township who have supported him and added, "I would like to thank those who shared their thoughts and advice with me which I relied upon in making this difficult decision."

Charlevoix City Manager Rob Straebel said a discussion about how to fill the city clerk's post is expected to be on the city council's agenda for its next regular meeting which is slated for 7 p.m. on Monday, Feb. 3.

Straebel said he thinks it is important to find someone to fill the three-quarter-time post soon. Deputy city clerk Stephanie Brown has been performing the functions of the city clerk since former city clerk Carol Ochs resigned from the position in June.

However, Straebel noted that because the clerk's office has been operating minus one staff person since that time, the office has fallen behind on several projects. He said the council will likely seek input on its options from its attorney.

Also, in recent months city officials have been discussing seeking voter approval for modifications to the city charter that would change the city clerk's position from an elected to an appointed position.

TAP ROOM

and Bethany Pearson, the city's community economic development director.

The four-person business team includes Parr, as well as longtime business consultant Rich Bergmann, of Charlevoix, hospitality and restaurant specialist Aaron Hagen, of Charlevoix, and also musician and entrepreneur Adam Engelman. They said they intend to renovate the space to accommodate their beer-inspired plans, as it's currently set up as a business office.

"We would like to be open by spring," Parr said.

He also described how the business plan calls for small plate, tapas-style dining with as many ingredients sourced locally as possible. Along with that, the tap room would serve craft beers, wine and other spirits. But the focus really would be on the art of craft brewing, or rather, drinking craft beer, Parr said.

The business would create a loyalty program called 231 Beer Drinkers Union of Northern Michigan for those as enthusiastic about craft beer as the key players are, the business partners agreed.

"Our tap room will feature exciting micro-brews, with an emphasis on Michigan breweries," Parr said.

The official request is for a Class C liquor license with one bar to sell beer, wine and liquor for on-site consumption, as well as a specialty designated merchant license for selling retail beer and wine for off-premise consumption.

"Our selection of retail would not interfere with the selection at Oleson's on Antrim Street or other local businesses," Parr said.

The hope also is to offer some outdoor seating by the existing window that faces Bridge Park, he added.

The DDA board will consider all this today, while city council is expected to do the same at 7 p.m. Monday, Feb. 3, at Charlevoix City Hall, 210 State St.

think the area could make a run at breaking the all-time season total snowfall record of 184 inches set during the winter of 1970-71.

However, Arnott said although that's just 60 more inches, it might be tough for that to happen at this point.

One factor he pointed to is the fact that the persistent pattern that has set up has been pushing many of the main storm tracks well to the south of this area. Also, he noted that because of the persistent colder-than-normal temperatures, more and more ice is forming on Lake Michigan. As this happens, lake effect snow will be reduced or eliminated. Arnott noted that the lakes would have even more ice than they already do if it were not for the very windy conditions that have kept the lakes' surface churned up.

"If we're going to make a run at (the snowfall record) it's going to have to come from storms — basic system snow, some clipper systems, 2 or 3 inches at a time, so big foot of snow. It may be a challenge if the current pattern remains."

Despite the long-term forecast, Arnott said once the area emerges from the most recent deep freeze we'll see a bit of a warm-up with high temperatures predicted into the low to mid-20s later this week.

determined. This was a private matter, not on obligation of our board nor the city's.

Mr. Sullivan asserted that he had the opinion of at least two attorneys in this regard. An opinion is not such unless it is in writing. We should have copies of this information, if not it suggests deception on the part of Mr. Sullivan and the board he serves on."

Sullivan responded Tuesday night regarding his review of the legality of holding positions concurrently.

"Mr. Gillespie is entitled to his opinion," he stated. "Prior to the matter of legal research on this matter being brought before the county board of commissioners, I had already sought an Attorney General's opinion on this matter. Following an earlier county board meeting (prior to July 24, 2013) I stated to (Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners' civil counsel Bryan Graham) that I was seeking an Attorney General's opinion at which time he indicated that since an A.G.'s opinion was being sought, he would not review this matter. At the July 24, 2013, county board of commissioner's meeting, Mr.

Graham requested he be allowed to research this matter and split the costs with the city of Charlevoix."

The District 6 County Commissioner did state he asked three attorneys about the conflict of interest issue, including the late Antrim County prosecuting attorney Charles Koop. He did not name the other two attorneys in an email to the News-Review and admitted he was attempting to find any documentation relating to the legal opinions.

Koop unexpectedly died Aug. 6, 2013.

Following his election to the clerk position in November, Charlevoix City Attorney Jim Young and Graham stated the opinion that holding both positions would be a violation of the state's Incompatible Offices Act. Also, the Charlevoix City Council voted on Jan. 2 to bar Sullivan from being sworn in as city clerk until the Michigan Attorney General's office weighed in on the matter.

That decision was announced last week, leading Sullivan to officially decline the city clerk position on Friday.

Charlevoix City Council member Shirley Gibson said she also has been frustrated by the amount of time and effort put into this situation.

"If there is a perception of a conflict of interest, there is," Gibson said.

"She further said both the county and the city unnecessarily spent taxpayer dollars seeking legal opinions about an issue that doesn't seem that complicated.

"He could have stopped this a long time ago," Gibson said. "I really believe we should be looking at the possibility of him reimbursing the city."

On Tuesday, Sullivan — by email — added, "The next step is for me to continue serving as the county commissioner, elected to represent the city and township of Charlevoix. The city will have to decide how they will go about filling the position of city clerk."

Gillespie declined to add to his earlier remarks, stating on Tuesday that, "I could only add that Mr. Sullivan needs to step up and answer these questions and who will pay the bills. I believe the costs could be significant only for Mr. Sullivan to walk away from the most recent election."

Charlevoix Courier editor Sheri McWhirter-O'Donnell and News-Review staff writer Steve Zucker contributed to this report.

The Michigan Department of Environmental Quality recently issued a revised air quality permit to Kirtland Products in Boyne City.

area nearby the plant about noise and air emissions from the plant. In addition to the work done by the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality, in 2012 the city voted to revoke Kirtland's zoning permit, claiming it had not lived up to conditions of the permit. However, Kirtland appealed the decision, and in August of 2013 the Charlevoix County Circuit Court ruled in favor of Kirtland.

At its regular semi-monthly meeting Tuesday, the Boyne City City Commission heard an update on the Kirtland permit from city planning and zoning administrator Scott McPherson. After hearing no citizen comments, the commission discussed the Kirtland situation, ultimately directing city manager Michael Cain to work with the city attorney to provide the commission with what, if any options it has at this point.

Speaking of the air emissions permit, commissioner Gene Towne asked, "Do we have any options on this?"

Cain replied that his understanding is that the air quality matters are completely under the jurisdiction of the state. However, he also noted that state officials have indicated that the best way for the city and citizens to address possible air quality issues associated with the plant is to report any issues to the state, and take note of all conditions surrounding the situation at the time.

Commissioner Tom Neidhamer said, "It's frustrating when you can see it, taste it, smell it and the state says it's OK ... All we want them to do is to do what they said they were going to do. I know the court said we can't."

Sansom said, "A lot of people are still concerned (about the plant)."

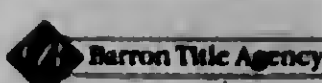

Neidhamer then added: "There are also a lot of people who are saying 'Enough is enough. Let them operate.' I'm torn. It's a dilemma. At what point do you believe the DEQ saying it's not harmful? At what point do you believe the courts?"

In its direction to Cain, the commissioners said because so much time and money has already been expended on the issue, they don't want an exhaustive re-evaluation of the situation. Instead they asked for a general summary of what their options at this point might be.

Defense and intensity can typically carry a team.

Such was the case for the Charlevoix High School girls' basketball team Tuesday in a non-league contest against Petoskey at the Petoskey High School gym.

The Rayders cranked up the full-court defensive pressure in the second half, created numerous turnovers, fought off a late Petoskey surge and more impressively bounced back from a 15-point deficit en route to topping the Northmen, 41-39, in a thrilling non-league contest.

Charlevoix junior forward Madeline Boss scored on an inbounds play from underneath the Rayder basket with just under nine seconds to play to break a 39-all tie which proved to be the game-winning basket.

The Northmen had a chance to tie the game in the closing seconds as a Katrina Daniel 8-foot jumper rimmed out before Natalie Weaver grabbed the offensive rebound, but couldn't get a shot off under heavy pressure at the buzzer.

With the win, the Rayders improve to 6-5 overall, while Petoskey falls to 1-9.

Boss finished with 14 points and eight rebounds to pace the Rayders — which in the first half faced a 22-8 deficit — while Gabby Gray added 13 points, three assists and two steals and Kelsey Engstrom added six points.

"Petoskey really took it to us in this game last year," Charlevoix coach Liz Shaw said as the Rayders fell to Petoskey 63-32 in last season's meeting. "We're not letting the past dictate our future at this point. Any win is a huge win for us and we have the potential to continue to play well and have more success along the way."

The Rayders played well in the second half, overcoming a sluggish first half in which the Northmen built a 14-7 first quarter lead behind four 3-pointers from senior guard Kati Lewis.

The Northmen then scored the first eight points of the second quarter to take a commanding 22-7 lead as senior Ali Will converted two inside baskets off interior feeds from sophomore Megan Sysko after Sysko and Asia Abram-Craig stuck offensive putbacks.

"In the first half, we just had mindless passes and we weren't very sound fundamentally with the ball," Shaw said. "It didn't help when Lewis made four out of five 3-pointers in the first quarter. That really knocked the wind out of our sails and credit Petoskey for getting the ball into her hands."

The Rayders closed the deficit to 24-13 at halftime, then opened the third with a surge.

After Petoskey's Abby Blanchard hit a free throw to make it 25-13, the Rayders ramped up their full-court defensive intensity which led to a 15-0 Charlevoix run to put the Rayders up, 28-25.

Gray led the third quarter surge with a pair of 3-pointers and an inside basket off one of multiple Charlevoix steals, while Boss converted a transition lay up off a turnover. Engstrom hit a free throw and junior Olivia Storm came off the bench to add two straight interior baskets.

"I thought we did a much better job of taking care of the ball in the second half," Shaw said. "The biggest difference for us was we played better team defense and were much more intense on the press and we didn't throw the ball away."

The Northmen rebounded to take a 29-28 lead at the end of the third quarter as senior guard Hannah Cook converted a 3-point play and Natalie Weaver added a free throw.

Petoskey's lead expanded to 31-28 early in the fourth on a Cook dribble drive, but the Rayders responded as Boss got to the line and made both free throws and Gray collected a steal off the press, converted the transition lay up and added a free throw to compete a 3-point play to put the Rayders back up, 33-31.

"Gabby Gray showed some senior leadership for us on the floor," Shaw said. "She really showed up and made things happen offensively, whether it was driving and dishing or taking it to the basket. Credit to her for stepping up. She has it in her and this was a spark of her potential."

"She was a world of potential, especially on the defensive end."

The Rayders clung to a 39-37 lead after Boss knocked down a 12-foot jumper with just over a minute to play.

Following a Charlevoix turnover, the Northmen tied the game as Weaver drew a foul on a lay up attempt with just 28 seconds to play.

Weaver was able to convert both free throws to tie it.

"I thought we did a good job once they gained the lead, we were able to regain our composure and got the lead back," Petoskey coach Adam Dobrowolski said. "We just had a couple of defensive breakdowns which cost us and gave them to easy looks."

Also for the Rayders, who created 19 Petoskey turnovers including 11 in the second half, Kourtney Putman added eight rebounds and four points, while Ellie Way had five assists and Alexis Tribfelner, five assists.

"Kourtney Putman had one of her best rebounding games and we've been missing that help in the post to go along with Maddie," Shaw said. "I think her (Putman's) game is advancing to the next level and that's exciting to see."

For Petoskey, Lewis finished with 14 points — but was limited to just two second half points — while Cook added five points. Daniel, Will and Weaver had four points apiece, while Abram-Craig had five rebounds and Lily Klingma, five rebounds.

"They (Charlevoix) did a nice job of taking Kati (Lewis) out of the game in the second half," Dobrowolski said. "We needed to look to go to her more. We rely on her a lot for scoring."

"We had 11 turnovers in the second half," Dobrowolski added. "Charlevoix came out with a lot of energy and they seized the momentum right away with a couple of threes early on. We left Gabby Gray open and didn't close out on her."

Petoskey won the JV game, 40-25. For the Northmen, Tilly Kobowski had 12 points and 11 rebounds, while Sarah Lewis added 10 points and 11 steals and Jillian Piotrowski had seven points and 15 rebounds. Jenny Tompkins had six points and 14 rebounds.

For Charlevoix, Beth Veenstra had nine points and Devon Bottomley added seven points.

The Charlevoix High School varsity wrestling team placed 10th out of 24 teams Saturday at the Northern Michigan Wrestling Championships at Gaylord High School.

A total of six Rayder wrestlers placed in the tournament featuring a number of ranked teams and opponents.

Host Gaylord won the tournament with a team score of 199, while Petoskey was second, 133; and Escanaba placed third, 130. Rogers City was fourth with 108 points, while Sault Ste. Marie was fifth, 104.

The Rayders finished with 67 points.

At 160 pounds, Charlevoix's Sam Hovie finished a team-best second overall as he advanced to the title match with two wins in the championship round before falling to champion Travis Heller, 15-0, in a Gold Medal match.

Hovie opened with a pin win over Petoskey's Marcus Groh in 1:39, then in a semifinal match pinned Elk Rapids' Kaid Brookshire in 4:57 to advance to the final.

Jake Novotny also paced the Rayders as he finished third in his weight class.

Novotny, wrestling at 145 pounds, opened the championship round with a 26 second pin — the fastest in the weight class — on Grayling's Fred Fisher and then pinned Oscoda's Josh Ward in 3:17 in a quarterfinal match.

Novotny then dropped a 3-2 decision to Alpena's R.J. Centala in a semifinal match before earning a 5-2 decision win over Whittemore-Prescott's Dakota Findlay in a third-place match.

At 112 pounds, Charlevoix's Camden Alden advanced to the championship round and in his opening match earned an 8-7 decision win over Mio's Devon Richmond. Alden, a freshman, then fell to Petoskey's Gage Paul, 6-0, in a quarterfinal match, before pinning West Branch Ogemaw Height's Devin Baughan in 1 minute, 25 seconds in a consolation third round match.

Alden ended up placing fifth in his weight class as he then earned an 8-1 decision win over Denham Miron of Escanaba.

Freshman Tyler McCallum, wrestling at 125, also advanced to the championship round and in his first match was pinned by Sault Ste. Marie's Zach Phillips in 2:53. McCallum then dropped a 14-3 major decision to Tony Everly of Mio in the consolation semi-nals. At 130 pounds, Charlevoix junior Lucas VonLau was pinned by Benzie Central's Chase Buist in his opening round match in the championship round in 1:47. VonLau then was pinned by Cameron Collier of St. Ignace in a consolation match in 1:39.

Austin Cesaro, a Charlevoix senior wrestling at 135, opened the championship round with a pin over Caleb Nygren on Mancelona in 1:09, then in a quarterfinal match earned an 8-7 win over Benzie Central's Christian Dilas. In a semifinal match, Cesaro was pinned by Roscommon's Caleb Jernigan — the eventual 135-pound weight class champion — in 58 seconds.

In a third-place match, Cesaro was pinned by Rogers City's Cameron Urban in 38 seconds.

Freshman Malcom Williams at 140 pounds advanced to the championship round and opened as Damian Lewandowski of Roscommon pinned Williams in 46 seconds. In a consolation semifinal match, Williams earned a 7-5 decision win over Kingsley's Jake King, before falling to St. Ignace's Jason Brown in 1:28 in a seventh-place match.

At 171 pounds, Charlevoix sophomore Sam Fusee opened the championship round against Jared Middleton of Benzie Central, who pinned Fusee in 1:36. Fusee then defeated Mio's Dylan McGregor, 4-0, in a consolation round match before pinning Roscommon's Adrian Brooks in 2:20 in the consolation semifinals. Fusee then fell to Rogers City's Jared LaFleche, 4-3, in a seventh-place match.

Mick Hinkle at 189 pounds fell to Onaway's Casey Watson in a championship round quarterfinal match as Watson pinned Hinkle in 3:44, before Logan Duval of Roscommon pinned Hinkle in a consolation match in 3:56.

Junior Devin Largent at 215 pounds was pinned by Mancelona's Tristan Waters in 57 seconds in his opening round match, then dropped a 5-0 decision to Ogemaw Heights' Gavin Shaw.

At 285 pounds, senior Andrew Mitchell was pinned by Mancelona's Keegan Richardson in 24 seconds in his championship second round match, then was pinned by Grayling's Zach Joseph in a consolation round match in 48 seconds.

Charlevoix will go to the Lake Michigan Conference tournament beginning at 9:30 a.m. Saturday, Feb. 1, at the Boyne City High School gym.

FENDER-BENDERS

That Will Make You Chuckle... Read On!

With the thousands of fender-benders that occur each year, police officers and insurance companies are bound to hear a few crazy stories. Keep in mind that many of these statements are made while the person filing the report is still in a state of shock and when nerves are on-edge. But that doesn't make them any less amusing!

The accident was caused by a small man, in a small car, with a very big mouth.

That telephone pole just hit me head-on!

An invisible car came out of nowhere, hit my vehicle and then disappeared.

I was going home but went to the wrong house and hit a tree that didn't belong to me.

The truck backed up into my windshield and into my wife's face.

I moved over to the side of the road, glanced at my mother-in-law, and ended up in the ditch.

I signed the accident report but it doesn't count because I wasn't wearing my glasses and couldn't make out a single word of what I had just read.

Between eating a sandwich, changing the radio station and answering the cell phone, I momentarily lost my concentration.

From minor dents to major body repairs, we'll get your car back in shape

Brennan takes vacancy

New councilwoman formerly served on Shade Tree Commission

SHERI MCWHIRTER-O'DONNELL
COURIER EDITOR

Charlevoix's Peggy Brennan took her seat this week as the newest member of city council, as expected.

Two weeks prior, on Jan. 20, council members discussed immediately appointing Brennan to replace Greg Stevens. Council that night accepted his resignation from his post after he moved beyond city limits. Instead, they waited for this week's meeting and appointed Brennan in short order.

The Sherman Street resident stepped up to fill the 2nd Ward vacancy after a unanimous 5-0 vote by city council. She took her oath of office, took her chair at her place on the council's dais and immediately got to work. Brennan even made her first motion during her first session as a councilwoman — to support the expansion of large, hanging petunia baskets throughout the downtown area's side streets and along State Street.

This is not Brennan's first experience with city government. She formerly served on the Charlevoix Shade Tree Commission.

But despite Brennan's prior experience, the changeover in city council representation wasn't perfectly seamless.

Mayor Norm Carlson Jr. and city manager Rob Straebel at the Jan. 20 meeting discussed the merits of using an application process to encourage participation in local government by anyone in the community whom should have an interest. But council members discussed how that's never been done before, and yet perfectly suitable council member replacements were always found in the past by remaining representatives seeking out candidates themselves.

In the end, the city council did not appoint a replacement for Stevens last month, but also voted not to allow city officials to accept applications for the post. Yet, that didn't stop one man from applying, anyway.

City officials on Jan. 29 stamped "received" on a completed application filled out by C. Mike Doherty, of Mason Street. An introductory memorandum in the council members' packets noted how Doherty's application was submitted unsolicited.

Meanwhile, Brennan participated in other city government sessions between the two regularly scheduled Charlevoix City Council meetings on Jan. 20 and Feb. 3. She attended a tour of the city's wastewater treatment plant connected to a planned state-required upgrade, as well as a Charlevoix Compensation Commission meeting to discuss the salary for the incoming city clerk, whom ever that turns out to be now that Charlevoix County Commissioner Larry Sullivan rejected the post to which city voters recently elected him. Tap Room request OK'd by council

Liquor license approved for downtown beer room

SHERI MCWHIRTER-O'DONNELL
COURIER EDITOR

Charlevoix city leaders on Monday unanimously agreed in a 6-0 vote to grant a liquor license to the Round Lake Group, LLC, a local upstart with plans to open a new craft beer tap room in the heart of downtown.

Principle partners in the group intend to improve the space at 202 Bridge St. — the back side of the Schulman Paddleworks space at 204 Bridge St. and immediately adjacent to Bridge Park — and open the new business there titled Bridge Street Tap Room. The Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority board members voted Jan. 31 to recommend approval of the company's redevelopment liquor license application, and city council did just that on Monday, not long after hearing the entrepreneurs' pitch.

A question about Americans with Disabilities Act requirements for the planned rear-of-the-building pub was quickly answered by Rich Bergmann, of Charlevoix, a longtime local business consultant who is part of the new company's team. He said currently there are several steps at the entrance, but changes will be made, if required by the state. Sometimes historical buildings are exempted from such requirements, so the final answer remains unknown yet, Bergmann said.

The four-person Round Lake Group business team includes Bergmann, as well as former restaurant and bar general manager at The Inn at Bay Harbor Phil Parr, hospitality and restaurant specialist Aaron Hagen, and also musician and entrepreneur Adam Engelman — all from Charlevoix.

Their planned 50-seat establishment has thus far met with widespread enthusiasm before both public bodies. The business plan calls for small plate, tapas-style dining with as many ingredients sourced locally as possible. Along with that, the tap room would serve craft beers, wine and other spirits.

Bethany Pearson, Charlevoix's community economic development director, said it is unknown how long it will take for the state liquor

Applications sought to fill vacant post, officials debate associated legal bills

SHERI MCWHIRTER-O'DONNELL
COURIER EDITOR

An advertisement went out this week to find candidates to fill the still vacant Charlevoix city clerk seat.

Charlevoix city leaders agreed Monday night to advertise for a qualified candidate to fill the vacant city clerk post after Larry Sullivan last week rejected the office he recently won on the ballot. Council members also debated about whether legal fees associated with the case were warranted.

Gibson

Porter

To start, council member Shirley Gibson asked whether the city even needed to fill the vacancy, especially considering how city leaders intend to ask voters before year's end about a proposed city charter change to make the clerk's job appointed, rather than elected. Mayor Norman Carlson Jr. said the city charter calls for a city clerk, so officials have no choice but to seek a suitable replacement.

"It is our job now to put someone in the position to fill it," he said.

Sullivan is an elected Charlevoix County Board of Commission member who also ran for and was elected as city clerk by Charlevoix city voters. After multiple legal opinions regarding conflict of interest between the two public seats — both from local and Lansing-based legal minds — authorities determined Sullivan would have to choose one office, or the other. He chose to maintain his elected county seat, in the end.

On Monday, council members first discussed the job description that will be advertised in seeking a new clerk, as well as the lack of accountability checks regarding worked hours and availability to the public.

"I don't like it," Gibson said.

City manager Rob Straebel said he doesn't like the lack of accountability either, but until the city charter is changed, that's the legal job description.

The Charlevoix Compensation Commission previously set the annual salary for the incoming city clerk at $37,388 and also recommended a new job description, but later learned from legal counsel that the job's specifics — save for salary level — are legally spelled out in the city charter. And only city voters can alter that.

"I would suggest you take applications from residents of the city," said Bryan Graham, one of the city's attorneys.

But the loudest discussion of the night swirled around the legal fees associated with the situation.

Council member Jeff Porter asked that a $6,443.50 check to law firm Young, Graham, Elsenheimer & Wendling, of Bellaire, be pulled from within the typically run-of-the-mill consent agenda for further discussion.

Porter then went on to question the legitimacy of all of the firm's legal bills regarding the Sullivan situation, specifically the number of hours spent researching and opining on the issue at hand.

Historical landmarks and figures appear in fictional book

SHERI MCWHIRTER-
O'DONNELL
COURIER EDITOR

A new novel set in Charlevoix County — both in 1954 and 1848 — titled "The Seventh Messenger" is now available.

Author Roland McElroy said the Charlevoix area each summer proves itself a wonderful muse, particularly for his literary achievements.

"I've been coming up every summer for 15 years and have been inspired by all the characters I have met and the wonderful resort community of Charlevoix," McElroy said.

Of the two stories told in parallel, the first is about a young St. Louis socialite named Abby Finlay, who had been a summer resident in Charlevoix since her infancy. Her story is set in 1954, when at the age of 30 she returns to the private Pine Lake Club after a 10-year absence. She hadn't returned in so many years after she vowed not to without her fiancé who remained missing since he participated in World War II's D-Day invasion in 1944.

Then she receives a long-lost letter from the missing fiancé that showed a postmark from months after the historic invasion of German-occupied France. Abby then comes to believe her missing love is waiting for her in Charlevoix.

The second tale entwined through this new fictional book is built around the very real life of James Strang, excommunicated member of the Mormon Church who brought about 200 followers to Beaver Island in 1848, crowned himself king and declared the island a sovereign nation. And the novel's protagonist is familiar with the true stories about King Strang, but she never imagined she had a connection to those old tales. The mystery is unraveled in this fictional book with the help of a character named Mark Day, editor of Charlevoix's

McElroy

Clarion newspaper.

The settings include the Beaver Island archipelago, Charlevoix and Holy Island in the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix.

"Locales familiar to longtime residents such as Neff's Grocery and Schroeder's Drug Store will bring back memories to many readers," McElroy said. "I think folks in Charlevoix will find it of interest. Lots of history in it, as well as the two stories told in parallel."

The author said he intends to ensure the book is available online, in local book stores, as well as in multiple e-book formats, including Kindle and Nook. More information is available at www.mcelroyassoc.com online.

New genealogical book available at library

Charlevoix resident publishes family's story

CAROL SHERK
COURIER CONTRIBUTOR

A Charlevoix resident recently published an autobiographical book that includes the compilation of his family's genealogical history, as well as the contributions to society his family made over the centuries.

Ronald R. Willey Jr. is the author of the book, "Live Every Day As Though It Is Your Last." Willey was inspired at age 10 by his 95-year-old grandfather, Daniel "Boone" Willey, who shared family secrets and stories over the years and created a curiosity and the quest to learn more about his ancestry so that later, he could write and publish a treasure trove of knowledge that he shared as a gift with his children this recent Christmas.

A technical optics consultant who by day helped create the Hubble Telescope and missile guidance systems, among many other valuable contributions, Willey spent his evenings researching his family's heritage while recording and compiling family photos from days gone by. The book reveals many fascinating relatives and prominent members of history that Willey was surprisingly pleased to discover.

"It was a surprise to find out that seven of the people on the Mayflower were related," explained Willey.

He also found out that he was related to three of the 25 harons who signed the Magna Carta in 1297, and also that he was related to Lady Godiva. His findings revealed he was related to Charles Martel, who served as a key military leader in saving Europe under the reign of William the Conqueror when Spain tried to take control.

Motivated by his own interest, Willey traced his bloodlines by utilizing U.S. Census records beginning in 1790 through the present, along with www.ancestry.com and classes in genealogy at Charlevoix Public Library, among many other sources.

Willey explained that sometimes it is difficult to ascertain the accuracy of some details and that it often required fact double-checking and reasoning through contradictory issues during his quest for the truth.

"Genealogy inspires one to respect history and geography because you think 'that's my family' and what it was like then and there," Willey said.

The book is now available at Charlevoix Public Library in the genealogy resource section. Willey donated the book to serve as an inspiration to others who have an interest in researching their family tree.

"The library supports genealogists with a subscription to ancestry.com and we also host a genealogical interest group that meets the second Thursday of the month at 6 p.m.," said Linda Adams, adult services librarian.

A five-week beginning genealogy class will be offered this spring starting April 14. Registration for the class is free and an optional donation is requested to help cover costs.

Anyone seeking more information should call the library at (231) 547-2651 or visit www.charlevoixlibrary.org online.

Charlevoix County News staffer charged with "photographing body in grave"

BRANDON HUBBARD
NORTHERN MICHIGAN
REVIEW

Video from a fatal airplane crashing in Boyne City is causing a local Charlevoix County News staffer some turbulence of his own.

Michigan State Police arrested Damien Leist, 38, of Boyne City, at his home Jan. 29 for "photographing dead body in a grave," a felony in Michigan with a maximum two years in prison and possible $5,000 fine.

The advertising sales representative from the Charlevoix County News, owned by Choice Publications based in Gaylord, is being charged for misleading law enforcement to capture video images of a Jan. 6 airplane crash near Addison Road in Boyne City, where two South-eastern Michigan men died earlier in the morning.

In a grainy video captured and posted to Leist's personal YouTube.com feed, he can be seen standing next to wreckage.

"As you can see, the crash site is pretty dismal," Leist says, after identifying himself as reporting for Choice Publications. An unidentified cameraman can also be heard later narrating "it's in pieces and still stinks like fuel."

But, the facts are disputed from there.

Leist

The charges in the arresting affidavit allege Leist and the second man asked two Charlevoix County deputies for permission to go to the crash scene and were denied because remains were still at the location.

But, when the two deputies left at about noon for an hour to refuel vehicles, the two men allegedly lied to two new reserve deputies and told them the county undersheriff had previously given them permission.

"Undersheriff (Chuck) Vondra advises that he gave no such thing," the affidavit states.

The Charlevoix County News staffer has a different version.

Leist says he woke up "late to the game" the morning of the plane crash and called fellow Charlevoix County News reporter Jeff Bnsory to the crash site.

Earlier in the morning, several media outlets, including the News-Review, had reporters at the crash site, where deputies escorted — by snowmobile — members of the media to a location where photographs and video were taken at distance.

"I got up there at about 11 o'clock and the party is over," said Leist, who posted a $5,000 surety bond for his release.

"So, I ask Chuck Vondra if we can go up and take some pictures and he says: 'No problem at all.'"

Leist says he then went into town with Bnsory to "process" what they had for a story.

Wingo pleads guilty to multiple thefts, breaking and entering

BRANDON HUBBARD
NORTHERN MICHIGAN
REVIEW

A 19-year-old man pleaded guilty Friday to a series of thefts in the village of Boyne Falls in the 33rd Circuit Court in Charlevoix County.

Kenneth Orval Wingo Jr., of Boyne Falls, pleaded guilty to breaking and entering at Betty's Restaurant, the Boyne Mountain Ski Patrol office and a car parked at Erickson's Repair Shop in Boyne Falls in front of Judge Richard Pajitas.

He admitted guilt to charges of breaking and entering with the intent to commit a larceny, a maximum 10-years in prison felony, as well as a misdemeanor 93-day maximum charge of receiving and concealing stolen goods, larceny in a building and possession of Kialin.

Both of the latter charges are felonies that carry a maximum four years in prison.

Wingo agreed to confess his guilt in deal with the Charlevoix County Prosecutor's Office, which in exchange dropped a marijuana possession charge and two other theft charges were dropped.

During the robberies, Wingo stole a car stereo, money and tools.

Charlevoix County Deputy Josh Smithburg tracked Wingo's footprints in the snow from the restaurant following the robbery to the defendant's vehicle, where the stolen items were found, according to the Charlevoix County prosecutor.

Webb pleads guilty to stealing $140,000

BRANDON HUBBARD
NORTHERN MICHIGAN
REVIEW

A Charlevoix woman pleaded guilty Friday to embezzling more than $140,000 from her former employer.

In a plea deal with the Charlevoix County Prosecutor's Office, Heather Marie Webb, 33, pleaded guilty in the 33rd Circuit Court to stealing between $50,000 to $100,000 from her job. The felony — with a maximum penalty of up to 15 years in prison — was a reduction from the original charge of embezzling more than $100,000. The original charge carries a maximum 20-year prison sentence.

The Charlevoix County

Sheriff's Office began investigating Webb, after her employer NuCore North Inc. suspected she had been embezzling before she voluntarily resigned last fall.

Det. Mike Wheat, according to court records, uncovered unauthorized checks dating back seven years and totaling more than $141,000.

Webb is set for sentencing Feb. 28.

Cronk to serve 5-10 for baby abuse

BRANDON HUBBARD
NORTHERN MICHIGAN
REVIEW

A Boyne City man was sentenced Friday in the 33rd Circuit Court to a minimum five years in prison for physically abusing an infant.

Steven Cronk, 27, will serve five to 10 years in prison for physically abusing an infant in his care in July 2013.

Police records show that at 4:33 p.m. July 12, 2013, the Charlevoix/Cheboygan/Emmet 9-1-1 Central Dispatch received a call requesting an ambulance at 118 W. Water St. in Boyne City for an infant not breathing.

When paramedics responded, they found the baby in distress and struggling to breathe. The child was taken to McLaren Northern Michigan hospital in Petoskey before being airlifted to DeVos Children's Hospital in Grand Rapids.

Doctors in Grand Rapids diagnosed the victim with having bleeding in the retina and brain, a broken right arm, a broken right leg and a possible break in the left leg, among other injuries.

A second doctor at the hospital opined in that the injuries are consistent with shaking trauma and abuse. At the time of the diagnosis, it was determined the baby would not survive if removed from a ventilator.

"I believe it is much more likely that Brooke's (brain injury) is the result of abusive head trauma, rather than a suffocation event with her sister as it has been described by dad," stated Dr. Sarah J. Brown, a pediatrician at DeVos, in a July 15 report. "I believe Brooke was abusively head injured on the afternoon of July 12."

The opinion also suggests the fracture to the humerus may have been caused by a jerking or twisting motion to the forearm or hand, as was the fracture to the femur.

The child was released July 30 to a maternal grandmother.

Cronk had previously posted a $1,000 bond for his release, but a bench warrant was issued for his arrest in early January when he failed to appear for a court hearing ahead of his trial, which was slated for early February.

Cronk was given credit for serving 25 days in jail previously in his sentencing Friday, ordered to pay more than $6,000 in restitution and an additional $198 in fines and fees.

When you fall off a horse, are you meant to get back in the saddle?

We just finished a Super Bowl weekend; first off, I have to admit I am one of "those people" who tends to focus on the commercials and half-time entertainment. But this sporting event is a perfect segue to talk about damage to brain cells from head trauma.

This comment is not a slam about the final score of the game. Athletic activities have an effect on our overall health both good and bad. I've read studies that men have the highest incidences of heart attacks while rooting for their favorite team. Aside from heart attacks and heartburn from spicy salsa, let me digress to brain injury. When I read what former professional football players are saying about the damage from repeated head trauma, I'm inclined to say we all need to walk away once in awhile and give our brain cells a chance to renew, or at least think about saving a few.

We all experience memory loss for a variety of reasons: attention deficit, age, dementia or in the football realm traumatic head injury. I am not saying our youth shouldn't participate in athletics. Sports are good for children because they learn about teamwork and reap the benefits from exercise, but more needs to be done so head trauma does not take place. I want all of us — young and old — to enjoy activities such as snowboarding in the freshly fallen snow, and feel the thrill of being one with your horse as you maneuver a jump. If you think before you act, and add protective equipment, you will improve your overall health for years to come.

I am not a former sports star, nor have I incurred head trauma, but when I walk into a store and forget what I need to pick up I become frustrated. I can only imagine how these younger athletes feel who experience memory loss. Our minds wander and when we get comfortable with routines, our brains go into automatic pilot. This is how we misplace items and manage to forget names, places and where you left your glasses. We need to make notes, say things aloud and focus. Any opportunity to protect our brain should be taken advantage of, whether it's protective wear or participating in activities that stretch our minds.

I had begun to forget more things than usual and started questioning my own signs of dementia. When I mentioned my concerns about memory loss to my health care provider, she chuckled after I told her how I downloaded a quiz and took it. "First of all," she said, "you downloaded something and you were able to do that and take the quiz; you are fine, just menopausal." I replied, "OK. Where was the helmet to protect me against that?"

When I think about all the activities my family members have been involved with I feel fortunate that we made it this far pretty much intact. Guardian angels, good genes and Lady Luck were with us. We lived through a parent's outstretched arm that served to stop our face from smashing the dashboard. Our high chairs didn't have anything to hold us in and car seats, well what were those? It's a good thing today we are providing safer equipment for babies and toddlers, and also talking more about keeping safe while participating in sports.

Exercise your body and your brain in a healthy manner because it's the only one you'll ever have. You can get back on that horse because being physically active can add years to your life. I went for a walk through the snow drifts this morning and I feel older already.

Northwest Academy thanks community for soup-tastic support

Editor:

Northwest Academy of Charlevoix would like to thank all the people who came and supported our school at our recent fifth annual Cabin Fever Artsy Soup Cook-off held at the Charlevoix Public Library on Jan. 23. We appreciate the community's support of this event. This event raised money to help with Northwest Academy's performing, literary and visual arts programs.

We also want to thank the 14 area restaurants who so graciously brought their tasty soups and allowed people to enjoy and vote for their favorite soups. What a treat! The first place winner of the Cook-off was Pigs Eat'n' Ribs with its Smoked Chicken and Roasted Corn Chowder. Second place was Red Mesa with its Chicken Tortilla Soup. Friske Orchards and Shanahan's Prime tied for third place with Fiesta Pocha Sopa and Loaded Baked Potato Soup, respectively.

People in attendance were treated to the Northwest Academy Jazz Band and were able to look at collections of student artwork.

Thanks again to all who made this evening a success. We will see you in January 2015 for our sixth annual cook-off.

CHARLEVOIX HISTORICAL SOCIETY

Bridging our past with our future

LOOKING BACK...

In 1941, Charlevoix was on the brink of receiving a new channel bridge when World War II broke out. The old swing bridge then in place had outlived its usefulness, having been installed in 1901. But the plans and drawings for the project had to be literally shelved in the basement of City Hall for the duration of the war. Not long after hostilities ceased, they were dusted off and sent to Lansing, where the Charlevoix Bridge was approved and became a pet project of State Highway Commissioner Charles Ziegler. In 1947, with financing in place for what became part of a nationwide post-war building boom, the first shovel was turned and the old span taken out. For 22 months the crossing area became a major construction site until the new bridge opened in June of 1949. Late in July, the dedication happened on an unseasonably cold and windy day (see local accountant Ralph Hamilton's hair flying at upper right). U.S. Highway 31/Bridge Street was temporarily closed at the channel for the ceremony. The Scissors to the City were presented to Ziegler, with his name on them, and he cut the ribbon for the bridge that since served the community now for almost 65 years.

33rd Circuit Court judge race getting crowded

BRANDON HUBBARD
NORTHERN MICHIGAN
REVIEW

A former veteran Charlevoix County prosecutor is joining a growing field of competitors to replace retiring Judge Richard Pajtas in the 33rd Circuit Court in Charlevoix County.

Mary Beth Kur, a Charlevoix native, who served nine years as the elected prosecutor for Charlevoix County from 1995 to 2004, enters a four-way race for the judgeship in November 2014.

Charlevoix attorneys Valerie Snyder and Edward Engstrom have already formally announced their intentions to run for the bench.

Charlevoix attorney Roy C. Hayes III is also expected to announce this week.

Kur launched a bold early campaign this week taking out a billboard on U.S. 31 announcing her candidacy.

"The importance of this position to our county motivates me to seek public office again after a rewarding 10 years in the private sector," Kur said in a statement. "Serving the public is an important part of my life, and I believe in giving back to my community. Throughout my 23-year legal career, I've seen the court system from a variety of vantage points, which gives me a unique perspective, and will serve me well as a judge. I want Charlevoix County to have a judge who is hard working, smart, no nonsense, ethical and fair to all."

Kur has been working in the private sector since 2005 and has more than two decades practice in Michigan courts.

She has a bachelor's degree from the University of Michigan and a law degree from the University of Detroit School of Law.

Her background covers criminal cases, including homicide, narcotics and sexual assault, as well as numerous divorce cases involving children.

She is currently serving as the defense attorney for Carol Koppenkosky, a Petoskey woman who pleaded guilty two weeks ago to shooting her husband to death in Resort Township in 2012.

In 2003, Kur was appointed by then Gov. Jennifer Granholm to the state Domestic Violence Prevention and Treatment Board, and in 2007 she was appointed to the Executive Clemency Advisory Council.

Additionally, she has served as an appointed Special Assistant Attorney General to the Michigan Attorney General to prosecute people in Northern Michigan delinquent on child support payments.

Among her priorities if elect, she says, would be establishing a sobriety court for offenders in Circuit Court, a more interactive website and electronic filing to improve efficiency in the local court system.

"Our current judge, Richard M. Pajtas, has established and maintained extremely high standards in the operation of our court during his tenure," Kur said. "I would be honored to follow him and feel confident in my abilities to maintain those high standards. I have worked with and have great respect for several other people I know who are interested in this position. Our campaign will focus on those qualities we feel make me the best person for this very important job. Speaking for everyone involved in my campaign, I can safely say that we, along with most of the people we know, have grown very weary of any sort of personal attacks and negative, hurtful attempts to win elections at all levels."

Keeping pace with the storms

Road crews, budgets not getting many breaks during winter's blast

ZAC BRITTON
NORTHERN MICHIGAN
REVIEW

The Charlevoix County Road Commission just wanted a break this week, maybe two or three days without snow to catch up on snow removal, maintenance and not having to use overtime.

No deal, since snow hit the region again late Thursday.

Winter's onslaught has played a number on area road crews and their respective departments' budgets with steady snowfall, extended stretches of sub-zero temperatures and often gusty winds.

"We plan for about a third of our annual budget to be in winter maintenance. As of Jan. 25, we're more than halfway there at about $600,000 (out of approximately $1 million allocated) and that's just on our county and local roads," said Patrick Harmon, manager at the Charlevoix County Road Commission. "We've got two months to go yet, but February and March are anything like January, we could really, really be in big trouble."

One key factor is overtime, with Harmon estimating that daytime employees have racked up 85 to 95 hours of overtime between mid-December and Jan. 25. Courtesy of Mother Nature not caring if it's after 5 p.m. or Sunday to drop a few inches of snow.

"I'd rather have it snow one day a week," he explained. "We'll handle that day and move on, but day after day after day? And it costs just as much to move a couple inches of snow as it would be to move a foot of it, but we're talking about roads needing to be constantly cleared."

That's the attitude the Petoskey Department of Public Works shares — just keep roads and sidewalks cleared.

"The guys are tired, but they're keeping up with it," said Terry Barrett, street supervisor with the Department of Public Works. "It's not affecting us too much, but we certainly can't quit now. There's no backing off."

The Petoskey department, like county road commissions, gets money from the Michigan Department of Transportation for clearing state highways within the city limits, that's a mere four out of 46 miles of road for Petoskey, but county crews have to mind longer stretches of state highway that can limit how much attention goes to local roads.

The counties and cities get reimbursed, but it still adds to responsibilities and hours worked.

"It's been 12 or 14 hours days for everybody for a month," said Brian Gutkowski, engineer/manager at the Emmet County Road Commission. "That helps the employees, but it hurts our budget."

"Right now (early afternoon Thursday), we've got our 'blowers' out trying to clear snow farther back off the roads," he added, "but with this new storm, we'll be calling them in soon and getting the plows out."

Emmet and Charlevoix counties are far from alone with this issue as Michigan's 83 county road agencies have been urging lawmakers to boost funding for transportation for several years, according to The Associated Press. Gov. Rick Snyder's plan to raise gasoline taxes stalled in 2013, but counties are hopeful legislators will commit some of a projected budget surplus to temporarily increase road funding.

In the meantime, it's trying to do the best possible job with what Mother Nature throws at road crews.

"It looks like on fuel alone, we're $30,000 over where we were last year in the month of January," said Gutkowski whose department started its fiscal year on Jan. 1 while Charlevoix County starts on Oct. 1. "We're not starting off very good. This sets the tone for the entire year."

Harmon agreed, stating that summer maintenance and possible projects — beyond what is funded by road millages and state grants — could be limited.

This season's persistent onslaught is rare, perhaps once a generation, with Harmon recalling the winter of 1992-93 being bitterly cold and full of snow.

That was a long time ago, literally and in terms of budgeting.

"Money went further then," said Harmon, who has worked at the commission since 1986. "Fuel costs were different. Salt was nowhere near what we pay now. It was probably $20 to $23 a ton then, now it's over $50. Gas was probably less than a huck (a gallon), and now it's at least $3."

"That's the cost of doing business."

Joppa House gets anonymous $10,000 matching donation

Women's, children's homeless shelter nearing completion

SHERI MCWHIRTER-
O'DONNELL
COURIER EDITOR

An anonymous $10,000 matching grant donation recently came in for the planned nonprofit Joppa House women and children's homeless shelter in Charlevoix.

Recently the Rev. Ginger Stevens, pastor at parent organization Third Day Fellowship in Charlevoix, asked for the public's help to put the finishing touches on the shelter building so it can be opened and get to doing good works. It would take about $25,000, she said.

What the latest announcement means is that the new donor will match every other donated dollar, up to a maximum $10,000.

"Perhaps it will be incentive for other donors," Stevens said.

If the community takes the challenge, that could bring the tally to $20,000 in needed funds. Then just another $5,000 in donations would put the effort over the top.

Stevens said the hope is to open the shelter to residency by spring, should enough money be donated to finish up the punch list items, what she called "finishing touches."

Third Day Fellowship is a storefront ministry Stevens launched in 2011, where she has since worked toward the creation of this shelter. But now work on the latter project is at a standstill because the available funds ran dry, she said.

"Every day we're not open is a day we can't help someone," Stevens previously said.

More information about Joppa House is available at www.facebook.com/JoppaHouse online, or by calling Third Day at (231) 547-8040.

SHERI MCWHIRTER-O'DONNELL/COURIER

The Rev. Ginger Stevens said the Joppa House women's homeless shelter planned for Charlevoix is just $25,000 away from finishing all construction and opening the doors, and an anonymous $10,000 matching offer will help bridge the gap.

Blood donations needed after winter cancellations drive supplies down

The American Red Cross needs blood and platelet donors to help restock the blood supply this February. Severe winter weather throughout January across much of the country forced the cancellation of about 770 Red Cross blood drives, resulting in more than 25,000 uncollected blood and platelet donations.

"Blood products were distributed to hospitals as quickly as the donations came in," said Jim Flickema, CEO of the Red Cross Great Lakes Blood Services Region. "The extraordinary number of cancellations in January was the equivalent of the Red Cross having to shut down its national operations for more than an entire day."

On average, the Red Cross must collect about 15,000 units of blood every day for patients at approximately 2,700 hospitals and transfusion centers across the country. With additional winter weather already forecast for parts of the country in the next week or two, all blood types are currently needed to ensure a sufficient blood supply is available for patients.

There is an urgent need for blood types O positive, O negative, A negative and B negative. Eligible donors with these blood types are strongly encouraged to make an appointment to give in the coming days.

Quilter Shelley Stallard, of East Jordan, donated blood Tuesday at the East Jordan Civic Center, where longtime American Red Cross technician Freda Holley collected her donation. Stallard's next blood donation will be her two gallon mark. "I had an appointment, but I also saw the urgent sign," she said.

Charlevoix's next blood drive will be 10 a.m.-3:45 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 20, at Charlevoix Area Hospital, 14700 Lake Shore Drive. Boyne City will have a blood drive, noon-5:45 p.m. Monday, Feb. 24, at Christ Lutheran Church. Other opportunities in Bellaire and Petoskey can be found in the Courier's events calendar on page A8.

Platelets, a key clotting component of blood often needed by cancer patients, must be transfused within five days of donation, so donations are constantly needed. Red blood cells, the oxygen carrying component of blood, are the most widely transfused blood product and must be transfused within 42 days.

OBITUARY

Therese Kaufman, 81

Therese (Terry) Kaufman, 81, passed away peacefully on Jan. 28, 2014. She was born in LaCrosse, Wis., on Oct. 11, 1932, and went to college to become a dental hygienist. There, she met her husband of 56 years, Harold (Sam) Kaufman. They moved to Michigan and lived in Ypsilanti, Clare, and eventually settled in Charlevoix with their two sons. She worked as a dental hygienist in Petoskey for many years, before having to retire because of her diagnosis of mul-tiplex sclerosis.

They owned a beautiful cottage on Starvation Lake for many years in Antrim County, and when the boys grew up, they moved there permanently. After the death of her husband, she lived with her caregiver in Kalkaska for several years, who took amazing, loving care of her. Terry was a kind, patient and wonderful person and will be missed by all who knew her.

She is survived by her two sons, Joe (Susan) and Frank (Martha); and three granddaughters, Melissa, Sarah and Hannah. Her brother and husband preceded her in death.

There will not be a funeral, but if you wish to make a donation, please send it to: Multiple Sclerosis Foundation National Headquarters, Donations, 6520 North Andrews Ave., Fort Lauderdale, FL 33309-2130, or donate at www.msfn.org online, by clicking on the "Support the MSF" link.

Tipp of the Mitt to mail out POD program survey

Environmental group seeks data about ongoing initiative

COURIER EDITOR

Local environmental advocates have grown more and more concerned during recent years about the impacts of medicines in our waters.

That's why officials from Petoskey-based nonprofit environmental organization Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council have worked to create and promote a medication disposal program that will accept both prescription and over-the-counter drugs and keep the chemical concoctions out of our waters. It's called the Prescription and Over-the-Counter Drug Drop-Off Program, or POD program, and it is a multi-county drug take back initiative to provide a convenient and environmentally sound way for area residents to properly dispose of such medications.

The program is supported by grant funding through the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality's Community Pollution Prevention Grant Program.

Charlevoix residents can find a POD program disposal box in the lobby at Charlevoix County Jail on Grant Street, the building immediately adjacent to the sheriff's administration office.

Now, project proponents want to survey Northern Michigan residents and find out more about medicine disposal behavior to better gauge the need for increased disposal options and community education efforts. These surveys will be mailed in coming days to randomly selected households across the region.

"The goal of the project is increased awareness, access and use of the POD Program by Northern Michigan community members," said Jennifer McKay, policy specialist for Tip of the Mitt.

Information gleaned from the survey is expected to be a valuable tool to better understand how people rid themselves of their expired medicines and the motivations behind the methods, she said.

"Through this project, we will be able to reduce the quantity of pharmaceuticals and personal care products entering Michigan's surface, ground and drinking waters, as well as support law enforcement's efforts to keep these drugs out of the hands of people who will sell them, abuse them and commit crimes while under their influence," McKay said.

Those who don't receive a survey in the mail, but still wish to participate, can fill out a survey at www.surveymonkey.com/s/Michigan-POD online, or by filling out a survey found at the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office, 1000 Grant St., Charlevoix. More information about the effort is available by calling (231) 347-1181 or sending email to jenniferm@watershedcouncil.org online.

Tip of the Mitt's service area includes Antrim, Charlevoix, Cheboygan and Emmet counties, though the nonprofit agency also advocates for environmental integrity statewide and across the Great Lakes Basin. Visit www.watershedcouncil.org for more details about the group.

Eye center changes hands

A Charlevoix eye care practice recently entered new ownership and received a name change in the process.

Jon VanWagnen, an optometrist, acquired the former Eye Health of Charlevoix from Bob and Kim Molter. It's now operating as Charlevoix Eye Center.

VanWagnen, who is from Alpena, pursued his undergraduate studies at Ferris State University and graduate studies at the Michigan College of Optometry. He moved to Charlevoix from Traverse City in October, and is a member of the Rotary Club of Charlevoix and the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce.

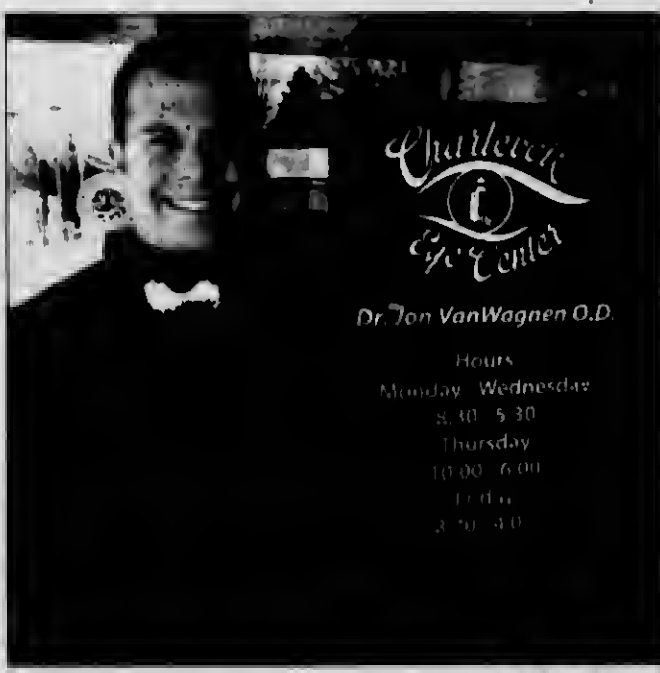

Two employees from Eye Health of Charlevoix were retained to be part of the new practice's staff, VanWagnen said.

Charlevoix Eye Center, 1008 Bridge St., offers comprehensive eye exams, emergency eye care, contact lens fitting and post-surgical management. VanWagnen said he plans to add new diagnostic equipment to the practice, which is also broadening its selection of eyeglass frames.

"It's just our focus to give the best quality eye care, help patients see the best they can and help fulfill all their visual needs," said VanWagnen.

Charlevoix Eye Center is open 8:30 a.m.-5:30 p.m. Monday through Wednesday, 10 a.m.-6 p.m. Thursday and 8:30 a.m.-4 p.m. Friday. The office can be reached at (231) 547-7800.

Chemotherapy and Infusion Center partners with Munson Oncology

Dr. Andrew Riddle will begin seeing patients Feb. 12

Charlevoix area patients will find hometown health care close to home as the result of a new collaboration between Charlevoix Area Hospital and oncologist and hematologist Andrew Riddle, a doctor of osteopathy and a physician from Munson Oncology Services.

The new chemotherapy and infusion center offers oncology and hematology care including: diagnostic procedures, surgical intervention and drug therapy. Riddle will be providing consultations and treatment options for patients needing oncology and hematology services.

This partnership with Munson Oncology Services allows Charlevoix Area Hospital to provide a wider array of services to the people of Northern Michigan.

"As an oncologist, I help patients decide the best course of treatment and care. Facing a life-threatening illness is frightening; however, I'm here to help patients understand their options," Riddle said.

Riddle's office is at 14695

Park Ave. in Charlevoix. For more information, or to schedule an appointment, call Munson Oncology at (231) 392-8400, and choose option 1.

Bay Winds offers scholarship opportunities

Bay Winds Federal Credit Union announced the return of its annual scholarship program, which awards $1,000 scholarships to 10 Northern Michigan students seeking to further their education beyond high school students.

Eligible students must attend high school in Antrim, Benzie, Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Crawford, Emmet, Grand Traverse, Kalkaska, Leelanau or Otsego counties. Membership in Bay Winds Federal Credit Union is not required.

"Ever increasing college costs make the pursuit of higher education more challenging each day," said the credit union's president and CEO, David Leusink. "We hope the Bay Winds Federal Credit Union Scholarship Program continues to ease the financial burden for Northern Michigan students in their pursuit of a college degree."

Scholarship recipients will be selected on the basis of scholastic achievement, leadership, community service, demonstrated financial need and composition of a short essay question. Application packets may be obtained from any of Bay Winds six branches or downloaded from www.baywindsfcu.com/youth online. Entries and accompanying materials must be received or postmarked prior to March 31 to be eligible.

Co-op to decide how directors should be elected

RYAN BENTLEY
NORTHERN MICHIGAN

VOTING DETAILS

The member-owners of Great Lakes Energy soon will be deciding on whether the electric cooperative's board of directors should be elected from geographic districts rather than on the at-large basis that's currently used.

Boync City-based Great Lakes, an electric cooperative that serves about 120,000 members in 26 northern and western Michigan counties, would make the change through a proposed amendment to its bylaws.

Mail-in ballots will be distributed to Great Lakes members with the February issue of electric cooperative magazine Michigan Country Lines. With these ballots, members can indicate whether they wish to see the bylaw change proceed.

If two-thirds of those voting favor the change, Great Lakes' service area would be divided into nine geographic districts, each to be represented on the cooperative's board by an elected director who lives within it.

To establish candidacy for a director position with the new system, one would still need to obtain valid petition signatures from 50 members, but these would need to come from members living in the candidate's district.

If the new method is approved, district-based director elections would start this year, with all nine board positions to be filled on a district basis by 2016.

Richard Walsworth, current chairman of the Great Lakes board and a Mears resident, encouraged members to support the bylaw change in a column published in the January issue of Michigan Country Lines.

Walsworth wrote that the Mail-in ballots will be distributed to Great Lakes Energy members with the February issue of electric cooperative magazine Michigan Country Lines, which is expected to reach them in early February.

Members can use the ballot to express their preference for or against a bylaw change, one that would switch election of the cooperative's directors from at-large to a district-based system. Support from two-thirds of those voting would be needed to make the change.

Great Lakes communications director Dave Guzniczak said members mailing in completed ballots should allow enough time for them to reach the cooperative's auditors by March 20.

The outcome of the vote will be formally announced at the Great Lakes board meeting on March 26, and also posted online at www.gtlakes.com.

Major Concerns Have Developed Regarding The District Proposals

The Top Ten Reasons why DISTRICTS should be TURNED DOWN:

- Directors are already local. Reviewing the proposed district map, one clearly sees that the Directors are already well dispersed geographically and are local.
- Members will lose 89% of their voting rights. That is correct. Members would give up their right to elect all nine Directors and be left with being able to only elect one.
- If it's not broken, don't fix it. The current approach of electing Directors at large has resulted in a great track record. The vast majority of members believe the cooperative is well-run and has made great strides in improving reliability.
- The weight of each vote will no longer be equal. A member's vote in the smaller districts (9,000 members) will be weighted over 1 and X times more than a member's vote in the larger districts (15,000 members). This violates an important democratic and cooperative principle.
- A district focus can be divisive. Instead of having the best interest of all members in mind, Directors become narrowly focused on a district.
- Improving the diversity of the Board will be more difficult. There are currently no women or minorities on the Board. With districts, members will not be able to vote for candidates they would like to support in other districts.
- Directors approve rates without regulatory oversight. It is very important that Directors continue to be well qualified and be held accountable to the entire membership, not just a district.
- Gerrymandering of districts over time. The Board can change the district boundaries each year without member input.
- Reduced choices. Currently there are challengers for all Directors up for re-election each year. With this proposal, some districts will not have challengers, leaving no choice in those districts.
- There is a better option. If change is truly desired by the members, a combination of regional and at large Directors is a far better option. The vast majority of cooperatives use a combined approach. Visit facebook.com/GLEKKeepYourRights for complete details.

we've given," Graham retorted, adding how that doesn't negate the city's obligation to pay for services rendered.

"I just think it's unfortunate we have to pay this much money for what to me is common sense," Porter said, adding that he doesn't understand the billed time spent "to come up with what we've been given."

The city's total legal bill for the question about Sullivan's conflict between offices is $14,379.50, so far.

Graham said he intends to speak with Charlevoix County commissioners at an upcoming meeting about their prior agreement to cover half the expenses related to researching the conflict of interest issue between the city and county positions, as it relates to state law. The next Charlevoix County Board meeting is set for Wednesday, Feb. 12.

He explained that legal expenses connected to the conflict of interest issue as it relates to the city charter is strictly a city legal cost, Graham said.

But if the county refuses to pay for half of the state law side of the legal research, Graham said he will credit the city for that amount.

Council member Lyle Gennett chimed in to point out that when a legal opinion is sought, there is no way of knowing how long the process will take and to what level the final bill will tally. Furthermore, Gennett suggested this case "went beyond the bounds of what we expected."

In the end, Porter cast the sole dissenting vote to send the $6,443.50 check to the city's Bellaire-based law firm. But that doesn't mean he's the only council member to question how the city's legal counsel handled the matter.

"An idiot could have told it was a conflict of interest. I knew that back in May," Gibson said following the public meeting.

Meanwhile, city leaders are expected to submit to Straebel by Feb. 17 their suggested language changes for the city charter's section about the city clerk. The idea is to allow enough time to work out ballot language for a city charter proposal for voters to consider yet this year.

hundred miles from a given member.

With northern portions of Great Lakes' service territory having a larger member population, Walsworth said it hasn't always been easy to line up local representation on the board for members living farther south.

"It is a win-win for all members and it's the right thing to do," Walsworth said of the proposed change.

Dave Guzniczak, communications director for Great Lakes, noted that district-based election of board members is a common approach among U.S. electric cooperatives.

"We're one of the few electric cooperatives in the United States that don't elect by district," he said. "Most of them do."

Paul Schemanski, a Great Lakes board member and Petoskey resident, disagrees with the desire of some of the other directors to move the district proposal forward. He's expressing numerous concerns about the new approach via a Facebook page, www.facebook.com/GLEKeepYourRights.

"If the members asked about making the change, I would encourage them to turn it down," he said. "I think there's some compelling reasons for that."

For example, members can vote for all nine at-large director positions under the current system, but would be voting only on the one seat representing their district with the new system — and Schemanski described this as a situation in which members would lose 89 percent of their voting rights. He also noted a concern that the new method potentially could lead directors to become narrowly focused on a district rather than the best interest of all members, and that the board is already well-dispersed geographically.

If members believe a change is needed in how directors are chosen, Schemanski suggests the cooperative explore another method with a combination of regionally-based and at-large election.

license to come back from Lansing, now that city officials signed off on the application. Though, a similar redevelopment liquor license request for downtown business Scoville's Gourmet took about six weeks, she said.

No public comments originally were made when mayor Norm Carlson Jr. asked for it, but a bit later Larry Sullivan spoke about how the Charlevoix County Building Department hasn't had any permits flagged for this project. Carlson replied that this issue previously was discussed with the DDA board, and if the business partners weren't going to be met with approval at the city level, he explained, they didn't wish to have the building permit expense.

The applicants said they also hope to in the future request a specialty designated merchant license for selling retail beer and wine for off-premise consumption, though not brands and types already available from other local merchants.

Additionally on Monday, the council unanimously voted 6-0 to approve the transfer of an existing liquor license for 100 Belvedere Ave. from Garb-ko Inc., which operated the former 7-11 convenience store, to Julia, Inc., a company based in Flushing. The plan calls for a new convenience store to be opened at the now vacant building at the corner of Belvedere Avenue and Bridge Street.

Then about noon, he said, they returned to the crash site.

"The police let us in and we took pictures," Leist said.

Leist said the deputies let them walk up a plowed trail to the downed airplane.

"There was not yellow tape. There was no crash investigation going on anymore," he said. "... If the cops would have told us that nobody is going up there, we would have gone home."

Dave Baragray, owner of Choice Publications, said he did not immediately plan to retain a lawyer for the reporter and did not have enough information about the charge to comment about the situation.

Leist is set to be arraigned

Tuesday, Feb. 11, and faces a second count for being a habitual felon for being guilty of manufacturing/distributing marijuana in 2011. The habitual offender count could make the maximum two-year charge multiplied by an additional year in prison.

Leist acknowledges the previous charge and says it relates to a medical marijuana dispensary he was previously involved in trying to operate.

Bossory, the camera man, has not been charged.

Rare charge

The prohibition of photographing a body in a grave is an obscure 1997 law enacted after a film crew captured images from wreck of the Edmund Fitzgerald, a 1975 wreck where bodies remained entombed.

In response to the outcry from the families, then Northern Michigan lawmakers Sen. Walter North, R-St. Ignace and Rep. Pat Gagliardi, D-Drummond Island, sponsored the law to prevent a person from "knowingly photograph or publicly display a photograph or all or a portion of a decedent located in a human grave" without approval from the next of kin.

"It's pretty clear that we're talking about disasters that happened in the Great Lakes, in Michigan waters, and the use of film without the family's consent for commercial value," Gagliardi told the Associated Press at the time of the bill's passage, which is quoted in the same year by the Reporters Committee for Freedom of the Press.

But, while the law does express special concern for Great Lakes waters, it also covers more general disasters and accidental grave sites such as a mine where "all or a portion of a decedent is located."

Charlevoix County Prosecutor Allen Telgenof said he brought the charge because "there were still remains at the scene."

Charlevoix County Sheriff Don Schneider said on camera at about 10 a.m. after the crash the bodies would be removed to Grand Rapids for an autopsy. When that happened is not immediately clear, but the law includes provisions for all remains to be defined as a body.

Telgenof acknowledged the law was new to him, but that they are merited given circumstances.

A News-Review staff writer took this photo of a Mooney M20, that crashed near Boyne City back in January. The staff writer was escorted by local police to the scene and the plane had broken into so many pieces, emergency responders could not initially tell the make and model of the plane. Now, a Charlevoix County News staffer faces felony charges for allegedly misleading law enforcement to capture video images of the crash site and "photographing a dead body in a grave."

Charlevoix pins conference tourney

NORTHERN MICHIGAN
REVIEW

BOYNE CITY — The Charlevoix High School varsity wrestling team earned titles at four different weight classes Saturday en route to winning the six-team Lake Michigan Conference tournament at the Boyne City High School gym.

The Rayders edged Grayling to win the tournament by one point, 115-114, while Traverse City St. Francis was third, 109; followed by Elk Rapids, 66; Boyne City, 48; and Kalkaska, 32.

In the final conference standings including all duals and the tournament, Grayling ended up placing first, while Charlevoix was second; followed by Boyne City, T.C. St. Francis and Elk Rapids and Kalkaska were tied for fifth.

"After losing to Grayling in a dual meet earlier in the week, we focused on winning the tournament and our wrestlers got the job done today," Charlevoix coach Mike Hinkle said. "We have some great kids and we work them really hard. They showed great work ethic. We focus on conditioning and I think our conditioning has won us a lot of matches this year."

For the Rayders, freshman Camden Alden was the conference champion at 112 points, while also for the Rayders freshman Tyler McCallum was league champion at 119, senior Jake Nothby at 145 and junior Sam Hovie at 160.

"The guys did a great job," Hinkle said. "Sam Hovie was coming off a pair of losses to Grayling and Elk Rapids earlier in the week and he wasn't wrestling up to par, but he won both his matches Saturday to both opponents who he lost to earlier."

"His hard work really paid off," Hinkle said. "What's great about this team is no-

Boyne City had one league champion at 152 pounds as Conner Mills placed first.

"Conner Mills is just coming back from an injury that sidelined him the first couple months of the season," Boyne City coach Don Nothel said. "He's getting progressively better and starting to clean up his wrestling. Things are coming together for him just in time for districts. Hopefully what will continue for him."

The Rayders also had three wrestlers finish as runner-up in their respective weight classes in senior Austin Cesaro, 135; sophomore Mick Hinkle, 189; and senior Andrew Mitchell, 285; while for Boyne City Chandler Roberts was runner-up at 145.

REVIEW

A strong second half propelled the Charlevoix boys' basketball team to a 69-32 Lake Michigan Conference win over Kalkaska on Friday, Jan. 31.

The Rayders, 4-8 overall, 3-4 in league play, led 14-7 after the first quarter, and 29-18 at the close of the first half.

The Rayders then scored 16 points to the Blazers' 10 in the third quarter to head into the fourth with a 45-28 lead.

Charlevoix would build much of their winning margin in the fourth, where they would out score Kalkaska 22-4.

"We really try to focus on getting better and coming out better in the third quarter," Charlevoix coach Bret Erskine said. "I thought we really focused in the third quarter after halftime and throughout the second half."

"It was a good game, the boys needed the win. We hadn't played in 10 days." Shane Sutherland led the Rayders with 13 points, while Matt MacKenzie scored 12 points and Nate Moon, 11 points.

Will Noble led Kalkaska with 15 points.

REVIEW

Madeline Boss scored 17 points and had three assists while Kelsey Engstrom added 13 points for Charlevoix during a 50-30 Lake Michigan Conference win over the Kalkaska on Friday, Jan. 31.

"This was a good team win for us tonight, against a solid program," Charlevoix coach Liz Shaw said. "We played solid defense, solid offense and everyone contributed to the win."

Charlevoix jumped out to a 21-10 first quarter lead.

The Rayders stretched the lead to 30-15 at halftime and 44-21 to end the third quarter.

"We were able to do the little things tonight and it paid off for us," Shaw added.

Also for Charlevoix, Ellie May had eight assists, Gabby Gray added four points and three assists, while Alexis Tribelfner had three assists and Kourtney Putman grabbed six rebounds.

For Kalkaska, Taylor Kibby scored nine points.

Charlevoix is 7-5 overall, 4-3 in league.

this year and took second to a high quality wrestler," Nohel said. "He's wrestling the best he ever has and it's nice to see the hard work pay off and it all come together for him."

Boyne City also had two wrestlers place third in Parker Stolt, 112; and Carter Wilmot, 140; while Charlevoix sophomore Sam Fusee also was third at 171.

"Parker Stolt is a freshman who has come a long way in his first year of wrestling," Nohel said. "He has shown steady improvement and is a tough kid who competes hard. We're looking for bigger and better things from him in the future."

Charlevoix's Mike Hinkle also lauded the efforts of sophomore Justin Adkins at 152 pounds, who also contributed to the tournament victory.

Other conference champions by weight class included: 103-Dylan Gilbert, Elk Rapids; 125-Zachary Schaub, T.C. St. Francis; 130-Zach Cheney, Grayling; 135-Matthew Mawby, T.C. St. Francis; 140-Ghayge Toomey, Grayling; 171-Nick Petrie, Grayling; 189-Jeff Myers, Grayling; 215-Eric Coggon, T.C. St. Francis; 285-Jacob Khoury, T.C. St. Francis.

Both Boyne City and Charlevoix will compete in a team district tournament at 6 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 6, at the Charlevoix High School gym.

Planning commissioners navigate marina expansion proposal toward city council

SHERI MCWHIRTER-O'DONNELL
COURIER EDITOR

Charlevoix City Council members are expected to next week consider — or at least discuss — a Round Lake marina expansion proposal intended to cater to boaters with large vessels and luxury yachts.

City planning commission members on Monday, Feb. 10, revisited the marina expansion discussion and almost all of those who voted on the matter agreed the idea certainly floats their boats. The plan would extend the main dock by an additional 150 feet, while the existing dock already stretches 170 feet from the break wall.

The number of slips also would be re-configured to boost the number of 80-foot slips from three to 10, plus the number of 50-foot slips from five to 11. Other slip sizes would also be adjusted, if the marina expansion is pursued.

"This is an expansion of an existing use. We're not starting from scratch," said Mike Spencer, city planner. "These boats — if they can't come here, they'll go elsewhere."

However, planning commissioner R.J. Waddell cast a sole dissenting vote for the recommendation of approval now already sent to the city council. He explained that he fully understands the positive economic impacts an expansion would bring, but remains concerned about the impacts to the visual landscape at Round Lake.

State of Community unveils 'Charlevoix First' program

Residents and professionals gathers to recap the year, look to future

SHERI MCWHIRTER-O'DONNELL
COURIER EDITOR

Charlevoix business professionals and community residents — though it seemed like most every one else in town, too — attended the early morning breakfast Friday at Castle Farms to hear the annual State of the Community address and get a first glimpse at the community's new branded image.

The last year proved full of changeovers and challenges, controversy and community planning. Much of that came to the forefront at the catered Feb. 7 event, as speaker after speaker took to the stage. The annual Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce event serves as the clearing house of community updates, when as many people as possible are in attendance.

Charlevoix city manager Rob Straebel spoke first about all that's happened and is ongoing with city government, including lessons picked up from what he called "missteps" surrounding the East Park fireplace controversy.

"But my therapist said it was a good idea to talk about it," Straebel joked, quickly followed by a raucous round of laughter from the crowd of about 250 who attended.

He further explained that the take-aways from the ordeal include the mantra of more public meetings and seeking more public input on just about all projects. Specifically, Straebel said the city developed a donation acceptance policy after the fireplace donation resulted in loud vocal opposition, including a special recall election and associated changeover on the city council.

Straebel also discussed a coming city wastewater treatment plant upgrade required by state regulators, along with a proposed city marina expansion proposal now making its way through the channels of city government.

Other speakers at the event included Jeff Crouse, of Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District, Lyn Jenks, of Charlevoix Area Hospital, and Bill McDonough, of Beaver Island.

Steve Seely, chamber board chairman, wrapped up the presentation by discussing ongoing efforts to plan for changes throughout the community, build up economic development and maintain existing businesses, services and infrastructure. Recent community forums served to highlight issues people are most concerned with, he said, and the chamber took careful notes.

"We have developed, and introduce today, a new branding message that we feel will be identified as a method to create a consistent, powerful identity for our community," Seely said.

There are three official logos officials unveiled at the breakfast event, all intended to broadcast a singular message: "Charlevoix First." The branding effort is meant to compel both locals and visitors to think about spending their time and money in Charlevoix first, before anywhere else, Seely said.

"While the place making and branding possibilities are endless, we take

Wild, rehabilitated eagle perched to be released Saturday

SHERI MCWHIRTER-
O'DONNELL
COURIER EDITOR

A rehabilitated American bald eagle will re-take her place in the wild on Saturday, right at the gateway to the Jordan River Valley and prime habitat.

Rebecca Lessard, of Wings of Wonder, will bring an approximately 3-year-old female eagle back to East Jordan after a two-month recovery at her raptor recovery nonprofit based in Empire, near Sleeping Bear Dunes National Lakeshore. Officials believe the bird suffered injuries in mid-December when struck by a passing car, before passersby reported her. Nearby Glen McCune, of East Jordan, came to the rescue.

"Yes, I was the one who picked up the eagle on the road," he said.

McCune said he kept the large, injured bird overnight before her visit to Jensen's Animal Hospital in Petoskey, where veterinarian Pamela Graves treated the wild eagle. After a slew of X-rays, Lessard said they didn't find any fractures. But it became clear the bird still wasn't OK.

"She was very, very stiff, and she was very tentative about her landings. She could still fly, so she was injured on the lower half of her," Lessard said. "We were concerned about her pelvis, but nothing was found."

The female raptor spent 24 hours in intensive care at the veterinary hospital, she said, before her transportation to the nonprofit raptor rehabilitation center in Empire.

"She was reluctant to eat, so I had to hand feed her for a week," Lessard said.

First the bird stayed in an 8-by-10-foot outdoor flight pen filled with dry pine needles. The injured eagle bedded down in the material and eventually began to heal. As she grew stronger, then came the 100-foot flight pen, Lessard said.

"She's been gaining weight and getting stronger," she said. "The last week she's been really kind of cocky about it. She'll be a handful by Saturday. She's acting like a normal eagle."

Lessard said there's no way to know whether the rehabilitated eagle will take up residence in the Jordan River Valley or Lake Charlevoix areas. But this is where she got hurt and rescued.

"That's why she's being brought back to East Jordan," she said. "I don't know if she's a local girl, or a migrator down from Canada."

Lessard will release the eagle promptly at 11 a.m. Saturday, Feb. 15, at Sportsman Park in East Jordan. Parking at the park will be reserved for handicapped drivers, a scheduled bus of seniors and also veterans, while other public parking will be available in downtown East Jordan and also at Harvest Barn Church, at 210 S. Lake St. Shuttle service will begin at 10 a.m. and spectators are encouraged to arrive early and leave pets at home.

Call the East Jordan Area Chamber of Commerce with questions about this event at (231) 536-7351, or send email to info@ejcchamber.org online.

Story-telling the focus of folk concert

Show designed in conjunction with ongoing Smithsonian exhibit

A musical journey is set to take place at the Charlevoix Public Library in conjunction with the Smithsonian's Journey Stories exhibit.

Folk musicians Stephen Guthrie and Friends will share their musical stories at 6:30 p.m. Monday, Feb. 24, at the library, 220 W. Clinton St., in downtown Charlevoix. As part of the library's WinterFolk Concert Series, an open mic session will also be offered after the performance.

Open mic is an opportunity for the public to share talents. Sign-up begins at 6 p.m. the night of the concert and is limited to five performers.

Stephen Guthrie performs a lot of different styles of music, and plays with a wide variety of local musicians. That's why organizers said he seemed the right choice to present the February WinterFolk concert in honor of the Charlevoix Library's hosting of the Smithsonian's Journey Stories exhibit. Drawing from a catalog of American music that includes big band, standards, jazz, western swing, classic country, blues, soft rock and folk, Guthrie pieced together a concert of songs that speak to what happens in the hearts of people when they take their own personal journey.

Joining him for the evening are a number of his friends, each an engaging performer and accomplished musician.

J.D. Lamb will perform his Midwestern folk/rock style at the March 31 WinterFolk Concert. For more information about the WinterFolk Concert Series, talk to Dwain at the library at (231) 547-2651.

County board, civil counsel: Sullivan not responsible for legal fees from city clerk inquiry

ZAC BRITTON
NORTHERN MICHIGAN REVIEW

Charlevoix County commissioner Larry Sullivan will not be personally responsible for the legal fees initially billed to the county and city of Charlevoix during his recent run to be selected city clerk.

That decision was made during the board of commissioner's meeting on Wednesday with county civil counsel Bryan Graham agreeing to waive $1,571 of pending fees, while the county will pay the balance of $865.50.

The reason? As commissioner Chris Christensen pointed out, there was no discussion or motions approved since August 2013 that asked Graham to continue exploring the legality of Sullivan holding city and county positions at the same time. Sullivan — pending a state Attorney General's opinion on the matter — won the clerk post by election to November, then was barred from having both positions with the Attorney General's announced decision in January.

The county commissioners voted 4-2 to pay the outstanding fees with George Lasater and Richard Gillespie voting against payment.

"In terms of the decision that was made, it's a learning process for everybody," stated Sullivan after the meeting. "We'll have to be a little tighter from both ends as far as being more specific in what we are authorizing and what we are not (in motions)."

That was one of several points discussed for approximately 30 minutes on Wednesday, prompted by Gillespie's email on Jan.

21 stating his belief that the county should not be financially responsible for legal fees incurred prior to the Attorney General's decision. Gillespie re-iterated that on Wednesday after board chairman Joel Evans made a motion to pay the remaining balance of $865.50, left outstanding from an August legal review by Graham.

"Is it just me, but does anyone else think it's unusual that Mr. Sullivan never spent one dime on this himself?" Gillespie asked.

"He didn't come to us and say 'you do the research' or go to the city and say 'you do the research,'" responded Evans. "We took it upon ourselves. We and the city stepped up to see if it was legal or not."

Much of the discussion up to Evan's motion did not include Sullivan, with each of the other five commissioners stating their thoughts on the issue. After an offer by Graham to waive the bulk of remaining fees, each commissioner spoke again with Sullivan speaking up last.

After Sullivan offered to abstain from Wednesday's vote, Graham responded that "from a legal perspective, the question was raised as to whether Mr. Sullivan had the legal obligation and the answer to that is no. I don't think there's any legal theory that you could utilize to put those costs on Mr. Sullivan personally, it related to his position as a county commissioner."

A key point was as Sullivan considered holding both offices, he submitted a letter to state senator Howard Walker's office to call for the Attorney General's office review. He stated the letter was dated on June 19, following a brief discussion between Sullivan and Leadership students pitch dog park to officials

SHERI MCWHIRTER-O'DONNELL

Two participants in this year's Leadership Charlevoix County class spoke Monday to the Charlevoix Planning Commission about their hopes to launch a new fenced dog park within the community.

Chris Leese and Dee Vincent talked with the planning commissioners about how the nonprofit leadership class wants to create designated dog parks in Boyne City, Charlevoix and East Jordan. Plans are already under way in Boyne City and East Jordan, they said.

Charlevoix planner Mike Spencer said quite a number of cities across Michigan and the United States invested in dog parks, but Charlevoix hasn't explored the idea before now. The purpose is to set aside a fenced space where dog owners could allow their canine companions to run off a leash in a place with plenty of fresh water, while still expecting owners to pick up after their animals.

are not generally allowed in East or Bridge parks in downtown Charlevoix, where many public events are hosted.

"There are visitors who don't get to visit here because they can't bring their dog and they don't go anywhere without them," Leese said.

Spencer said city officials encouraged the leadership students to conduct a public survey, which they started several weeks ago and to which they've already garnered about 200 responses.

"About 80 percent of participants own dogs," Leese said. "And 86.9 percent of them said they would take their dog to such a park."

Also, the leadership students looked at other communities' successes as a model.

"Traverse City does have a dog park and it's going over really, really well," Vincent said.

Planning commissioner Sherm Chalmers asked about the typical size of such a park, with enough room for both dogs and their humans to easily use the space. Leese said the idea is to find a place that is half to one acre large, and perhaps a system of volunteers could be arranged to "check the park for tidiness," she said.

However, lawn maintenance isn't yet determined, Leese said, adding it remains early in the planning phase and not all elements are yet sorted out.

"For the record, we are not considering East or Bridge parks," Spencer said. "There's just too much activity in those areas."

But that raises a logistical problem, especially since most of the survey respondents said they wanted a dog park within a mile, or so, of the city center.

"Then where do you find an acre of land in the city?"

asked John Elzinga, planning commissioner.

Spencer said both the leadership students and city employees will continue to work together on this project, with a goal to bring several options before the city's planning commission for consideration. Then planning commissioners could make a recommendation to Charlevoix City Council for final consideration, he said.

Hayes enters Charlevoix County judge race

BRANDON HUBBARD
NORTHERN MICHIGAN REVIEW

Charlevoix attorney Roy C. Hayes III is officially joining a heavily contested competition for 33rd Circuit Court judgeship.

Fellow Charlevoix attorneys Edward Engstrom, Mary Beth Kur and Valerie Snyder have also announced their candidacy to replace retiring Judge Richard Pajitas.

"I am humbled by the positive response I have received regarding my candidacy. Over the next six months, I look forward to meeting the voters of Charlevoix County and having the opportunity to assure them that they should place their trust in me to serve as their next Circuit Court Judge," Hayes said in his announcement.

Hayes grew up in Charlevoix and is a 1986 graduate of Charlevoix High School. He obtained his undergraduate degree from the University of Notre Dame in 1990 and his law degree

In 1993 from the Washington & Lee University Law School in Lexington, Va. In law school, Hayes spent summers working for Michigan Supreme Court Justice Patricia Boyle, and also for the Criminal Division of the United States Department of Justice in Washington, D.C., assisting federal prosecutors with legal research.

After law school, Hayes worked as a law clerk to Justice William Ray Price of the Missouri Supreme Court. Hayes returned home to Charlevoix after his judicial clerkship in 1994 to practice law with his father, the late Roy C. Hayes Jr., former United States Attorney to President Ronald Reagan.

The father-son team practiced law together in Charlevoix for six years before the elder Hayes retired in 2000. In one of their last cases together, they successfully defended the National Board of Medical Examiners on an Americans with Disabilities Act discrimination claim in the United States District Court for the Eastern District of Michigan in Detroit. Roy C. Hayes III was lead trial counsel in the case and successfully argued and defended the subsequent appeal on behalf of the board before the United States Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals in Cincinnati, Ohio.

"Over the course of my 20 year career as a trial attorney in Charlevoix," Hayes said, "I have represented hundreds of clients in divorce and child custody cases, criminal cases ranging from misdemeanor trespassing to 'capital' felony charges punishable by up to life in prison, civil litigation involving disputes over money and property rights, appeals, and probate matters involving guardianship and decedents' estates."

He added, "I have seen firsthand, that the subject matter of any dispute which has made its way into the court system is extremely important to those involved. People who find themselves in court are often under a lot of stress. They can be vulnerable, and sometimes they are 'at their worst.' The role of a fair and impartial judge is crucial to the legitimacy of our system of justice. The public's respect for and trust in the legal system requires that judges not only understand and follow the law without influence from personal bias, but also that judges respect the litigants and listen to what they have to say about the dispute at hand."

Hayes said he believes he has "unique and varied litigation experience representing clients in the state and federal court systems from Marquette to Detroit." He also cites having "successfully taken and defended numerous appeals before the Michigan Court of Appeals."

However, Hayes indicates much of his experience has been "closer to home, at the Charlevoix County court house." He urged voters unfamiliar with him to reach out to Charlevoix County law enforcement or individuals who work in the Charlevoix County Courts for their first hand experiences with him.

Last year, Hayes was appointed by Michigan Attorney General Bill Schuette to the position of Public Administrator for Charlevoix County, which requires Hayes to represent the State of Michigan in Charlevoix County probate matters involving deceased individuals without heirs.

Hayes currently owns and operates his own law practice, The Hayes Law Firm, at 209 Bridge Street in Charlevoix. In his free time, he enjoys hunting, fishing and spending time with his wife, Kendall, and his two daughters, Catherine and Sloane.

What we know

The first complete human genome was decoded only about 10 years ago. The genome is a complete listing of the genes in the DNA blueprint which records all the genetic information we inherited from our parents and can pass along to our children. The first human genome was a multi-million dollar project that took years and multiple laboratories to complete. In the time since, the procedure of recording each and all of a person's genes has become almost routine. The cost of collecting that information for an individual has gone down to a few thousand dollars, and it is expected to be further reduced as techniques improve. Why is this of any importance to you?

Each of us is clearly more than just the genes we inherit from parents. But the genes are important. Each gene comes in multiple types, some of which are beneficial and some of which clearly signal that there will be possible future disease problems. With widespread genome testing, each of us could know something about the possibilities for certain diseases. For example, there are some variant genes that are predictors of the likelihood of breast cancer later in life. Other genes are predictors of probable heart disease or early dementia.

As genome testing becomes more available and less expensive, a serious set of moral problems arises. Would you want to know whether you are likely to develop breast cancer or heart disease some time in the future? Just how likely is that disease to occur? More serious questions arise if that genetic testing is provided for newborns or children. You could choose, newborns cannot. You would have to choose for them.

Such testing will probably be available commercially within a few years. Would you want to know that your baby is likely to develop breast cancer? What would you do about it?

A vivid example is provided by what is called Huntington's Disease. It is an inherited neurological condition that invariably results in fatal mental deterioration during the third or fourth decade of life. It is a truly ugly disease, most famously for ending the life of Woodie Guthrie. If a parent has that condition, children have a 50-percent chance of inheriting it. Tests are available already that can confidently predict the development of the disease. Would you want to know, at birth, if your child will develop the condition? What would you do about it?

Other genetic disease conditions are not as clearly predictable as Huntington's, but the moral problem is the same. Should children, or even fetuses, be genetically analyzed to partly determine their future conditions? Should society as a whole make such decisions, or should it be left to parents or individuals?

Genetic analysis is unlikely to tell you how tall or how smart your child is likely to be, but it can already provide information about future disease conditions. We should be prepared to ask and answer the moral questions raised by such possibilities. Science marches on, and we will have such knowledge in the future. We had better be prepared.

LETTERS to the editor

Vote 'no' in special election

Editor:

At the heart of the cooperative is democratic control. This is expressed in the members' ability to elect the directors from among their own membership. Today, the by-laws of Great Lakes Energy give the members the right to elect all nine directors.

Over a three year period, the entire membership decides who they believe are the best nine members to serve on the board. This has resulted in a highly qualified board that is also widely dispersed geographically. It also means that where a member lives is not the most important qualification.

In just the past three years, there has been a member on the board from eight of the proposed nine districts. As such, this districts proposal will gain very little in geographical diversity. Yet it will cost members 89 percent of their voting rights, leaving them with the ability to elect only one director every three years.

The vast majority of members feel the cooperative is well run and has made significant improvements in reliability over the years. Do we really want directors to have a narrow district view instead of looking at the cooperative as a whole?

And, there is a better approach being left off the ballot. It's a combination of at large and geographic based directors. The combined approach is used by the majority of cooperatives. It preserves the voting rights of the membership and guarantees a reasonable degree of geographic diversity. To enable a vote on this better approach, the all districts proposal needs to be turned down.

For these reasons, and more, turn down the district proposal by voting "no" in the special election.

Please visit facebook.com/GLEKeepYourRights to learn additional reasons to turn down this proposal and details on the better approach.

Same concerns over marina proposal as years before

Editor:

The Charlevoix Round Lake Marina has once again become a subject of controversy.

The remodeling several years ago caused public hearings and much input from the community. The city put forth a plan that would have extended docks 400 feet into Round Lake. WATCH (Water and Air Team Charlevoix) was concerned about the impact of such a plan and provided an alternate plan that indicated less than half of that distance. The designer gathered comments from all parties and came up with a scaled down, compromise plan which resulted in the marina that we have today. We feel that it has been accepted by the community as an asset.

Now we learn that the city is once again interested in extending one dock to that controversial length of about 400 feet. We wonder if the other docks will be in line for such an idea at some point in the future.

Our concerns are the same as in 2001 when the issue was under consideration. There would be increased boat traffic in an already congested area which would lead to more degradation of the water quality of Round Lake. Aesthetically, this beautiful resource would be more cluttered with docks and boats and our view would be more restricted. More natural lake area would be lost forever to development.

We feel that the compromise that was reached was the point at which the community said "enough," and that that compromise should not be violated.

We urge you to keep the marina as it is and vote against any expansion.

Bridging our past with our future

LOOKING BACK...

The passenger liner Illinois went aground in Charlevoix twice, the first time lost in fog on a sandbar north of the piers in 1904, the second time at 6:30 p.m. on Sunday, Aug. 26, 1906, on what became the municipal beach. The ship was coming in from Petoskey with about 400 passengers and crew, with weather kicking up. A small schooner was heading in from the west, and the Illinois' captain thought he could beat the sailboat. But he misjudged, saw a collision in the making, swerved, overshot the piers, and ended up gliding onto what is today Lake Michigan Beach, just three feet from shore. The captain had no success backing the ship off while the wind and waves became strong enough to turn the ship to point north and almost broadside to the beach. With the weather worsening, water now pouring in and waves washing the decks, it became evident the entire ship had to be evacuated or panic would break out. To the rescue came the Life Saving Service (later U.S. Coast Guard) men stationed on the channel. All night long, using a breeches buoy and life boats, the mission went on until dawn, with no injuries or loss of life. The boat was able to be refloated and on its way on Tuesday. The Illinois rescue mission in Charlevoix turned out to be most successful life-saving event in the history of the Great Lakes.

The Charlevoix Historical Society's new, fully illustrated exhibit titled Journeying to Charlevoix will be at the Depot, Depot Beach, through Saturday, March 22. The event is offered in partnership with the Smithsonian Institution exhibit titled Journey Stories, which currently is at Charlevoix Public Library. Hours of the Depot exhibit are 10 a.m.-4 p.m. Saturdays, 4-7 p.m. Wednesdays, or by special appointment. Call (231) 547-0373 for more information.

Gendron asks public to take survey

Strategic plan in the works for Charlevoix Schools

SHERI MCWHIRTER-O'DONNELL
COURIER EDITOR

Charlevoix Public Schools will participate in a strategic planning effort in coming weeks and months and superintendent Bob Gendron said officials want help from the public.

"It's very important as we plan our path for the next 3-5 years to get as much input from the public as possible," he said.

A new strategic plan would be intended to provide a road map for the future of the district, in its mission to equip local students with the experiences and tools necessary for additional schooling or the world of work. The plan's creation will happen through a facilitated process guided by the Michigan Association of School Boards. The statewide organization will collect data through community forums, interviews with diverse stakeholders and an online survey meant to take about five minutes.

The online survey will be available at website www.surveymonkey.com/s/CharlevoixPS_3_1-2014 online until Friday, Feb. 28.

All of the data will be collected, analyzed and presented at a community stakeholders meeting on March 15, when final brainstorming and hashing out of ideas and goals is expected to be completed by day's end. Much information about that session will be made public in coming weeks.

Anyone with questions or suggestions may contact Gendron via email sent to rgendron@rayder.net online.

Northern Michigan Brass Band to play benefit show

Charlevoix, Northwest Academy students to join performance

The Northern Michigan Brass Band will present a program titled "Tribute to Cole Porter" as part of its ongoing series at 3 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 23, in the Charlevoix High School auditorium. The program will feature brass players from the Charlevoix High School and Northwest Academy Bands joining the Northern Michigan Brass Band in a performance of "Star Lake," a march by British composer Eric Ball. Now in its 15th year of operation, the band also will perform a program of original and transcribed brass band music by Edward Gregson, Igor Stravinsky, W.A. Mozart, Joseph Horowitz, Johann Strauss, George Gershwin, Louis Ganne, D.W. Reeves and Cole Porter.

Featured soloists will be band founding members Beverly Isenbarger in a performance of the "Rondo" from Mozart's "Horn Concerto No. 4," and Ev Wujcik in a flugelhorn rendition of Cole Porter's "I've Got You Under My Skin."

General admission is $10, while students will be admitted free. Proceeds will go — in part — to support the Charlevoix High School and Northwest Academy band programs. Tickets will be available at the door.

According to band conductor Ralph Schweigert, the idea for a series of programs based on the concept "Something for Everyone," originates from the fact that not everyone listens to music in the same way.

"Some people listen with their heads, others with their hearts and still others with their feet," Schweigert said. "I try to include music that will appeal to all these listening styles on any one program."

The program also will include "Prelude for an Occasion," an opening fanfare by British composer Edward Gregson; the Allegro movement from "Sinfonietta," a major composition for brass band by British composer Joseph Horowitz; the Bercuse and Finale from "The Firebird" by Igor Stravinsky; "Thunder and Lightning," the famous polka by Johann Strauss, Jr.; "Fascinating Rhythm" by George Gershwin; "The Father of Victory," a classic French march by Louis Ganne, and "2nd Regiment Connecticut N.G.," one of the first truly great, but rarely played, American marches by David Wallace Reeves. The concert will conclude with a tribute to Cole Porter with the Nelson Riddle arrangement of "I've Got You Under My Skin," followed by a medley of several of his greatest hits including "Another Op'nin'," "Another Show," "True Love," "I Love Paris," "C'est Magnifique" and "Wonderbar."

Centered in Gaylord, this all-volunteer, 30-piece ensemble attracts adult brass players from across Northern Michigan from Alpena to Traverse City and Frankfort north to Mackinaw City, including Petoskey, Charlevoix, Bellaire, Interlochen, East Jordan, Beulah and Gaylord musicians. Since the band organized in January 1999, it has presented more than 75 concerts in various venues throughout Michigan.

For more information about the band in general or this concert in particular, visit www.northernmichiganbrassband.org online.

The Northern Michigan Brass Band is a nonprofit, 501(c)(3) organization and is eligible to receive tax-deductible contributions. This concert is sponsored in part by the Gaylord Area Council for the Arts.

Nicaragua mission trip benefit set for Sunday at parish hall

The Rosary Altar Society will host a benefit for the St. Mary's Missionaries, who are scheduled to make a second trip to Nicaragua from Feb. 28-March 7. Besides over-the-counter items, diapers, T-shirts, baby clothing, hair grooming items and baseball caps are much-needed items.

Coming to the aid of the mission group, the Rosary Altar Society arranged to have 22 baseball caps donated for the mission by Fox Muturs of Charlevoix. Last year, the society began its Rosary Maker Program and the results will be 300 rosaries from the program plus 100 donated rosaries to be donated to the mission trip.

The public is welcome to the soup-tasting fundraiser at 12:30 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 16, at St. Mary's Parish hall in Charlevoix. Admission will be by donation and the menu will be an array of soups, desserts and both hot and cold beverages.

The event will include a 50-50 drawing and a silent auction. The highlight of the event will be the public vote for the favorite soup of that afternoon. Games of choice will be played afterwards during social hour, and the winning soup maker will be crowned at the end of the evening.

Donations for the mission trip can be dropped off at the gathering space at St. Mary's Parish during church hours. Needed items include T-shirts, baby clothing, diapers, toothbrushes and cash donations, which are still being collected for the mission, according to Kathy Lame, mission volunteer.

High school Zonta program launches inaugural year as Z-Club

The newly formed Z-Club of Charlevoix High School is off to a running start. This is an anniversary year for the service and advocacy group.

Annual special events include: "Z-Tea" in the spring, "Literary Delights" luncheon to highlight Michigan women authors, and many other appearances and participation at events in the Charlevoix area.

The most exciting news in the club's 25th year is the launch of the high school Z-Club. More than a dozen interested members, headed up by president Emily Roloff, convene twice monthly for a general membership meeting. At the top of their busy agenda is their community outreach project to promote literacy, called the PREZ program, an acronym for "Promoting Reading Education by Zonta." The Z-Club members take turns reading to groups of elementary school kids. They will visit the Charlevoix Elementary School every Wednesday and read in shifts to kindergarten through second-grade students. By doing this each week, they are promoting literacy, interest in reading, creating new friendships and letting younger kids know that reading is fun. The Charlevoix Z-Club is a platform that will help raise awareness of women's rights, educate the community on a school-age level, and also groom the young members to have a voice to which the world will listen. More community programs should be expected, including International Women's Day on March 8.

OBITUARY

Paul J. Creasey, Sr., 84

Paul J. Creasey Sr. died Feb. 4, 2014, in Petoskey.

Paul was born Nov. 22, 1929, in McKeesport, Penn., to George and Mae Creasey. He was the oldest of their three children. He attended Lemoyne High School, Lemoyne, Penn.

During an illustrious career, Paul spent more than 40 years in the insurance business, running successful agencies in Grand Rapids, Mich., and San Francisco, Calif.

In his latter years, Paul spent summers on the beautiful shores of Lake Charlevoix and winters in the balmy breezes of Marco Island, Fla.

Paul is preceded in death by his wife, Geri Creasey, and his sister, Helen Fisher. He is survived by his brother, Dr. Richard Creasey, and sister-in-law, Barbara Creasey; his children, Melissa Creasey, Paul J. "Chad" Creasey Jr. and

H. Jessica Creasey Shutter and son-in-law, Les Shutter, stepson, James Harris, and five grandchildren, Rebecca, Hannah, Paige, Zachary and Quinn; and many nieces and nephews.

A memorial service was on Sunday, Feb. 9, at Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix.

Donations may be sent to the Mercy Health Lacks Cancer Center, 250 Cherry St. SE, Grand Rapids, MI 49503.

Graham after a May meeting about the possibility of holding both offices.

State representative Greg MacMaster and county prosecuting attorney Allen Telgenhof were also reportedly asked to get the Attorney General's office to submit an opinion in 2013.

"We can Monday morning quarterback this to death," stated Christensen, just prior to the vote. "I will say that on the 24th of July when the original vote was taken (for the civil counsel's review of holding both posts), and Larry did vote in the affirmative had we known then what we know now, we could have asked Bryan if Bryan said 'why would I give an opinion if there's an opinion coming (from the Attorney General's office)?" Nobody knows where the Attorney General's opinion originated from — Was it from Larry's request to Howard Walker? Did it originate from our request to Greg MacMaster or did it originate from the request of Allen Telgenhof? I don't know the answer to that question."

Afterward, Sullivan — who stated he did not accrue any other personal legal fees in pursuit of the city clerk position — was relieved.

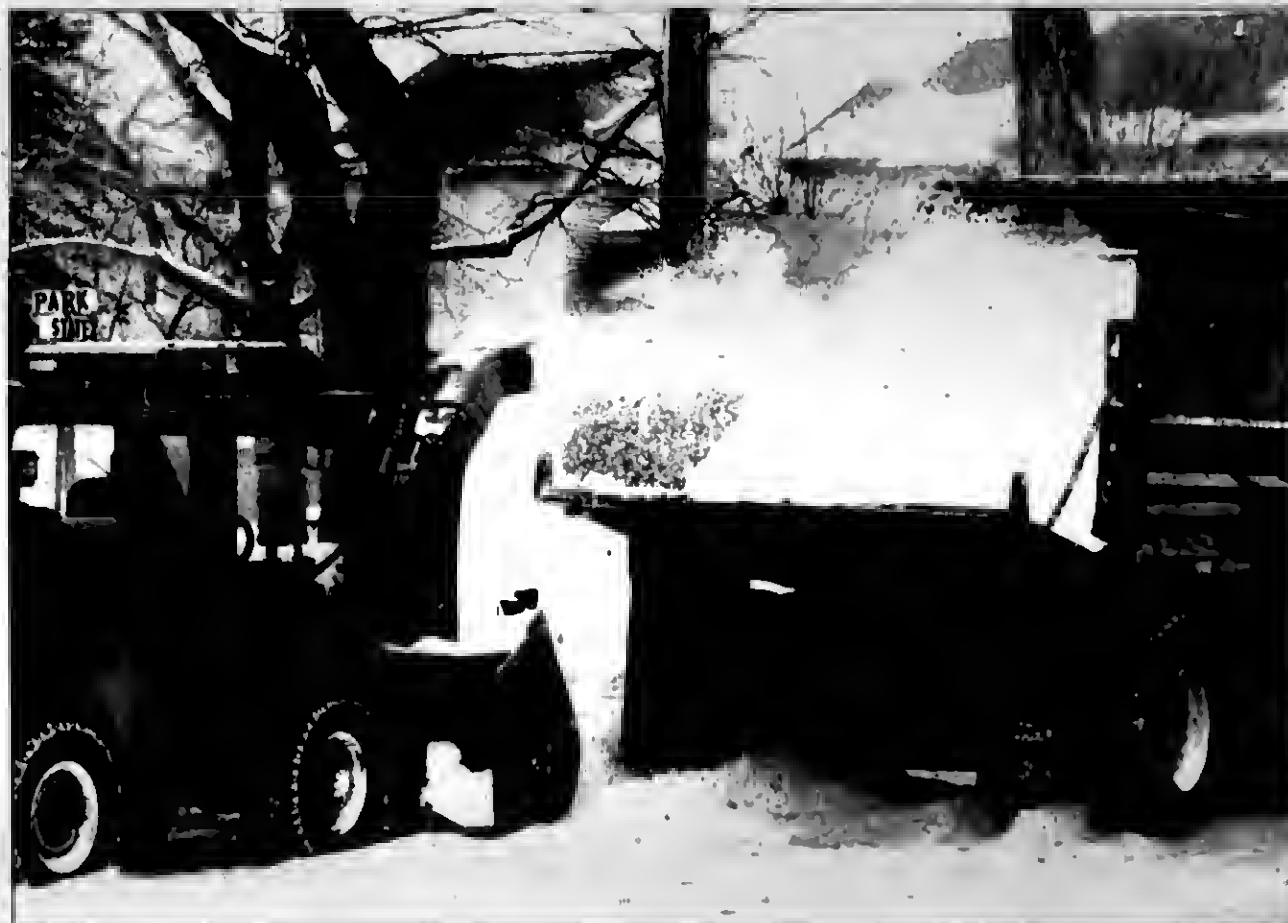

"I'd like to see it put to rest," he explained. "It was a really a heart-wrenching decision to make. A tough decision for me and my family. I'd like to see this blow over and we can get on to other things."

Grant to Ellsworth agency to benefit fifteen Charlevoix County families

Charlevoix County Community Foundation contributes thousands of dollars to help

The Charlevoix County Community Foundation awarded a $5,000 grant to Good Samaritan Pantry and Resale Shop of Ellsworth. The grant will purchase fuel for heating and utility payments to keep 15 Charlevoix County families warm and in their own homes this winter.

The Foundation has awarded grants for this purpose to Good Samaritan over the past eight winters to help needy Charlevoix County families. Good Samaritan Pantry is an important human service agency serving southern Charlevoix County as well as Antrim County residents providing: food, clothing, emergency heating fuel, and helping with utility payments for needy families.

Good Samaritan's ability to help neighbors in need is dependent on the generosity of members of the community. If you would like more information about the organization, go to www.thegoodsam.org, or if you are interested in helping with a tax-deductible gift, contact Good Samaritan Family Services, PO Box 206, Ellsworth, MI 49729, or by calling (231) 588-2208.

The Charlevoix County Community Foundation is a local charitable organization dedicated to improving and enriching life for all who live, work, or vacation in Charlevoix County. CCCF works to enhance the quality of life in Charlevoix County, now and for generations to come, by building permanent charitable endowments from a wide range of donors, addressing needs through grant making, and providing leadership on matters of community concern. More information about the Charlevoix County Community Foundation may be found at www.ccf.org or by calling (231) 536-2440.

Villager Pub honored for February business of the month

The Villager Pub is the February Business of the Month, recognized by the Charlevoix Chamber Ambassador Committee.

Terry and Patti Left are owners of the long-running business. The Villager Pub has been in business since 1981 and the staff there are known to love to serve, and have become good friends with many customers, both local and visitors alike. The business enhanced the community with its longevity, a staple in downtown Charlevoix for 33 years and a place of employment for 45 full-time, year-round Charlevoix citizens, along with 75 jobs every summer. Most of the pub's employees are veterans with more than 15 years at the Villager, with two there since the beginning more than three decades ago.

The business supported many projects in the last few years, including the Historical Society's annual spaghetti dinner raising $30,000 to date, the hike trail project, Venetian Festival fireworks, the new Bridge Drop event and winter fireworks — and will on March 12 host a benefit dinner for the planned Charlevoix-based Joppa House women's and children's homeless shelter.

The Villager Pub is a long-standing member and supporter of the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce and its programs. This recognition by the chamber means the Villager Pub will be a contender for the chamber's annual Business of the Year Award, which will be presented at the state of the community address and awards presentation in February 2015.

Foundation contributes to college's mobile training lab

Fabrication courses to begin this fall

Chip Hansen, president of the Charlevoix County Community Foundation, presented a check for $10,800 to the North Central Michigan College Foundation in support of the new Mobile Digital Fabrication Lab — known as the Fab Lab — a mobile computer numerical control manufacturing training lab.

The facility is a specialized computer training lab that can be transported throughout the region to provide education and training on site. The college and its industry partners developed courses to start in the fall 2014 semester for high school and college students, as well as area manufacturers. This is the only program of its kind in Northern Michigan.

"The Charlevoix County Community Foundation is delighted to partner with North Central and the business community in such a worthwhile project," said Hansen.

North Central Michigan

College is an open-door community college based in Petoskey, with additional locations that offer classes and services in Cheboygan and Gaylord. The college's mission is to provide educational, economic and cultural opportunities for student learning, personal growth and community improvement.

For love of the sport

A group of Charlevoix outdoor enthusiasts have for more than 20 years kayaked almost every lake and river in Northern Michigan, along with Isle Royale. Recently the group explored the salt water tidal creek waterways of Kiawah Island in South Carolina, including kayaking with dolphins. MARINA the public also objected to the marina expansion during public comments. Nancy Ferguson, president of environmental group WATCH, said she represents an organization of people who don't want the marina touched after years ago the city struck a deal with the group to limit the marina to its now existing size.

"The park has been a great success," Ferguson said, further suggesting the city pursue more public opinions, similar to the marching orders given to the Leadership Charlevoix County students who pitched a public dog park. "I think maybe you need to survey the community on this."

On the flip side, area resident Kirby Dipert spoke in favor of the marina expansion proposal, arguing it's a concrete way to boost downtown economic development and address concerns about vacant storefronts in Charlevoix. He further opined that "a handful of the same people" reject each time new proposals are made regarding the city's downtown and waterfront areas, no matter the idea.

At a prior meeting, planning commissioners said they wanted more than one logistical option to consider to expand the marina. But the project engineer James Muschell with United Design Associates, of Cheboygan, and Spencer both explained how lines of riparian rights for other lakeshore property owners prevent the more southern Piers C and D from being extended, while making Pier B longer doesn't provide an increase in the large boat slips — which is the actual goal of the proposal.

"That's essentially the reason Pier A was chosen for the expansion," Spencer said. "I personally don't recommend expanding Pier B because it doesn't provide you with the size slips we need."

Additional public comments can be submitted when the proposal goes before the Charlevoix City Council at 7 p.m. Monday, Feb. 17, at city hall, 210 State St., downtown Charlevoix. However, an additional public hearing is expected to be scheduled by city council members for a yet undetermined time.

with the Petoskey News-Review, nor the Charlevoix Courier.

Leist additionally is being charged as a habitual felon for a 2011 felony of manufacturing and/or distributing medical marijuana, which could increase his sentence if found guilty by one and a half the maximum of the original sentence.

Charlevoix County deputies allege Leist misled reserved deputies posted at the location to gain access to the crash site, the affidavit states.

"If the cops would have told us that nobody is going up there, we would have gone home," Leist told the News-Review last week.

The court records also state that partial remains were still located at the crash site.

Leist says he did not see any "bodies" at the crash site.

Other media outlets, including the Petoskey News-Review, were taken to the crash site on snowmobiles by police. However, at the site, they were not allowed within a certain distance of the wreckage. Leist filmed himself standing in the wreckage.

Michigan law was amended in 1997 to include photographing dead bodies in a grave as a crime and redefined "grave" to include crash sites and disaster areas.

Leist is set for a pretrial Tuesday, Feb. 18, and elected to forgo a public defender Tuesday.

Four Rayders advance to individual regional tourney

STEVE FOLEY
NORTHERN MICHIGAN
REVIEW

NEWBERRY — The Charlevoix High School varsity wrestling team had a strong showing Saturday at the Division IV individual district tournament.

A total of four different Rayders advanced to the Division IV regional tournament — which takes place Saturday, Feb. 15, in Rogers City — as Sam Hovie, Jake Novotny, Mick Hinkle and Camden Alden all placed in the individual district.

Hovie, a junior, was the individual district champion at 160 pounds as he defeated Nathaniel Meyer of Ishpeming in the finals by pin in 2 minutes, 41 seconds.

Hovie, now with a 43-6 record on the season, drew a first-round bye to start the tournament, then pinned Bark River-Harris Zeke Oswald in 25 seconds before pinning Matt Robinson of Boyne City in 44 seconds in his semifinal match.

Novotny, a senior who wrestles at 152 pounds, placed third as he defeated Xavier Gonzalez in the consolation finals, 3-2.

Novotny, who carries a 44-6 record, opened with a 14-2 major decision win over Ishpeming Westwood's Josh Argall, then fell to Boyne City's Conner Mills 9-1 before earning a 15-2 decision win over Bobby Miles of Munising to advance to the consolation finals.

Hinkle, a sophomore who wrestles at 189 pounds, also placed third as he defeated Michael Brock of Manistique by pin in 4:57 in the consolation finals.

Hinkle, who carries a 35-15 record into this weekend's regional tournament, had a first-round bye to start the district before pinning Bark River-Harris' Eli Oswald in 1:40.

Hinkle then fell to Onaway's Casey Watson by pin in 2:18 before in a consolation semifinal match pinned Norway's Shane Brasif in 2:28 to advance to the consolation final.

Alden, a freshman who was wrestling at 112 pounds, placed fourth as he fell to Dylan Hoffart of Norway by pin in 2:40 in the consolation finals.

Alden, who is 40-7 on the season, opened the tournament with a 34 second pin win over Manistique's Amber Smith, then fell to Rudyard's Jimmy Spencer, 2-0, before pinning Gwinn's Anderson Alexander in 4:49 to advance to the third-place match.

Also for the Rayders, senior Austin Cesaro and freshman Tyler McCallum both lost their qualifying bouts by a narrow margin after wrestling exception matches in the quarterfinal rounds.

Charlevoix coach Mike Hinkle said.

Cesaro fell in sudden death overtime to Brett Ratio of Ishpeming Westwood and McCallum fell to Wyatt Makosky of Ishpeming Westwood, 12-11.

Junior Devin Largent was also eliminated in the quarterfinal round in the 215 pound class as he fell to Iron Mountain's Brayden Fitzpatrick by pin in 3:59.

BELLAIRE — Charlevoix freshman Bradley Klinger placed a team-best second overall in giant slalom Monday at the Division II regional meet at Schuss Mountain and qualified as an individual for the Division II state finals Monday, Feb. 24, at Nub's Nob.

Klinger finished runner-up in the GS behind Bellaire's Ben Hicks. Hicks finished in 49.48 seconds, while Klinger finished in 50.81. Petoskey's Gunnar Lundteigen won the slalom in 59.02. Also for the Charlevoix-

East Jordan boys team, which placed eighth out of 12 teams with 264 points, Brandon Cardwell was 11th in GS, while Ben Boss was 49th. In slalom for the Charlevoix-East Jordan boys, Cardwell was 11th, followed by Brad Klinger, 16th; Luke Klinger, 54th; Boss, 55th; and Guillermo Yancz, 60th.

The Petoskey boys won the regional title with 62 points, while Elk Rapids-Traverse City St. Francis was second, 133; and Ironwood-Luther L. Wright was third, 145. All three teams along with Klinger will par-

EAST JORDAN — Sophomore Kelsey Engstrom hit six three-pointers and ended the game with 20 points to help lead the Charlevoix High School girls' basketball team past East Jordan, 52-38, during a Lake Michigan Conference game on Friday.

For East Jordan, Paige Pindexter scored 12 points and Lindsay Schroeder added 11.

Charlevoix grabbed the lead at the end of the first quarter, 12-11, and then stretched the lead to 24-21 to end the first half.

"They (East Jordan) were out hustling us in the first half," Charlevoix coach Liz Shaw said. "Our team leadership stepped up and we started playing better defense and pressed better in the second half."

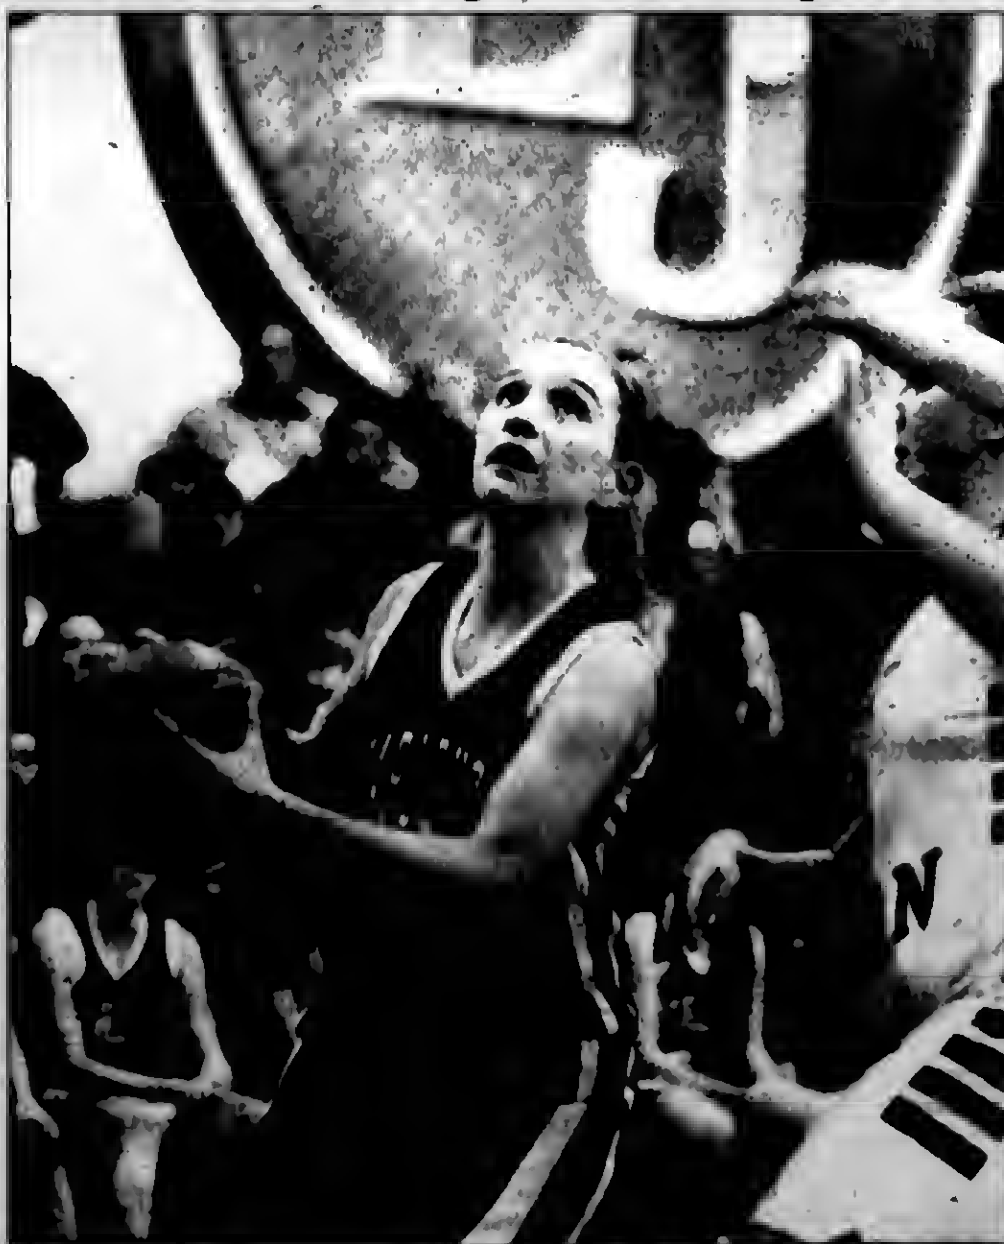

Charlevoix outscored East Jordan 15-8 to extend their lead in the third quarter to 39-29.

"It was a pretty close game at halftime, just in the third quarter, we turned the ball over too much," East Jordan coach Steve Hines said.

Also for Charlevoix, Madeline Boss had a double-double with 14 points and 13 rebounds, while Kourtney Putman added eight points.

Boss also added eight steals and Alexis Tribelner had six steals.

Charlevoix improves to 8-7 overall, 5-4 in league.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN
REVIEW

EAST JORDAN — Sophomores Jordan Weber and Donny Cutler each scored 14 points for the East Jordan High School boys' basketball team during a Lake Michigan Conference win over Charlevoix, 53-40, Friday at the East Jordan High School gym.

"It was a tight game all the way through," East Jordan coach Darrin Weber said. "It was a typical East Jordan-Charlevoix game, it wasn't pretty."

Charlevoix held the first quarter lead, 9-8. East Jordan would later claim the lead during the second quarter as the half ended with the Red Devils on top, 23-19.

In the third, the Rayders would work to within one point as the Red Devils clung to a 33-32 end of the third quarter lead.

The Red Devils outscored the Rayders 20-8 in the fourth quarter, aided by their 8-of-11 free throw shooting mark.

"We hit our free throws in the fourth quarter," Weber said. "Also, Cutler scored 10 of his 14 points in the final quarter."

Noah Bacchus added 11 points for East Jordan, while Nate Moon scored a game high 15 points for the Rayders.

The Rayders are 4-11 overall, 3-6 league.

Also, the Charlevoix JV boys' basketball team defeated Elk Rapids, 63-42, in a game played last week. The Rayders led at the quarter breaks 23-9, 34-20 and 51-32.

"Once again, the boys started really well on both ends of the floor," Charlevoix coach Joe Solomon said. "Defensively we forced several turnovers which we were able to convert into easy baskets and jump out to an early lead. Except for the little bit of foul trouble and a few unforced turnovers, I think this was probably our most complete game this season."

For the Rayders, 10-4, JJ Wachler led all scorers with 25 points, while Walker Drost added 13 points and Jordan Adkins, nine.

take in the Division II state finals Monday, Feb. 24, at Nub's Nob.

On the girls side of the regional meet, Charlevoix-East Jordan finished in 10th place out of 11 teams with 317 points. Houghton-Hancock won the regional title with 51 points, while Petoskey was second, 67; followed by Harbor Springs, 103. All three teams also advance to the Division II state finals Monday, Feb. 24, at Nub's Nob.

Houghton-Hancock's Jenna Stein won the girls' giant slalom in 51.46, while Petoskey's Mia Ciccoretti won the slalom in 1 minute, 4.25 seconds.

Cora Taylor led the Charlevoix-East Jordan girls as she was a team-best 16th in slalom, while Kylee Scholten was 30th in slalom and 33rd in GS. Also for the Charlevoix-East Jordan girls, Luisa Ponleit was 41st in GS, 53rd slalom; Taylor, 49th GS; Henne Fritzsche, 47th slalom, 51st GS; Pia Rosenhagen, 50th slalom; and Noem Brunshwiler, 53rd GS, 54th slalom.

Marina expansion public hearing set

SHERI MCWHIRTER-O'DONNELL
COURIER EDITOR

A hotly debated Round Lake marina expansion is up for public feedback.

City officials this week scheduled a public hearing to accept comments about a possible marina expansion, even though Charlevoix leaders themselves aren't entirely sold on the proposal. The hearing will begin at 7 p.m. Monday, March 3, at city hall, 210 State St. in downtown Charlevoix.

Rob Straebel, city manager, said Charlevoix City Council could approve the proposed marina expansion at that time, if desired. "You could scale the project back or go with what is proposed," he said.

But at least two city council members maintain some concerns about the size and scope of the proposed marina project, an effort to expand the number of slips for larger boats and yachts between 60 and 80 feet.

Councilwoman Shirley Gibson asked whether the city performed an environmental impact study, and Straebel replied it's part of the state and federal permitting process. Councilman

Charlevoix city budget adopted at meeting

Sewer rates hiked, but airport fuel surcharge is talk's crux

SHERI MCWHIRTER-O'DONNELL
COURIER EDITOR

Charlevoix's 2014-2015 city budget is in place following Monday's city council meeting, but not without some controversy.

Council members unanimously voted to approve the budget as presented, following changes made during budget discussions in a recent five-hour marathon work session among city leaders, officials and department heads. And despite rather large hikes to city sewer rates adopted with the budget, that didn't prove the most controversial budgetary issue.

A previously proposed 25-cent per gallon fuel truck surcharge became a hot button issue at a Feb. 3 council meeting, with Fresh Air Aviation owner Rachel Teague speaking against the idea. She argued the surcharge would unfairly discriminate against Fresh Air Aviation, though city officials said anyone who uses the fuel truck would be charged the new per-gallon fee.

It's true Fresh Air is the city's primary user of the fuel delivery truck. "This is excessive, unjust, and we believe illegal under (Federal Aviation Administration) guidelines because this new fee only impacts Fresh Air Aviation and puts us at an economic disadvantage because of our location on the field," Teague said Feb. 3.

Mayor Norm Carlson Jr. at the prior meeting directed airport manager Scott Woody to continue to negotiate with the Beaver Island airline company, and in the meantime the budget went before council for final consideration with the proposed airport fuel truck surcharge dropped. But nobody ran that detail past all the council members first, it turns out.

"We did not agree to take out that 25-cent surcharge," said Shirley Gibson, councilwoman. "Who authorized to take that out?"

City manager Rob Straebel said he, Carlson and Fresh Air representatives met since that last council meeting, but Woody was unavailable at the same time. Carlson further explained how numbers Woody previously presented to city leaders appeared "out of whack" to those gathered that day. "So it was hard for us to justify," the mayor said.

But that wasn't good enough for Gibson.

"The budget's been changed without our knowledge and that's not right," she said.

Councilman Lyle Gennett said nothing should have been decided without Woody in attendance for the negotiations.

"I think it should have been postponed until he could be there," Gennett said.

Homeless student program helping dozens

East Jordan school offers pantry items, financial help to at-risk kids and families

ANNE KELLY
COURIER CONTRIBUTOR

EAST JORDAN — Food pantries, thrift shops, shelters and safe houses are fairly common establishments in local communities. These places provide temporary assistance for individuals or families who find themselves in crisis because of loss of employment, domestic issue, or emergencies like fires or natural disasters.

They also encourage volunteerism and community service among those in the community who have more resources than the less fortunate. But there is another, little publicized, segment of the needful population that often isn't publicly addressed — homeless children and youth.

The implementation of the McKinney-Vento Homeless Assistance Act, a federal directive that provides funds for homeless shelter programs, mandates schools to implement on-site resources for children who qualify. The law, signed by Ronald Reagan in 1987, later became amended by an Illinois Coalition to End Homelessness, to become more specific in its effort to protect students. The revision included a more inclusive mandate which ensured protections for "homeless children," defined as "individuals who lack a fixed, regular, and adequate nighttime residence."

In September, the federal program suffered funding cuts, said Mary Gaudard, homeless education liaison

Up North cabin memories include Charlevoix

Stories organized around seasons of the year

SHERI MCWHIRTER-O'DONNELL
COURIER EDITOR

A new book recently was published titled "Cabin Glory: Amusing Tales of Time Spent at the Family Retreat," by author Christy Heitger-Ewing, who said her Charlevoix-based memories formed the basis for the book of short stories.

Heitger-Ewing said she visited Charlevoix each of the last 33 summers and has been a writer for Cabin Life magazine for 10 years. The book doesn't mention Charlevoix specifically, but that doesn't mean the place isn't at the heart of the stories.

"The majority of the essays are 'everyman' stories that occurred at the cabin, which is why the book is relatable to cabin owners regardless of where they live, whether it's Michigan, Wisconsin, North Carolina, Alaska, etc.," she said.

"However, I have definitely included a bit of local flavor in that I mention some specific places, such as Mackinac Island and a few of the restaurants ... I imagine Charlevoix readers would recognize several of these locations."

The publication is a book of light-hearted, sentimental, family-focused cabin essays. Topics range from renovation advice, gardening dilemmas, fishing expeditions, boating addictions, movie-making magic and lakeside marriage proposals.

"I recall first love, lasting love, love at first sight, and love of all things outdoors, including sing-alongs round crackling bonfires, adventurous hill climbs with siblings, and learning just what it takes to be a bona fide 'lake girl,'" Heitger-Ewing said. "In addition, I share tales of what it's like to sled with a reluctant toddler, battle an army of aggressive ants, and get lost in cabin country."

The book was awarded the grand prize in the nonfiction category of Greyden Press Publishing's annual competition. Essays in the book are organized around the four seasons of the year.

More information about the book is available at www.cabinlory.com or www.greydenpress.com online.

Beloved musical "The Sound of Music" is about a postulant who proves to be too high-spirited for the religious life. She is dispatched to serve as a governess for the seven children of a widowed naval captain. Her growing rapport with the youngsters, coupled with her generosity of spirit, gradually captures the heart of the stern captain, and they marry.

Upon returning from their honeymoon they discover that Austria has been invaded by the Nazis, who demand the captain's immediate service in their navy. The family's narrow escape over the mountains to Switzerland on the eve of World War II provides one of the most thrilling and inspirational finales ever presented in the theater.

The show offers audiences some of Rodgers & Hammerstein's most memorable songs, such as "The Sound of Music," "Edelweiss," "My Favorite Things," "Sixteen Going on Seventeen," "Do-Re-Mi," "Maria," "Climb Ev'ry Mountain," and "The Lonely Goatherd." The classic musical offers a great opportunity to bring the entire community together for family theater at its best.

The cast is made up of students in grades four-12, as well as a returning graduate from the class of 2012. The cast also includes two students, Emily Chapdelaine (Maria) and Jake Sharrow (Captain von Trapp), who were accepted into the Young Americans this year.

Jodi Thompson, performing arts director, said she chose this show because of its classic and timeless story and music, and also because she has a personal connection to the show. She performed the role of Sister Berthe with a community theater in Ohio. Finally, working on "The Sound of Music" has given the high school students an opportunity work and perform with the younger students, and to give the younger students the opportunity to be exposed to being a member of a staged musical.

Many Charlevoix students had the opportunity to take part in the Young Americans workshop here in October, and this show gave those kids the chance to perform on stage again this year and keep that excitement going. There are 10 seniors in the cast, and there are 14 cast members whom have never been in a theater production before. This show will feature a pit orchestra made up of band students and community members, playing under the direction of Gary Stutzman.

The Charlevoix Schools Foundation helped support this show with a grant that helped pay for licensing fees and script rental.

Performance dates are 7 p.m. on Friday and Saturday, Feb.

28 and March 1, at Charlevoix High School's auditorium, along with a matinee show at 2 p.m. Sunday, March 9. Tickets are available at the door and will cost $7, or $5 for students. Matinee tickets are sold at a family rate of $20 for two adults and two or more students.

Charlevoix added to list of cities with run-water notices

STEVE ZUCKER
NORTHERN MICHIGAN REVIEW

Add the city of Charlevoix to the list of Northern Michigan cities which are asking their municipal water customers to let their faucets trickle in an effort to avoid service line freeze-ups.

At about 10 a.m. today, Wednesday, Charlevoix officials issued an advisory asking its water customers to continuously run a stream of water about the width of a pencil from one faucet to help avoid service freeze-ups.

Over the past week and a half the cities of Petoskey, Harbor Springs, Boyne City and East Jordan all issued similar notices to their water customers.

Let it run:
Officials in all three Charlevoix County cities — Boyne City, East Jordan and Charlevoix — remind water customers that just because the outside temperature warmed up in the past few days, it does not mean the run-water advisories are lifted. Water customers in those cities should keep a trickle of water running until further notice from their respective cities.

For Charlevoix, as in all of the other cases, city officials said customers' water bills will be adjusted, based on past usage, to make up for the additional water consumption.

The run-water notices are prompted by this winter's prolonged periods of extremely cold weather causing problems with water line freeze-ups.

Officials for Charlevoix repeated the same caution as the other cities, noting that a brief warm-up in the weather does not necessarily change the risk of freeze-ups, and the run-water advisory is not ended. Customers should expect the advisory to remain in place for several weeks and look to their respective city's website or media outlets for information on when the advisory does end.

For more information about the Charlevoix advisory, visit www.cityofcharlevoix.org online, or call the city manager's office at (231) 547-3270.

City looks for new attorney

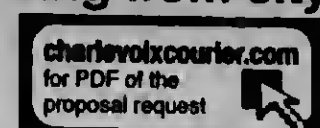

Jim Young retiring from city lawyer post

SHERRI MCQUINN/STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

Charlevoix City Council members on Monday agreed to seek a new lawyer, as the longtime city attorney is set to retire.

Attorney Jim Young, of Beloit-based law firm Young, Graham, Eisenheimer & Wendling, served as Charlevoix's city lawyer for nearly 25 years. His firm will continue to represent the city until a replacement contract is in place.

For a long time, Young's partner attorney Bryan Graham, the city's assistant attorney, attended city meetings and offered legal advice to Charlevoix leaders. Mayor Norman Carlson Jr. said Young has moved outside of Michigan and is poised to resign his post with the city.

City manager Rob Straebel said a request for proposals outlines the scope of work for the city attorney, as well as specific requirements and a list of qualifications.

Among the details are the usual — provide legal advice, attend city council and other necessary public meetings, timely responses and other legal services — as well as legal and educational requirements. There is a provision in the request that would not require the city attorney to attend all council meetings, though.

City council members agreed to create an interview committee comprised of Straebel, city planner Mike Spencer, human resources director Jennifer Nash, as well as three council members themselves — Shirley Gibson, Peggy Brennan and Jeff Porter.

The interviews will be publicly posted.

"I see no reason to keep the interviews closed," Straebel said.

Requests for proposals were due by 4 p.m. Monday, March 17, at the Charlevoix city manager's office. More details can be found at www.cityofcharlevoix.org online, or by calling (231) 547-3270.

Charlevoix Schools Foundation awards its Spring 2014 grants

The students and teachers of the Charlevoix Public Schools are again the beneficiaries of the continued generosity of our community. The Charlevoix Schools Foundation awarded 10 grants totaling $9,880.53, with an additional $2,500 matching challenge grant offered to the FIRST Robotics team, through the Special Project Fund.

In Fall 2011, the Charlevoix Schools Foundation awarded the first grants from the Special Projects Fund. This fund was created as a matching challenge to the Charlevoix community. Four generous donors offered a three-year matching challenge and Charlevoix not only met the challenge, but also surpassed it.

• The Special Projects Fund has just funded a sixth grant allocation cycle. The Charlevoix Schools Foundation has awarded more than $104,500 in grants to the Charlevoix Public Schools. The grants fund four key areas: health and wellness, science and mathematics, language arts and humanities, and fine arts.

"Our teachers are working hard to enhance and enrich the educational experiences of our children," said Julie Voci, foundation chairwoman, "and it is wonderful to be able to provide grants to support them."

Gifts and/or pledges for the Special Projects Fund are still being accepted. Any contributions should be sent to the Charlevoix County Community Foundation and contain the words "Charlevoix Schools Foundation Special Projects Fund" in the memo line. For additional information or to make a credit card donation, contact the foundation at (231) 536-2440 or at www.c3f.org online.

OPINIONS yours & ours

Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press, or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the Government for a redress of grievances.

Oh, spring, wherefore art thou?

My almanac says spring begins Thursday, March 20, which is 28 days, 12 hours, and 20 minutes from now, but who's counting? You can't see pie hut, I am raising my hand.

Oh, how I miss frequent sun-kissed days, flora and fauna, the smell of rain when it touches the earth and soil freshly rooted up for planting. Oh, heck, I even miss the aroma of manure that wafts into town from area farms. I yearn for spring to a degree some would call spring fever. Yes, I have the fever without the temperature.

If you are someone more inclined to enjoy warmer climates, this is about the time of year you may find yourself running to windows, actually pushing people out of the way, to see any glimpse of the sun. You may peruse seed catalogs, clean your golf bag or seek clothes that don't have smart wool anywhere on the tag. If spring fever was considered a disease, I'd be first in line for a prescription to Palin Springs. Just as spring fever is not a disease, spring break is not a broken bone, but I may break a few trying to clear the roof and sidewalk getting ready for it.

I shouldn't complain about this winter since the ski resorts are doing well and the Upper Peninsula is getting more than their share of visitors who want to check out ice caves. Snowmobilers and snow shoe activists alike have had a season that will continue through April. But the lack of daily sunshine, sub-zero temps and wondering if we can shovel the snow and put it anywhere legal has increased my desire to load up on comfort food. My frequent form of exercise is walking to the kitchen for more marshmallows with or without the steaming hot cocoa.

When I first moved to Northern Michigan, I decided to take on the challenge of raising farm animals. I remember the harsh winters feeding our goats and horses come to increase their own body heat. If I was still farming today, this winter would have found me adding mashed potatoes, gravy and corn as a side dish. To no surprise, I didn't make the greatest farmer; it didn't help that I gave them all names and invited them on in the porch during weather like we've been experiencing this year.

I need to alter my thoughts towards a positive direction knowing spring is on the horizon. My calendar said it's so and just knowing daylight time is inching forward, my mood is moving in the same direction. With that bit of knowledge; I may want to re-think my comfort food diet to prepare for the latest spring frock. What is a frock, anyway?

As days draw nearer to the season of sunshine and warmth, some of us just can't wait and will venture to warmer climates to re-energize what the lack of sun and frigid temps have zapped. If you tend to prefer your vitamin D from sun rather than milk, Mexico or Florida may be your next destination. Bees do it, birds do it and college students do it. By "it," I mean celebrate by buzzing, fluttering and gathering for companionship after being closed off socially because of cooler temperatures.

For those staying closer to home, starting on a new project, book or taking in a concert may be just what will kick up your endorphins a notch. I admit that when the sun is shining on freshly fallen snow, the sight can take your breath away, but the 7-degree temps actually do just that. It's hard to breathe when your lips, nostrils and lungs hurt. For those of us who struggle with this long winter, spring is just around the corner — or maybe down another block or two, or three or four.

LETTERS to the editor

Land exchange only benefits cement plant

Editor:
I see no reason at all for any land exchange here, other than the benefit of St. Marys cement plant. Fisherman's Island State Park is 2,678 acres of untouched land that provides a number of outdoor activities for families of Northern Michigan and tourists from all over. With 81 rustic campsites, a three-mile cross country hiking trail, five miles of Lake Michigan shoreline and seasonal hunting. This (proposed) land exchange benefits absolutely no one other than St. Marys, and may be an inconvenience to citizens of Charlevoix having the entrance moved to Norwood. It does not seem reasonable to ravage any portion of the beautiful 2,678 acres of raw nature Fisherman's Island State Park has to offer.

Thank you to literacy program benefit supporters

Editor:
On behalf of the board of directors of the Char-Em United Way, I would like to thank the many donors, sponsors and volunteers who helped make our first Toast to Literacy event a huge success. A special thank you to Anora O'Connor with Castle Farms, as well as the Castle Farms staff, for helping to make the evening so special. A special thank you as well, to the Toast of Literacy committee, whose members spent many hours planning and coordinating this event. We had a good turnout for this first-time event, with more than 100 people attending. Toast to Literacy raised more than $5,000 to help support our Dolly Parton Imagination Library program. These funds will cover the cost of registration for more than 165 children this year. With more than 1,000 children currently enrolled, the funds are much needed and greatly appreciated.

This program is developing a love of literacy among our youngest neighbors. Children younger than 5 years can be registered for the program as long as they live in Charlevoix or Emmet counties. Each child receives a book, mailed to their home, every month for free until they reach the age of 5. We hear from parents frequently about the excitement their child exhibits when their book arrives in the mail, and how much they enjoy spending the time reading together.

Thank you so much. Let's do this again next year!

Lorraine Manary,
Char-Em United Way,
executive director

Save Fisherman's Island State Park

I oppose the proposed land swap between St. Marys cement plant and Fisherman's Island State Park.

No. 1: Bells Bay Road going to the beach, hiking trails and the park entrance, would be closed. This portion of the park is close to Charlevoix and is heavily used by hikers, skiers, hunters, mushroom seekers, Charlevoix High School cross country team members, sunset watchers, beach-goers and snowmobilers. Closing this road would take away local and free access to the park, trails and beach. Moving the park entrance farther south, as is proposed, would make it more difficult for residents and families who want to use the park after school or work.

No. 2: The proposed hike trail to Fisherman's Island State Park on Bells Bay Road, which is scheduled for construction this spring, would have to be moved several miles south.

No. 3: The 190 acres of land extending on both sides of Bells Bay Road to be given to St. Marys is heavily wooded and is home to a diverse array of wildlife.

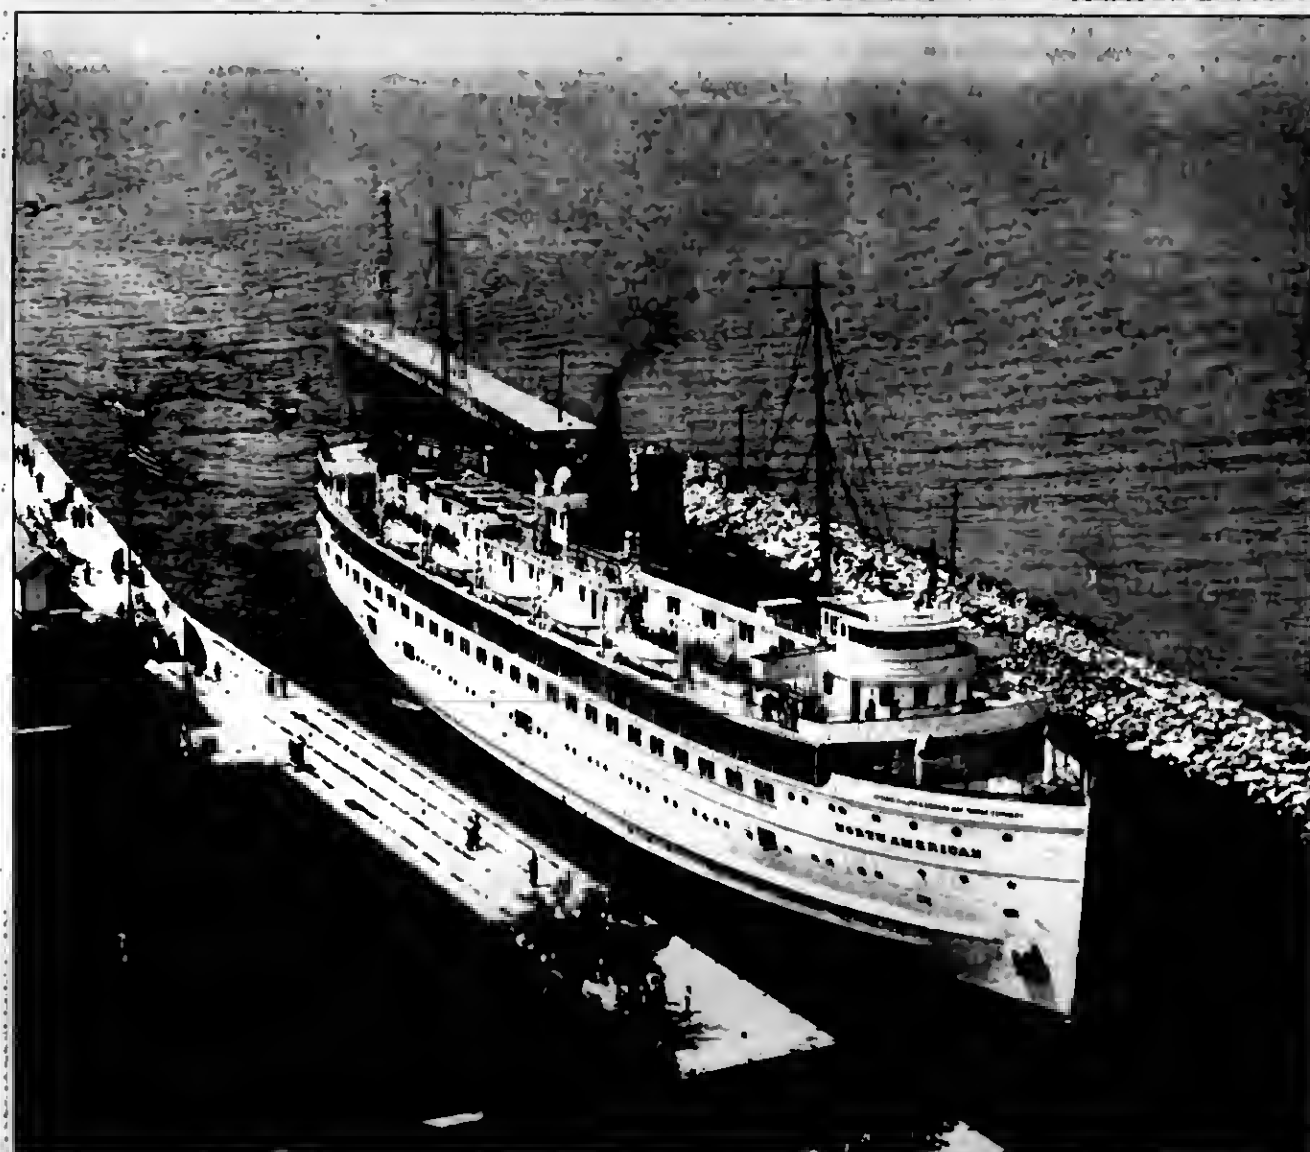

No. 4: The land St. Marys wants to trade is not comparable. Most of it is a flat field. Its distance from Charlevoix means less access to Charlevoix residents who want to use the park after work or school.

The north end of Fisherman's Island State Park, including Bells Bay Road, is a valuable asset to our township and community. Do not trade away our woods, local access to favorite hiking trails, Lake Michigan beaches and the future hike trail.

LOOKING BACK...

The Great Lakes passenger liner North American, seen here, was built in 1913, and her almost identical sister vessel, the South American, followed a year later. Each boat had a crew of 155 and could carry up to 450 passengers. They didn't start coming to Charlevoix, however, until 1918 when the great liner Manitou was called for duty by the government in May, during the last months of World War I. It is not known in what capacity, if any, the ship served. The North was brought in by the parent transit company as a substitute, and proved so popular that the South came on the scene a few months later to help out. From then on, both boats became integral components of the Charlevoix scene — for the next four decades. Each entry into Round Lake was a special event, with both local and resort kids, who had the boats' schedules memorized, rushing down to the city dock to await the show of coins that passengers traditionally tossed overboard as the boats tied up or departed, resulting in a mad scramble. How to tell them apart? The North had rectangular port holes; the South's were circular. Their reign ended in 1967, when the South appeared for the last time in Charlevoix while ferrying excursionists to the Montreal Expo. This photo of the North was created in the 1930s from the water tower that used to stand atop the Park Avenue bluff, on the ground just west of the Sandcastle condominium.

OBITUARY

Rosalie (Peg) Edger, 92

Beloved by her family, Rosalie (Peg) Edger, 92, passed peacefully from this life to the next on Feb. 13, 2014, at Boulder Park Terrace in Charlevoix, Mich. Peg was born March 14, 1921, to Arthur and Flossie (Travis) Bennett in Eaton County, Mich. She graduated from Hastings High School in 1938 and on Sept. 30, 1939, married Lynn Arlie Edger. He preceded her in death in August 2006. Peg was employed for many years at Pennock Hospital in Hastings. Upon retirement, she and Lynn moved to Baldwin for pleasant years of recreation. In later years, they returned to Hastings, then spent their final years in Charlevoix. Peg's sister, Gladys, and six brothers (Arthur, Cecil, Maxell, Vernor "Baldy," Eugene and Roger "Rod") all preceded her in death, as well as daughter-in-law Judy Edger, and great-grandson Tanner Bishop.

Peg is survived by five children: Terry Edger of Charlevoix, Gayle (Larry) Sinclair of Mathis, Texas, Jill (Jon)

Eakes of Charlevoix, Mark (Brenda) Edger of Shelbyville, and Tracy Edger of Charlevoix. She also leaves a legacy of natural and step-grandchildren, great-grandchildren and great-great-grandchildren.

Memorial donations may be made to Hospice of Northwest Michigan, or to an organization involved with dementia research.

Winchester Funeral Home is assisting the family.

Great Lakes Chamber Orchestra awarded a 2014 state grant

The Great Lakes Chamber Orchestra announced it received a $17,000 grant from the Michigan Council for Arts and Cultural Affairs, also called MCACA. This grant was awarded through the Michigan Council for Arts and Cultural Affairs peer review process and was one of 428 applications to compete for the council's fiscal year 2014 funding. A portion of this grant is provided by the National Endowment for the Arts.

The mission of the Great Lakes Chamber Orchestra is to produce live orchestral performances providing entertainment, education, and inspiration for our Northern Michigan community. The orchestra provides concerts and recitals throughout the year, and across the region and organizes events such as the emerging artist competition which provides an opportunity for young musicians to share their talents while competing for a cash prize and an opportunity to perform with the orchestra. The annual Day for Strings event gives local students of string instruments an opportunity to work with professional musicians in an all-day workshop. Outreach into local schools provides exposure to classical music and musicians for classes or full school assemblies. This grant will assist with all of these important activities.

For more information about the Great Lakes Chamber Orchestra, visit www.glorchestra.org online.

Organizations receiving a MCACA grant award are required to match those funds with other public and private dollars. In addition to our approximately 300 members, local support of the Great Lakes Chamber Orchestra is provided by the Petoskey-Harbor Springs Area Community Foundation, the Charlevoix County Community Foundation, the Bay Harbor Foundation, community organizations and many local businesses.

The council peer review process allows for each grant application to be competitively considered by a panel of in-state and out-of-state arts and culture professionals. This ensures the taxpayers, who support this project through legislative appropriations, and all other visitors or residents in Michigan will have access to the highest quality arts and cultural experiences.

For more information about MCACA, visit www.michiganadvantage.org/arts online.

"I firmly believe that access to the programs and projects of our state's many arts and cultural organizations makes communities more welcoming and more vibrant places to live, our state a more attractive place for businesses to locate and provides our citizens with an amazing quality of life," said John Bracey, MCACA executive director.

Five Wishes Program to be presented at Christ Episcopal Church, Charlevoix

Brownie Flanders will present the "Five Wishes" Program on Tuesday, February 25th, at 5 p.m. free to the public at Christ Episcopal Church, Charlevoix.

Five Wishes is an easy to use legal document written in everyday language that lets adults of all ages plan how they want to be cared for in case they become seriously ill. Five Wishes helps you express how you want to be treated if you are seriously ill and unable to speak for yourself. It is unique among all other living will and health agent forms because it speaks to all a person's needs: medical, personal, emotional and spiritual. Five Wishes also helps structure discussions with your family and physician.

Completing Five Wishes is a gift to your family, friends and your doctor because it keeps them out of the difficult position of having to guess what kind of treatment you want or don't want in case you can't speak for yourself. In Five Wishes, you clearly state it.

This presentation is open to the public and will be held in the Parish Hall. Brownie Flanders will present the program and will help participants put into writing their health care preferences. This presentation is funded by the Taylor Endowment - Christ Episcopal Church of Charlevoix Fund.

Following the presentation, a light soup and salad supper will be served. Please call the church at 231-547-6322 if you would like to attend.

Kayak, paddleboard businesses get access to parks

Schulman Paddleworks, Irish Boat Shop will rent from Depot, Ferry beaches

SHERI MCWHIRTER-
O'DONNELL
COURIER EDITOR

Charlevoix City Council members on Monday decided in a 4-3 split vote to allow two local businesses to set up kayak and paddleboard rental operations in two popular city parks known for their beautiful, sandy settings.

Norman Carlson Jr. for the third time in his tenure as Charlevoix mayor cast a tie-breaking vote in approval of the separate business proposals by Schulman Paddleworks and Irish Boat Shop to set up livery sites for kayaks and paddleboards for city beach-goers. Schulman requested and received access to Depot Beach, along with Irish for the same at Ferry Beach.

"I think it's a good thing for our visitors," Carlson said.

Council members Shirley Gibson, Leon Perron and Jeff Porter disagreed.

Porter said he doesn't like to see commercial trailers in public parks, arguing it's enough when they are lined up along Bridge Street during annual festivals and events at East or Bridge parks.

"I don't want to see it spread to Depot or Ferry Beach," Porter said. "I think trailers ought to be in parking lots, where they were made to be."

Gibson also contended this sets a bad precedent in give to commercial enterprises this type of access to public parks. It might lead to future requests for access to rent out Jet Skis or other types of recreational equipment at the city parks, she said.

Amanda Wilkin, city recreation director, reported to the council members how the Charlevoix Planning Commission also on Feb. 10 raked over this issue and ultimately decided it would be OK to allow the companies to rent from the parks' respective parking lots. But Schulman Paddleworks and Irish Boat Shop requested permission to stake into the ground 10-by-10-foot tents and leave them there each night, just not right at the designated swimming areas.

"The planning commission is not supportive of erecting the tents and leaving them there for summer," Wilkin said.

Bill Schulman, of Schulman Paddleworks, said the tents would be intended as sun protection for the livery employees.

Wilkin explained, though, that the planning commission's preferred rental trailers in the parking lots could be problematic because there often already is limited parking during warm summer months when residents and visitors flock to Charlevoix's sandy beaches. Also, she reported city officials do not believe the kayaks and paddleboards would prevent a safety concern for the swimmers, either within or outside of the buoyed off swim zones.

Ultimately, city leaders voted to allow the businesses to rent kayaks and paddleboards from the parks, but refused to let them leave tents staked into the ground all summer long. Both companies must provide $1 million in liability insurance coverage that also covers the city; have patrons sign a release of liability form that includes the city; obtain all necessary licenses from the City Clerk's office; and, conform to all city zoning ordinances and sign regulations.

City planner Mike Spencer spoke with planning commissioners earlier this month about the proposal, asking whether this was a "slippery slope," since while there are no laws that prevent this continuous park use, requests typically are for limited times during big events, such as Venetian or Apple festivals.

"At the same time, they are providing a pretty unique thing for people to try," Spencer said on Feb. 10.

meeting, both Gibson and Perron expressed disappointment with the outcome.

"This was a total lack of public responsibility to allow this," Gibson said.

"I feel it just opens the door to others who may want to profit by the location," Perron said.

Charlevoix will apply for federal grant

Goal is fiber optic line through industrial park

SHERI MCWHIRTER-
O'DONNELL
COURIER EDITOR

Charlevoix city leaders on Monday unanimously agreed to apply for a U.S. Department of Agriculture grant for up to $100,000 to fund a new fiber optic loop through the Anee Industrial Park.

Several years ago a $33 million federal grant came to Michigan to pay for a more than 1,000 mile fiber optic line run throughout the state, providing a high speed Internet backbone so that later, last-link bandwidth providers would have the infrastructure already available. City officials at that time fought for a loop through the industrial park, and now they want to expand that loop to cater to potential new users.

The existing loop through the industrial park runs from U.S. 31 North on Mercer to Taylor Road, then east to Anee Road and south back to U.S. 31. Now Charlevoix City Council members agreed to seek more federal funds to install additional fiber optic lines along Gibbons Drive, portions of Anee and Martin roads, and a section along U.S. 31 — stretches left out the first time.

City planner Mike Spencer said there are existing companies already interested in a connection to the fiber optic line and officials feel this infrastructure work will be an important tool to attract new business.

"We think this could give us a real advantage," he said.

This type of grant requires a 50-percent local match, but, Spencer said about $100,000 is left over in the industrial park fund from lot sales in the 1980s, so the required matching dollars from the city — should the federal grant be awarded — would not be expected to have an impact on regular city general funds.

Northern Lakes Economic Alliance officials are working with the city to write the grant application. The idea is that high speed Internet capability could attract higher paying jobs that require plenty of broadband, with owners or operators looking to locate in beautiful recreation areas — precisely what Charlevoix could provide.

Additionally, Spencer said city officials want to work with Charlevoix Township officials to create a master plan for the industrial park, since there are some irregular lots that are land-locked, and not all the lots are zoned alike.

"We're trying to create a solid industrial park," he said.

Council member Shirley Gibson asked if there are any industrial park lots that remain for sale. Spencer replied that all are sold, but not all are developed.

Local 'pickers' purvey finds at new shop

EAST JORDAN — Marcia and Patrick Gibbard long searched ruinage and estate sales for unique items, and "picked" through properties to find these when the opportunities arose.

Now, the East Jordan residents opened a shop in which they offer their finds — antiques, collectibles and unique items — to customers.

Picker's Exchange opened in November. It's at 507 Water St. in East Jordan and covers 3,000-plus square feet. Picker's Exchange offers options for buying, selling, trading and buy-backs.

Along with items the Gibbards have located themselves, Picker's Exchange can sell these types of goods for others on consignment. Marcia Gibbard said this may be a useful option for seniors who need to thin out their accumulated possessions, but are hesitant to let go and would like to sell the items off gradually.

The shop also serves as a spot where subleasing vendors offer a variety of items for sale.

Since opening, Marcia Gibbard said the store lured visitors from many parts of Northern Michigan.

"They've come from all around," she said. "A lot of it's word-of-mouth."

Picker's Exchange currently is open 11 a.m.-6 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday, with expanded hours planned for the warmer months.

For more information about Picker's Exchange, call (231) 803-4485.

Scott MacKenzie, of the Charlevoix Area Humane Society, speaks with another attendee at Wednesday's after-hours event at Kelsey B's in Charlevoix, an event sponsored by the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce.

Fund provides $22,900 in grants

Great Lakes Energy members who support the cooperative's People Fund program made possible eight grants to local community nonprofit organizations. The People Fund Board of Directors awarded a total of $22,900 in grants in February to the following nonprofit organizations in northwestern Michigan.

No. 1: The Lions Club of East Jordan: up to $4,000 matching grant for a disc golf course.

No. 2: Crooked Tree Arts Center, Petoskey: $2,400 for tables, umbrellas and seating for outdoor area.

No. 3: East Jordan Care and Share Program: $5,000 for a refrigerator and freezer for food pantry.

No. 5: Good Samaritan Family Services, Ellsworth: $3,000 for supplies and inventory for a shoe store for children in need.

No. 6: Hayes Township, Charlevoix: $4,000 for a sign to mark new public park entrance on Lake Charlevoix.

No. 7: Crawford County Commission on Aging, Grayling: $2,500 for commercial freezers for the home-delivered meals program.

No. 8: Otsego County Habitat for Humanity, Gaylord: $1,000 for ladders and yard carts.

The People Fund is supported by the voluntary contributions of Great Lakes Energy members who allow their electric cooperative to fund up their bill each month to the next dollar. More than $2.4 million in grants have been awarded since 1999 to charitable and community organizations throughout Great Lakes Energy's 26-county service area, which stretches along the western side of Michigan.

"The People Fund is a simple and inexpensive way Great Lakes Energy members can give back to their local community," said Steve Boeckman, president and chief executive officer. "The average contribution is just 50 cents a month, but it really adds up when members join together and round-up their bill to the nearest dollar."

Great Lakes Energy members can enroll in the People Fund by calling (888) 485-2537 or visiting www.gtlakes.com online.

Nonprofit organizations in the Great Lakes Energy service area can apply for a grant through the People Fund by calling Great Lakes Energy, (888) 485-2537, ext. 1313. The next grant application deadline is June 1.

Ready, set, fat tire!

Second Dogman Challenge at Mount McSaubu

SHERI MCWHIRTER-
O'DONNELL
COURIER EDITOR

The second annual Dogman Challenge will return to Charlevoix's Mount McSaubu and North Point Nature Preserve for a wintertime fat tire cycling race.

Chet Morris, event founder and owner of Revolution Bike in Charlevoix, said this is a niche sport, but one that is growing in awareness and popularity. The Dogman Challenge will draw in fat tire cyclists from both local neighborhoods, Traverse City and as far away as Grand Rapids, Morris said.

"It should be a good, fun time this weekend," he said. "It's a niche, winter sport, and it's fairly new."

Fat tire cycling — or fat-bike riding — is like regular mountain bike riding, only with larger-than-normal tires designed to allow for cycling over snow, sand, or other unstable soft terrain.

The Charlevoix race is expected to draw as many as 30 cyclists who will take on the 1.6-mile loop. Last year's winner completed 12 laps, Morris said.

"The way we have this one set up is more spectator-friendly because it's a loop. The start and the finish is at the lodge," he said.

Regular Mount McSaubu concessions will be available, of course, along with event refreshments offered at two tents, one at the start and another midway through the route. Also, a couple of fire rings will be available to keep spectators warm.

Shelly Ferguson, vice president of the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce, said this relatively new event is a great fit for the community.

"The Dogman Challenge Fat Bike Race is a great addition to Charlevoix's winter calendar. Fat bike races are popping up all over the U.S. and are gaining in popularity making this a great time to put Charlevoix on the map for those looking for a fun, fast and beautiful race course," Ferguson said. "The trails at Mount McSaubu and North Point Nature Preserve provide the perfect venue for this type of sporting event."

Registration for the race the day of the event is $40, though spectators can watch for free. Organizers plan for a film to be created and later posted to YouTube.

More information about the event is available by calling (231) 237-0900 or sending email to art.hicycles@yahoo.com online.

Charlevoix Zonta announces Literary Delights luncheon

The Charlevoix Area Zonta Club will host its annual Literary Delights — a Michigan Women Authors' Luncheon — from 11 a.m.-3 p.m. Saturday May 17, at Charlevoix Public Library. Tickets for the event are $40 per person and include a catered lunch and basket raffle drawings.

Three Michigan women authors, Natalie Taylor, Peg Herring and Suzanne Malpass Rogers, will speak at the event and copies of their books will be available for sale and signing. All of the proceeds of the event will go to support projects to advance the status of women locally, nationally and internationally, including the club's Signs of Success event, which is a free, day-long program offered to middle school girls to build teamwork, self-esteem and confidence.

The featured author for February is Natalie Taylor. She and her son, Kai, live in Royal Oak. In 2007, when Natalie was five months pregnant with Kai, Natalie's husband was killed in an accident. From this tragedy, came the book "Signs of Life," an emotional memoir in which Natalie embarks on the ultimate journey of self-discovery and realizes you can sometimes find the best in yourself during the worst life has to offer.

For more information or to purchase a ticket for the event, contact Joy Halverson at (231) 547-4813. Reservations for the event are required.

Boyne Falls kids CASH in with grant

Award connects art, science and history for Boyne Falls students

Boyne Falls Public School has been awarded a grant of $7,500 from the Michigan Council for Arts and Cultural Affairs and the National Endowment for the Arts. The grant was awarded through the Michigan Council for Arts and Cultural Affairs peer review process and was one of 428 applications to compete for the council's fiscal year 2014 funding.

Boyne Falls School CASH for Kids project, which is an acronym for Connecting Art, Science, History, will impact 50 middle school students in grades 5-8, as well as their regular classroom and art teachers, as it links science and history to art for all participants. Students will explore traditional art forms from around the world, increase their appreciation, understanding, and insights into the connections between science, history and art, as well as experience opportunities to create their own traditional art works.

Raven Hill Discovery Center's program director Cheri Leach will serve as arts in education residency instructor. Leach will spend a total of 32 sessions with students at the school, with a culminating field trip to Raven Hill Discovery Center, where students will make additional connections between science, history and the arts that they will have studied.

Organizations receiving a MCACA grant award are required to match those funds with other public and private dollars and volunteer time, including matches from Boyne Falls Public School and Raven Hill Discovery Center. Anyone wishing to donate matching dollars may contact Boyne Falls Public School or Raven Hill. For more information, call Leach at (231) 536-3369 or send email to info@ravenhilldiscovery-center.org online.

Library invites public to share journey stories

In conjunction with the Smithsonian Journey Stories exhibit, the Charlevoix Public Library has an iPad with the Stories from Main Street application loaded for visitors to record their own 90-second memories.

The iPad will be located in the foyer of the Journey Stories exhibit at the library. The app provides a step-by-step guide to record your favorite memory, eased throughout with question prompts. Assistance will be provided by guide, if available, or step into the library and ask at a service desk.

The Smithsonian's goal is to create an archive of stories that show the excitement, diversity and creativity that exemplify life in America's rural communities. Even if it seems mundane to you, your stories fascinate many people. Your story can be anything from your favorite recipe to your memories of the Thanksgiving Day parade. A good story is one that tells about your experience of being an American. The items stored on the Stories from Main Street, will give people who call rural America home a place to show everyone what makes each community unique and quintessentially American.

Journey Stories, on display through March 21, tells the tale of how our ancestors came to America and the variety of different types of transportation utilized. The 700 square foot Journey Stories exhibit includes six stand-alone kiosks, all with audio and interactive pieces.

For more information about the Journey Stories exhibit, visit them at www.museumonmainstreet.org/journeystories online. For information about the Charlevoix Public Library at 220 W. Clinton St. in downtown Charlevoix, visit www.charlevoixlibrary.org online, or call (231) 237-7340.

Andi Caron and Dwayne Augur, of Pellston, are the winners of the free military dream wedding at Castle Farms.

Pellston couple awarded dream military wedding

Iraq, Afghanistan veteran to marry bride this year

Castle Farms announced that Andi Caron and Dwayne Augur, of Pellston, are winners of the wedding destination's Dream Military Wedding Giveaway Contest.

"A Salute to our Soldiers" contest, sponsored by Castle Farms and local vendors, was open to all Northern Michigan couples with one, or both, active military or veterans of the U.S. Armed Forces. Nominations opened on Jan. 27, with couples nominated by someone other than themselves. Voting was Feb. 10-12 through Castle Farms' Facebook page. With three military couples in the finalist category and thousands of votes cast, Andi and Dwayne ultimately came out the winners.

Officials announced their prize Friday, Feb. 14 — Valentine's Day.

Andi's mother nominated the couple, and Andi still finds it hard to believe that they won.

"Winning is amazing," she said.

Their wedding plans had been on hold with Dwayne's two tours of active duty as an Army Cavalry Scout. First deployed for a year in Iraq, he was deployed overseas for a second tour of duty, spending 10 months in Afghanistan. But the couple is finally together again.

"Winning this wedding gives us the opportunity to complete the dream that we have both had since 2011," Andi said. "Neither of us ever thought that we would have the opportunity to get married at such a beautiful venue. We cannot thank Castle Farms enough for giving us that opportunity."

The couple is planning a 2014 wedding at Castle Farms.

for the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District. Monies are now earmarked for transportation only.

"We were very surprised," Gaudard said. "However, all of our liaisons within the schools are committed and creative. They present their needs to community groups and organizations, and as a result have found resources and support to help with their needs. We are anxious to have the state coming into our districts this spring to monitor our programs. We are proud of what we have been able to provide despite the cuts."

One such creative and committed liaison is Tammy Jackson, principal at East Jordan High School. Jackson spent the last 14 of her 29 years in education in that post. She also serves as the liaison for the federal program in her school district.

"The McKinney-Vento Act is the federal mandate which provides funding to assist our homeless students," Jackson said. "A student is homeless, as defined in the Act, if he or she has been identified in the enrollment process, or perhaps later by observation, as being in need of assistance in order to attend our school."

The McKinney-Vento Act spells out the need as:

No. 1: Children sharing housing because of economic hardship or loss of housing

No. 2: Children living in motels, hotels, trailer parks or campgrounds because of lack of alternative accommodations

No. 3: Children living in emergency or transitional shelters

No. 4: Children awaiting foster care placement

No. 5: Children whose primary nighttime residence is not ordinarily used as a regular sleeping accommodation

No. 6: Children living in cars, parks, public spaces, abandoned buildings, substandard housing, bus or train stations

Those guidelines produce quite a list.

"We have about 75 students who fall into one or the other of these categories right now," Jackson said. "Federal funding is only part of our available resources. We are so grateful to have a substantial additional amount supplied by generous community donations."

Jackson said officials appreciate donations to the effort from East Jordan Save-a-Lot supermarket, Crossroads Resale Shop, Charlevoix County Community Foundation and the Petoskey Odd Fellows, as well as all the private donors who assist in the program — including those whom drop food and hygiene items into a collection box at the grocery.

Jackson's longevity in her position is an added benefit when it comes to identification of needy students among her school families. She said she knows the kids and their parents and — being sensitive to their situations — is careful to alleviate any stigma that might come with financial aid.

"It is never the child's fault when a family falls into hard times," Jackson said. "Sometimes parents are too proud to ask for help. We have to provide for the kids."

"If an identified student needs a class fee, insurance for iPad use, transportation to school, a prom dress, Christmas gifts, a graduation gown ... those are some of the ways we can put the money in good use."

Jackson said it is important that needy students not be ostracized for their family's financial shortcomings if they are to be successful in school. Kids need to wear decent clothing and eat regular meals, so the school provides breakfast and lunch.

An in-house food and clothing pantry of donated items is at the high school storage room. Here the identified students have confidential access to some basic essentials from personal hygiene products and clothing to snacks.

"Often young children have some organization advocating for them. But by the time they are in high school, they may not have an adult there for them. We have had instances where a family came into hard times and had to move away, but the student wanted to stay in the district with a friend or a relative," Jackson said. "Quite often such a student can find a place to stay, but this might become a burden for the host family. Through our funds, we can provide for the student's corporal needs. We are proud to have had so much assistance from those who have contributed to our program."

The McKinney-Vento Homeless Act is a federal law put into action in Northern Michigan communities of big-hearted philanthropists, whether known or anonymous. And Gaudard said East Jordan's program joins others in the two-county intermediate school district, which all strive to successfully remove barriers to enrollment and provide at-risk students with things they may need for success.

BUDGET

The city's budget must be adopted as an ordinance by the start of the fiscal year on April 1, Straebel said, and it takes 30 days for ordinances to legally take effect. But that doesn't mean city council can't adopt the fuel truck surcharge once details are solidified, he added.

Meanwhile, Straebel said city officials are exploring the use of a fuel trailer starting in June, so perhaps the city could adopt the fuel truck surcharge policy to take effect at that time. "I'd like to start charging it when the fiscal year begins in April. They've been years without paying this charge. It's an unfair business advantage, if you ask me," Gibson said.

Straebel

Gibson

Woody explained how the proposed surcharge was intended to boost airport revenues by about $6,000 annually — or reduce city operational expenses by that amount, if preferred. Fueling the company's planes from the delivery truck takes away manpower from other municipal airport duties, he said.

But if approved, the surcharge revenues still would "not cover the entire cost of that fuel truck," Woody said.

Fresh Air Aviation is not situated at the terminal, but further west on Old Woodward Road. Teague said it "would be a logistical nightmare" to have her business's planes instead taxi to the city's stationary fuel pump without guaranteed access, along with causing extra wear and tear on equipment.

Negotiations are meant to be continuing between city officials and the airline company.

The budget's aforementioned sewer rate increase is for a coming 24.5-percent sewer rate hike each of the next three years, followed by a 2-percent jump for two years afterward. That's to raise funds to pay for state-required upgrades at the Charlevoix wastewater treatment plant.

This is an image Charlevoix city officials created with Photoshop to show both what the current marina dimensions are and what the proposed expansion would look like.

MARINA

Jeff Porter said he wants further study of the pitched marina expansion and more than just one option to consider.

"I think we need to give the public more options," Porter said. He then suggested more mooring spots could be created in a Mediterranean style along the break wall.

City planner Mike Spencer said that idea might create possible conflicts with commercial businesses already located in that area.

The original marina engineer studied Round Lake riparian rights maps and determined extensions to the two most southern city docks would cross other property owners' riparian boundaries, Straebel said. Also, he said the next dock up could be extended, but wouldn't provide the size slips the city seeks to create.

Porter asked Spencer to collect input from other local marina businesses, such as Irish Boat Shop and Northwest Marine Yacht Club.

Councilman Leon Perron voted against scheduling a public hearing — making him the sole dissenter. Following the meeting, he said he objected to a hearing not because he doesn't support the marina expansion project, but because others do.

"I was elected to represent the people in the 2nd Ward and I'm not getting any positive comments from my constituents," Perron said.

GIRLS' BASKETBALL

Rayders fall to rival Boyne City, 55-43

DREW KOCHANNY
NORTHERN MICHIGAN REVIEW

BOYNE CITY — Good things can happen when the effort and energy level stays consistent for a full 32 minutes.

Unfortunately, that didn't happen for the Charlevoix High School girls' basketball team.

The Boyne City High School girls' basketball team played with plenty of effort and energy Monday in the Boyne City High School gym, as the Ramblers earned a Lake Michigan Conference win over rival Charlevoix, 55-43.

"We played with a lot of energy, we played in sync with together and we played for a full 32 minutes tonight," Boyne City coach Kevin Fitzpatrick said. "When that happens, we're a decent ball team."

Trailing 13-10 after the first quarter, Boyne, now 7-11 overall, 6-6 in conference play, outscored the Rayders 15-10 in the second quarter to take a 25-23 lead into the half.

In the third quarter, Boyne continued their frantic second quarter pace on both the offensive and defensive ends of the floor, holding the Rayders to nine third quarter points, while scoring 22 of their own.

"We made sure not to let down," Fitzpatrick added. "We stressed at halftime that we had to maintain that level of intensity for the full 32 minutes."

the fourth, Charlevoix, 10-7, 7-4, outscored the Ramblers 11-8 in the fourth, but the by then, the damage had been done.

"We didn't come in play with our best ball tonight and at this point in our season, we have to do that every night," Charlevoix coach Liz Shaw said. "They didn't show what they had been doing."

Rainy McCune led the Ramblers with 21 points on the offensive end, but her biggest feat may have come on the defensive end, holding Charlevoix forward Madeline Boss to just eight points on the night.

"I thought Rainy did a tremendous job on Boss, one of the better players in our league," said Fitzpatrick. "The best defensive effort this season. She plays good defense but that's tremendous effort."

Also for Boyne, Mallory Karaszewski scored 12 points, while also for Charlevoix, Kourtney Putman had 14.

Also for the Rayders, Boss added eight rebounds and three blocks, while Gabby Gray had five points, eight steals and four assists and Alexis Trihfelner had eight points and three steals. Ellie Way added six rebounds.

On Friday at the Charlevoix High School gym, Gray scored 14 points and had eight steals, while Boss added 11 points, nine rebounds, and five steals for the Rayders during a Lake Michigan Conference win over Grayling, 58-43.

Charlevoix led at the end of the first quarter, 15-7. The Rayders stretched their lead to 30-15 at halftime and 43-26 to end the third quarter.

"The girls did a great job on defense, our pressure was relentless tonight," Shaw said. "We were able to create turnovers, which led to points."

For Grayling, Sammy Denno scored 14 points.

Also for Charlevoix, Kourtney Putman added 10 points with five rebounds, Kelsey Engstrom scored eight points, Alexis Trihfelner scored six points and had four steals, while Leah Davis had six points and three steals.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN REVIEW

ROGERS CITY — Senior Jake Novotny and junior Sam Hovie each placed third Saturday at the Division IV individual wrestling regional tournament at the Rogers City High School gym.

As a result, both Novotny and Hovie will advance to the Michigan High School Individual State Finals beginning Thursday, Feb. 27, at the Palace of Auburn Hills.

Novotny, wrestling at 152 pounds, went 3-1 on the day as he opened with a 3-2 win over Mikey Arndt of Whittemore-Preseott in his first round match. Novotny then fell to eventual 152 pound champion Conner Mills of Boyne City, 8-6, in a semifinal match.

Novotny went on to face Xavier Gonzalez of Norway in the consolation blood round, 4-2; and then defeated Scott Blamer of Mio in the consolation finals, 6-4.

With the 3-1 record, Novotny, 47-7 on the season, reached a career milestone with 125 wins during the tournament and went on to bring that total to 127.

Hovie, wrestling at 160 pounds, also placed third as he opened with a win by pin over Blake War-

In the blood round, Hovie, who is also 47-7 on the season, defeated Nathaniel Meyer of Ishpeming, 10-3, before going on to defeat Jeff Gross of Leroy-Pine River, 4-0, in the consolation finals.

Also for Charlevoix, freshman Camden Alden, 112 pounds, went 1-2 as he fell to Tony Moore of Leroy-Pine River by pin in 1:25 in the first round, then defeated Ryan Groendyck of Manton in the consolation quarterfinals, 12-4.

Alden then lost to Jordan

NORTHERN MICHIGAN REVIEW

BOYNE CITY — The Charlevoix High School boys' varsity basketball quite possibly gave Boyne City its biggest scare of the season Monday.

Facing the Michigan Associated Press Class D No. 2 ranked team in the most recent poll, the Rayders put the Ramblers to the test before ultimately falling to Boyne City in overtime, 56-50.

With the win, the Ramblers improve to 15-0 overall, 12-0 league, and clinched their first Lake Michigan Conference championship since the 1998 season.

"We locked up the league championship for the first time in 16 years, that's something to be proud of," Boyne City coach Nick Redman said. "When you don't play your best against your arch rival and get a win, you've got to be happy about that. But we've got to play better than that."

"Hats off to Charlevoix, they played hard."

In a long-standing rivalry game with a packed gym on hand, the win for Boyne looked to be theirs for the taking after a 15-12 lead at the end of the first quarter and 32-20 lead at the half.

"I thought we played a pretty good first half, up 12 and we didn't play our best," Redman said. "In the second half I thought we'd clean up a few things. I think (Charlevoix) just out hustled us tonight."

The energy level for the Rayders would take off in the second half, as a late 11-0 run from the Rayders would tie the game at 44-all with just over 57 seconds remaining.

"We put some pressure on them and they were just getting after it," Charlevoix coach Bret Erskine said of his team's late second half run. "That's all you can do against a team like that, they're talented. Second best team in the state, undefeated."

Boyne City would call a timeout, then hold the ball on their offensive end of the floor as seconds ticked away.

With just over three seconds left on the clock, Boyne City guard Co-

Stone of Leroy-Pine River by pin in the blood round in 2:58. Alden finished his season with a 43-9 record, establishing a new freshman win record for Charlevoix High School.

Alden bypassed the record set of 38 wins by Mat Golovich in 2006.

Sophomore Mick Hinkle, 189 pounds, went 0-2 at the tournament as he lost to Freddie Vanderstelt of Hesperia by pin in 3:02, then fell to Reiley Somers of Manton by pin in 3:54 in the consolation quarterfinals.

rey Redman drove to the basket where he picked up a foul with 1.6 seconds remaining, sending him to the line for a one-and-one opportunity and chance to give the Ramblers at least a one point lead.

Redman's first attempt found the back iron with the rebound coming down to Charlevoix's Austin Putman, sending the game to overtime.

In the overtime period, Redman struck first for Boyne, while Rambler forward Cole Butler followed with a steal and 3-pointer on the ensuing possession, giving Boyne a quick five point lead.

Each team would trade free throws throughout the extra period, but in the end, the resilient Ramblers early five points would prove to be the difference.

"That's what good teams do is they find ways to win close games," Redman added. "We've done that three or four times this year and that's why we're lucky enough to be unbeaten because we're mentally tough town the stretch. That's the key."

Corey Redman led Boyne with 16 points, while Ryan Carson added 13 points and Brad Fouchia and 12 points. Butler had 10 points.

For Charlevoix, Nick Plude finished with 10 points and Nate Moon had eight points.

The Rayders and Ramblers will meet once again, however, with Charlevoix hosting Boyne City on Friday, Feb. 21, a game Erskine feels his boys will be ready to play once again.

"I think we probably gave them their best game all year tonight and we'll give them another one on Friday."

In a game played on Friday, Plude scored 15 points as the Rayders pulled out a 65-60 Lake Michigan Conference win over Grayling.

Also for Charlevoix, 6-11 overall, 5-7 league. Putman scored 14 points and Moon added 11.

The Vikings, 8-7, 5-7, led after the first quarter, 20-15, and went into halftime with a three-point lead, 34-31.

"We made some adjustments at halftime," Erskine said. "It paid off and we played the best second half, especially fourth quarter we have played for awhile."

"It was a real solid finish." Charlevoix took the lead at the end of the third quarter, 50-49.

The Rayders remained in front throughout the fourth quarter, causing the Vikings to foul late.

"Austin Putman hit five of his six free throws, and (Nick) Plude made three in the final quarter and that was the difference," Erskine added.

For Grayling, Tyler McClanahan scored a game high, 17 points, while Scout Tobin and Matt Burrell each scored 11 points.

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE

THIS FIRM IS A DEBT COLLECTOR ATTEMPTING TO COLLECT A DEBT; ANY INFORMATION OBTAINED WILL BE USED FOR THAT PURPOSE. PLEASE CONTACT OUR OFFICE AT THE NUMBER BELOW IF YOU ARE IN ACTIVE MILITARY DUTY.

ATTN PURCHASERS: This sale may be rescinded by the foreclosing mortgagee. In that event, your damages, if any, shall be limited solely to the return of the bid amount tendered at sale plus interest.

TO ALL INTERESTED PERSONS: Default having been made in the terms and conditions of a mortgage made April 9, 2010 by JOSEPH E. LEIST and SHELLEY S. LEIST, as mortgagors, to St. Francis X. Federal Credit Union, as Mortgagee, and recorded on April 19, 2010 in Liber 0918 and page 0979, Charlevoix County Records and the entire balance secured by said mortgage having become due and payable by reason of the acceleration provisions contained in said mortgages and the note secured thereby; and on which mortgage there is claimed to be due and unpaid as of 11-1-13 principal and interest in the amount of $133,076.54, including interest at 8.00% per annum, and no other legal or equitable proceeding have been instituted to recover the debt or any part of the debt secured by the mortgage; and the power of sale contained in the mortgage having become operative by reason of the default.

Notice is hereby given that on FRIDAY, MARCH 28, 2014 at 11:00 o'clock a.m. for one hour, in the main lobby of the Charlevoix County Building, 301 State Street, Charlevoix, Michigan, that being the building where the Charlevoix County Circuit Court is held, there will be offered for sale and sold to the highest bidder, at public sale, the premises described in the mortgage, situated in Bay Township, Charlevoix County, Michigan and described as follows:

Beginning at the Intersection of the East line of Section 19, Township 34 North, Range 6 West, and the South 1/8 line of said Section; thence North along the East line of said Section 208.71 feet; thence West, parallel with said 1/8th line 623.13 feet; thence South parallel with said Section line, 208.71 feet to said 1/8th line; thence East along said 1/8th line 623.13 feet to the Point of Beginning; being a part of the Northeast 1/4 of the Southeast 1/4 of said Section 19.

This sale is for the purpose of satisfying the amount due and unpaid on the mortgages, together with the legal costs and charges of sale. Including the attorney fees allowed by law and in the mortgages, and any sums subsequent to the date of this notice to protect its interest in the premises. The length of the redemption period will be six (6) months from date of sale.

Land swap discussed

Commissioners weigh in on Fisherman's Island, no vote about local state park proposal

ZAC BRITTON

NORTHERN MICHIGAN REVIEW

Seven people and all six members of the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners spoke their mind about the possible land swap involving property currently tied to Fisherman's Island State Park and adjacent to St. Marys Cement Inc.

Even with all the discussion, there was no vote at Wednesday's meeting in the Charlevoix County Building.

"It's between them, not us," said chairman Joel Evans to the capacity crowd, referring to the two parties involved in the proposed trade — the Michigan Department of Natural Resources and St. Marys. "We're not going to do anything until the Department of Natural Resources comes to us. Or if St. Marys comes to us asking us to pass a resolution.

Charlevoix summer resident Sam Woolf performs Wednesday on live national television as one of the top 13 candidates on American Idol.

Teen Woolf lives the American (Idol) dream

Charlevoix summer resident performs on hit TV show's 13th season

CATHERINE DEWEY
COURIER CONTRIBUTOR

Sam Woolf, a Michigan native and longtime Charlevoix summer resident, made it to the top 13 contestants on the current 13th season of the hit television show American Idol.

Born in Detroit, Woolf lived in West Bloomfield until he was 11 years old. From a young age, Woolf's family noticed his musical talents. With encouragement from his family, he went to singing lessons in his hometown of Bradenton, Fla., where he lives with his grandparents Roy and Jacqueline Woolf. By practicing at karaoke bars and open mic sessions in Florida, he finally became a featured artist at local Florida music festivals. In Northern Michigan, he performed at the Harbor Springs street festival.

His American Idol journey began in the summer of 2013. Woolf attended a summer high school program at Berklee College of Music in Boston. His mother noticed that American Idol was hosting auditions at Berklee and Woolf tried out. After his audition in Boston, he became one of 75,000 contestants, then he moved on to Hollywood Week and advanced to become one of the top 13 contestants on the live singing competition television show. He made the cut by singing a cover of the song "Babylon" by David Gray.

Wednesday night Woolf performed "Unwell" by Matchbox 20 live on Fox television channel, earning positive remarks from all three celebrity judges, Harry Connick Jr., Keith Urban and Jennifer Lopez — not to mention the screaming teen girls in the studio audience.

Connick, a well-known contemporary crooner, gave Woolf the first remarks after his performance. And they were good ones.

"You're kind of like a perfect kind of singer. You have great ears and you hit things right on the head," Connick said.

Economic stimulus donation

Tens of thousands offered to Charlevoix for economic efforts

SHERI MCWHIRTER-O'DONNELL
COURIER EDITOR

Charlevoix city leaders will in coming days learn more details about a possible donation to city coffers by the president of Amway, an amount that would specifically be earmarked for economic development efforts. But that's only if this offer passes muster.

This is the first big financial donation offer to city government since last year's East Park community fire-place debacle spurred the creation of the city's new donation acceptance policy. And it could amount to tens of thousands of dollars.

"We're taking this potential donation to (City) Council," said Mike Spencer, city planner.

Doug DeVos, Amway Corporation president, offered to donate the funds for economic development purposes and city officials suggest two studies be conducted. The first is a market study for Charlevoix to guide future goals and decisions about the types and sizes of businesses the city could economically support both currently and into the future. The second is a market study for Charlevoix's Ance Industrial Park, intended to guide growth of existing businesses and attract new ones.

"We're obviously very excited about this. It's another example of somebody with a vacation property here who wants to see Charlevoix succeed," Spencer said.

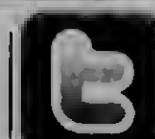

The idea is to issue a request for proposals from potential consultants for the top two studies on the Exhibit displays sketchbooks

Jordan River Arts Council hosts process-focused show

MICHAEL KADE MORROW
COURIER CONTRIBUTOR

EAST JORDAN -- Jordan River Arts Council's new show titled Sketchbooks gives a wonderful view into the mind and creative process that goes into the creation of wonderful works of art. It is a rare glimpse into the process and emotions behind the gleaming and polished final pieces.

"The concept of this show was proposed by Nancy Carey," said Babs Young, council member. "Jordan River Arts Council purchased about 100 sketchbooks, and handed them out to interested artists and students of the surrounding schools. They have had the sketchbooks for about a year now. This was essentially an assignment for them to fill those books. We received about 40 of them back completed."

With the number of artists who returned the sketchbooks, those interested won't regret the investment of the time to come see the exhibit. There are thousands of pages to peruse, and to aid that along, rocking chairs are even provided.

"We asked the artists that one of their pieces relate to the works in the sketchbooks, and most of the artists really seemed to have fun with it," Young said.

"It really was awesome. Whoever thought of this show it was such a great idea," said artist June Storm, who shows her watercolor works in the exhibit.

And this isn't just a professional artist show.

"There is a large student section of sketchbooks at the show. Steve Toorman and his wife, Meredith Krell, went into many of the local schools to talk about the sketchbooks," Young said.

And it seemed to pay off. "I really loved that the students took this so seriously as well," said Howard Ellis, organization vice president.

Member Yasmin Richmond said this idea fostered creativity.

"I thought this was such a creative concept," Richmond said. "It gave the artists the opportunity to reflect on their own work, where they changed, and how. It also gives them a chance to be introspective as well."

Viewers can casually skim the pages of these sketchbooks, some of which contain notes of joys, struggles, reflections and pain — and from that you can see how the artists' work altered. This is not something that can always be derived from a completed work. This show just gives an essence of looking deeper into a work, and not just admiring its finished surface.

Robotics: Not for dummies

Charlevoix student team seeks donations to compete

ANNE KELLY
COURIER CONTRIBUTOR

It is shortly after 9 p.m. on a Tuesday evening in a technology classroom down the hall from the cafeteria at Charlevoix High School. The atmosphere is filled with enthusiasm and a bit of last minute anxiety as the deadline for the gathered students' FIRST Robotics competition deadline — midnight — approached.

At midnight the robot will be "bagged and tagged," and not allowed to be further implemented until competition on March 14-15 in Escanaba. It took the student team six weeks of evenings and Saturdays since January to reach this point of near completion. Community mentors, such as chemistry and physical education instructor and team coach Tom Schultz, plus the student team known as the RayderNators, are all focused on the control panel to make last-minute adjustments to the maze of wires on the team's robot. Others check out operations on the computer while in an adjoining room, two young ladies work on a spreadsheet that lists donors and donations. The robotics competition is an extra-curricular activity for these students, some of whom say they aspire to become engineers and now gain invaluable hands-on experience for their chosen field with this endeavor.

Regardless of their vocational aspirations, the students learn from professional engineers and mentors how to build and compete with a robot of their own design, to learn and use sophisticated software and hardware and to reap the benefits of teamwork and cooperation. The experience for students who wish to enter the field of engineering is invaluable on their college applications.

This year's robotic competition is known as Aerial Assist. At the district level of competition, the first round of matches will be March 14-15 in Escanaba, and the second March 21-22 in Traverse City. On game day, each of about 40 student teams from around the district enter their robot into a competition that will assign their robot with two others to make an alliance of three.

"We are usually in about 15 matches and you do not know who will be on your team during a match until the morning of competition," Schultz said.

The three-on-three competition is played on a flat 25-by-54-foot field with low and high goals on either end. The objective is to score as many balls into the goals as possible during a two-minute and 30-second match. The more alliances score and the more they assist each others' robots to do it, the more points their alliance receives. Winners of each match continue to compete until the field is reduced to the top eight teams. These teams will advance to the next level of competition. Winners have the opportunity to advance up the ladder to state, national and world championships.

The RayderNators explored

all community resources to financially help their mission. Students made presentations to community organizations and continue to seek donations. This is not an easy task during an economic recession, yet some organizations and individuals contributed much-appreciated donations. The registration for two competitions alone is $5,000. There are additional expenses for transportation, food and overnight accommodations for the team members. Should the team progress to the next level, there will be even more financial considerations.

"It's an expensive project," Schultz said. "But the benefits for these kids outweigh the cost."

Julie Vocci, chairwoman of the Charlevoix School Foundation board, a subsidiary of the Charlevoix County Community Foundation, is aware of the program and its significance. However, in processing requests from many teachers, the foundation must diversify their grant monies, she said.

"We have awarded a 60-day match grant to Schultz's RayderNators. Any money they solicit during the period of Feb. 13 through April 15 up to $2,500 will be matched by the foundation. Of course, we hope that by presentations and networking that they will earn even more," Vocci said.

Those who wish to contribute to the team's fund may be sent to Charlevoix High School, Attn: Charlevoix FIRST Robotics, 5200 Marion Center Road, Charlevoix, MI 49720. Checks should be made out to Charlevoix FIRST Robotics.

Have lingering winter Olympics fever?

SHERIMCWHIRTER-ODONNELL

Just because the Olympic games in Russia are finished doesn't mean the winter games are done, too.

Charlevoix's annual Winterfest Games will return this year on March 7-8 to Mount McSaub. Favorite events from years past will return to the festival, along with some exciting additions.

"It's going to be a great time," said Amanda Wilkin, the city's parks and recreation director. "And we know we'll have enough snow."

Events include:
— Start 8 p.m. Friday: Rail Jam, night snowshoeing. Parade of Lights down the hill — Start 1 p.m. Saturday: Winterfest Games, live musical entertainment, food offered from Pigs Eat'n' Ribs

The various games include ski and snowboard races, rail jam contest, ice skating relay and bump jumper races, along with some surprises. Winterfest Games events will cost a $5 entry fee for each event.

New this year are groomer rides available for $20. In addition to all the on-hill events, Mount McSaub also will be offering a bicycle and board swap in the groomer's garage. Clean, ready-to-sell equipment can be dropped off Friday night during opening events. Equipment will then be sold all day on Saturday.

All funds raised from Winterfest will go toward the cost of improvements to the hill and lodge, to be accompanied with the assistance of grant funding.

Winterfest 2014 is sponsored by Fox Motors of Charlevoix. The Cookies live music is funded through John E. Taylor Painting, of Waters, south of Gaylord. The Winterfest Games also are sponsored in part by Bergmann Marine, DCL. Nu-

Bomb rumor prompts school evacuation

Police dogs clear middle/high school by early afternoon

SHERI MCWHIRTER-O'DONNELL

NORTHERN MICHIGAN REVIEW

CHARLEVOIX — A morning bomb threat on Friday, Feb. 21, led Charlevoix Public Schools officials to evacuate the building and call for law enforcement reinforcements.

Multiple bomb-detecting police dogs and their handlers responded to the joint high and middle school building on Marion Center Road. By then, school authorities evacuated more than 500 students to the former middle school building on East Garfield Avenue.

"This morning we received a rumor from a student who had overheard another student talking about a possible bomb in the school," said Bob Gendron, district superintendent, while standing outside of the building in the blowing snow.

Gendron said both staff and students safely cleared from the building within 18 minutes and traveled by district buses to the in-town location.

Charlevoix County Under-sheriff Chuck Vondra said the school's emergency evacuation plan went off without a hitch. It's impressive to move hundreds of students out of potential harm's way with such expediency, Vondra said. The specially trained dogs arrived by 11:30 a.m. to search both the exterior and interior of the high school. The police canines and officers came from Gaylord, Traverse City and even Saginaw, authorities said.

Gendron said he and other school officials believe the rumor to be a hoax, but school officials opted to err on the side of caution. He added that the hope was, based on his conversations with law enforcement officials, students would return to class within a couple hours.

In the meantime, vice principal Travis Garrett said the students first received an informational update from school administrators when they arrived at the other school building. Then they broke into their homeroom classes, he said.

"Some classes are in the gymnasium, others are watching the Olympics," Garrett said. "It's not structured, but there are at least one or two adults with each class."

Students returned around 12:45 p.m. to the school on Marion Center Road, and officials immediately served lunch.

In a statement on its website, the district reports it will fully cooperate with the Charlevoix County Sheriff's investigation, which remains ongoing.

BEAVER ISLAND — A U.S. Coast Guard rescue helicopter crew on Friday afternoon medically evacuated a 77-year-old woman from Beaver Island in Lake Michigan.

The Coast Guard is not releasing the name of the woman, who suffered from chest pain and prompted the medical rescue flight.

At 1:45 p.m., a search-and-rescue controller at Coast Guard Sector Sault Ste. Marie learned from the Beaver Island Rural Health Center that help was needed to transport the woman to a hospital capable of providing a higher level of care.

A rescue air crew, aboard an MH-65C Dolphin helicopter launched from Coast Guard Air Station Traverse City and picked up the woman at the Beaver Island Airport. The air crew transported her to the air station where emergency medical services personnel were waiting. Emergency medical responders on the ground further transported the woman to Munson Medical Center in Traverse City.

Authorities reported the woman was last known to be in stable condition.

Small town stories

For most of my life I lived in or near small communities. Except for occasional stays in larger cities for reasons of education or employment, I have chosen small communities. Such places often need some defense. "Everybody knows your business," people say. Or, "You can't keep anything a secret — everybody gossips."

I grant that small towns may be coincident with a certain loss of privacy. But the loss of privacy may have positive outcomes. Partly in defense of towns like Charlevoix, Sharon and I have made a casual collection of what we call "Small Town Stories." This is one of them.

Some of our collected stories involve folks in Charlevoix, but this one is about a small town in Iowa. We lived in Decorah for 30 years, raised a family there, and enjoyed small town life, with an occasional visit to larger places for what they could offer.

The Decorah story requires a bit of background. It was a lovely spring day about 25 years ago. I had an appointment for an annual medical checkup at our doctor's office near the hospital. The hospital was a bit more than two miles away, but I had walked to work, and it was such a lovely spring day.

I had decided to leave my office 45 minutes before the appointment, and enjoy the spring air. At the last minute, a student in need of advice had stopped by, and I was delayed. My thought was that I could still walk, if I sped up a little on the way. When the student left, I headed for the hospital.

Ten minutes into a vigorous walk, I knew I would be very late for my appointment. I stopped at the local 7-11 (managed by a former student), and asked if I could use the phone. Cell phones were not yet available. I called the local taxi service. Our small town had one taxi.

I asked the dispatcher if he could pick me up at the 7-11 and take me to the local hospital, not realizing that it might sound like an emergency. There was a long pause, and the dispatcher said — I can still hear it — "Roger, are you all right?" The dispatcher was Steve Macarger, a young man in the community who helped with the taxi service and managed the local food co-op grocery. He did not ask, "Who is this?" To the best of my knowledge, I had never spoken with Mr. Macarger by phone before, and he was at best only an acquaintance. But then, we lived in a small town.

I explained that it was no kind of emergency, but only a late-for-appointment problem. The taxi arrived promptly, and I was at my appointment on time.

The story has stuck with me. It exemplifies what I like about small towns. Chances are pretty good that Mr. Macarger knew approximately how old I was (nearing 60) and had some reason to ask his question, beyond simple curiosity.

As I said, I like small towns. They have great stories that are not likely to be duplicated in any metropolis. Cherish Charlevoix, and all its local stories. Collectively they tell us something about human character that might be obscured in Chicago or Detroit.

LETTERS to the editor

Support your right to hunt and fish

Editor:

Men and women of Michigan who participate in hunting or fishing sports, or are just legal gun owners, be aware that we are under attack by politicians and anti-hunting groups like never before.

Out-of-state groups are targeting Michigan's right to hunt with intention of stopping all hunting in our great state. They start with socially sensitive species like bears, doves and now wolves. The wolf referendums to stop future hunts is the third time they have attacked our hunting rights in Michigan during the past 18 years — bears in 1996 and doves in 2005.

At this time, outside interests are attacking the right to schedule any future wolf hunts, even though we have more than double the desired, manageable population. Will our apathy toward fighting these misguided ballot proposals allow them to prevail?

We have a chance to stop these out-of-state interests from interfering with the scientific management of our natural resources. It involves a petition drive by sportsmen that will:

No. 1: Protect our hunting rights by authorizing the Natural Resources Commission to designate a game species by using sound scientific management

No. 2: Establish a $1 million fund to be used for rapid response to Asian carp and other aquatic invasive species

No. 3: Provide free licenses to active members of the U.S. military.

This petition drive is managed by the Citizens for Professional Wildlife Management, P.O. Box 11082, Lansing, MI 48901. Petitions can be obtained by contacting Michigan United Conservation Clubs at (517) 371-1041, or locally from me at (231) 547-4046. It is imperative that we as hunters move quickly on this.

Every outdoors person should be able to collect at least one petition page full of 10 signatures. Ask your family members, friends, neighbors, co-workers and club members to sign and even distribute a petition. Ask for a table at gun shows, sporting and other community events. Put forth some effort, even make a donation to help cover costs, and help reach our goal quickly.

Our right to hunt is at stake. Let's not blow this one. Hunter apathy is far more dangerous to our hunting heritage than any anti-hunting movement.

Junior Achievement programs exceed expectations

Editor:

In the 2011-12 school year, Junior Achievement had programs in 44 classrooms in Northern Michigan. In 2012-13 the numbers of classrooms increased to 78. Our goal is to raise enough funds and recruit volunteers to impact over 90 classrooms with Junior Achievement programs in 2013-14.

Students that have Junior Achievement in their classroom will have the benefit of meeting outstanding leaders from our business community. These leaders serve as consultants to meet with the students for five, 30-45 minute sessions. These consultants are supplied with prepared educational material that correlates to what is being taught in the classroom, while using hands-on activities to make learning fun. The consultants share real-life situations they have experienced, bringing the work world in the classroom.

For all this to be possible, the generosity and support from our community is greatly appreciated. This includes educators welcoming the consultants into their classroom for students to experience this exciting program.

With this amazing growth over the past few years, Junior Achievement, a non-profit organization, is seeking additional financial support and consultants to volunteer their time. If you are interested in sponsoring a classroom or volunteering please contact us for more information at (231) 582-4660 or send e-mail to janso@ja.org online.

LOOKING BACK...

COURTESY PHOTO

This photo was created on the upper floor of the home of lumber company owner John Nicholls, one of Charlevoix's pioneering and most successful businessmen. The home was on East Dixon just behind the current Lodge Motel. In 1876, Nicholls purchased the original lumberyard established at the northeast corner of the channel bridge in 1867 and named it Charlevoix Lumber Company, a Charlevoix institution for decades. The expanses of lumber piles are now the area covered by the Edgewater Inn, from the Round Lake waterfront halfway up the north hill. At its height in the late 1800s, the company annually shipped out more than 40 million board feet of lumber. At left, the double-gabled buildings are the warehouses of Wilbur's Dock, now the city and Beaver Island Boat Company dock. At center, the white, multi-windowed building is the Lewis Grand Opera House (1883) beside the third channel bridge, just visible to its right. In the far distance can be seen the steeples of the Methodist (1878) and Congregational (1885) churches, while between them appears the bell tower of the old third schoolhouse, now the parking lot of the library. This school burned in 1889, thus dating the photo to the late 1880s.

The Charlevoix Historical Society's new, fully illustrated exhibit titled Journeying to Charlevoix will be at the Depot building, at Depot Beach, through Saturday, March 22. The event is offered in partnership with the Smithsonian Institution exhibit titled Journey Stories, which currently is at Charlevoix Public Library. Hours of the Depot exhibit are 10 a.m.-4 p.m. Saturdays, 4-7 p.m. Wednesdays, or by special appointment. Call (231) 547-0373 for more information.

Bad cider leads to prison sentence for Ellsworth farmer

ELLSWORTH (AP) — A Northern Michigan man could spend up to four years in prison after improperly processed apple cider he made led to an E. coli outbreak and hospital stays for two adults and two children.

James Ruster is the first person convicted of a felony under Michigan's Food Law, according to state agriculture officials.

He pleaded guilty to willful misbranding and adulteration of food products and was sentenced earlier this week to 14 months to 48 months in prison.

Ruster, owner of Mitchell Hill Farm in Ellsworth, about 30 miles northwest of Traverse City, came under state scrutiny in 2011 when a food inspector with the Michigan Department of Agriculture and Rural Development learned his apple cider was being sold at a local farmers market.

His Antrim County farm had been previously licensed as a maple syrup producer but was not approved to produce cider, the state said in a release.

Ruster continued to make and sell cider even after repeatedly being informed that he wasn't meeting safe production standards. Inspectors said his cider equipment was unsanitary and had dried food on it.

In November 2012, state agriculture officials were notified of an E. coli outbreak associated with the cider. An investigation revealed four people were hospitalized and several others were sickened after drinking the cider.

The Health Department of Northwest Michigan urged people to avoid Ruster's cider.

"It's paramount that we maintain the safety of Michigan's food and agriculture products," said Jamie Clover Adams, Michigan Department of Agriculture and Rural Development director.

"Mr. Ruster showed a blatant neglect for not only the safety of his food products, but the health of his customers. It's tragic that people were so greatly impacted by his willful disregard for food safety rules and regulations."

Council offers grants to grow stronger regional economy

Grants to help local units of government build the foundation for a stronger regional economy are available through the Northwest Michigan Council of Governments. The Community Growth Grants program is part of the local response to Governor Rick Snyder's statewide Regional Prosperity Initiative. The initiative's goal is to encourage local, private, public and non-profit partners to create vibrant regional economies through collaboration and local decision making.

Grants of up to $7,500 in cash and/or technical assistance are available on a competitive basis to all city, village, township and county governments in Antrim, Benzie, Charlevoix, Emmet, Grand Traverse, Kalkaska, Leelanau, Manistee, Missaukee and Wexford counties. The grants represent a geographic expansion of the region's previous New Designs for Growth Community Growth Grants program, which has been providing direct financial and technical assistance support to communities for planning and action-oriented projects in the six-county Grand Vision region. The grant application deadline is March 21.

"This is a great program to help communities do some pretty cool projects," said Andy Hayes, president of the Northern Lakes Economic Alliance. "Even small projects help make communities more attractive for residents and newcomers, an important part of economic development."

The Regional Prosperity Initiative's Community Growth Grants program is intended to strengthen the region by removing barriers and creating incentives for greater public and private sector investment in northwest Lower Michigan. Successful projects will create the conditions for sustainable and efficient growth and development by implementing strategies that are consistent with local values and community goals. Successful applicants are also likely to demonstrate linkages to principles within The Grand Vision (www.thegrandvision.org) and/or New Designs for Growth (www.newdesignsforgrowth.org).

Funding for the program is provided by a State of Michigan Regional Prosperity Initiative Grant received by Northwest Michigan Council of Governments and is being implemented with support from the Traverse City Area Chamber of Commerce, the Northern Lakes Economic Alliance and the Alliance for Economic Success.

More information about the Regional Prosperity Initiative's Community Growth Grants is available at www.nwm.org/growthgrants online. For questions regarding this grant opportunity, contact Scott Gest via email sent to scottgest@nwm.cog.mi.us or by calling (231) 929-5091.

OBITUARIES

Oscar Wilson Ward, 95

Former Charlevoix businessman Oscar Wilson Ward, 95, passed peacefully into eternity Feb. 19, 2014, under the care of a compassionate staff at Boulder Park Terrace.

The youngest of six children, he was born at home to Oscar William and Hannah Mae (Waldorf) Ward on Sept. 3, 1918. He grew up on the family farm in Ironton and graduated at age 16 from East Jordan High in 1934.

As a young man, Oscar owned and piloted his charter boat christened "The Donkey M" out of Harbor Springs.

"O.W." and the former Dorothy Eugenia Miller of Charlevoix were married at the First Presbyterian Church in Mackinaw City on April 28, 1939.

Oscar served his country with the U.S. Army Air Corps in the North African Theater during World War II, entering into active service on Aug. 2, 1944. Following basic training, he received specialty training as a cryptographic tech 805 and teletype operator 237, handling enciphered and deciphered messages, using various types of cryptographic systems and equipment. He handled secret communications and maintained cryptographic files while being on the Mediterranean in Tripoli, Libya, Egypt and Israel.

On Aug. 1, 1946, at the Separation Center, Fort Sheridan, Ill., Private First Class Ward was honorably discharged.

Following military service, O.W. became a toolmaker at the Kaiser-Fraiser Plant at Willow Run in Ypsilanti, Mich. In 1950, he returned his young family to Northern Michigan and began forming Arcade Enterprises of Charlevoix which included hilliards, card games, a taxi and rent-a-car service, in addition to the availability of live bait and tackle as well as guns and ammunition — foreign and domestic. He was very methodical and efficient in business. He was also an avid reader with a great love of history and a lifelong interest in government and political science.

He served on the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners and was a member of the Church of God, Masonic Lodge, V.F.W. and the American Legion.

He greatly enjoyed card games (especially pinocle), deer hunting and fishing, as well as replicating the safety skills of the woodsman in cutting, hauling and processing timber which he learned from his father. He marketed cedar logs, posts and cordwood from the windfalls on his acreage. He found a sense of peace in the woods and reaped the benefits from this strenuous labor. He was fortunate to continue and profit from his activities until well into his ninetieth year.

Oscar is survived by his daughter, Kaye (Kenneth) Balch, of Charlevoix; and daughter-in-law, Dana M. Ward, of Charlevoix and Zephyrhills, Fla.; three granddaughters, Michelle Ranae (Mark) Vancil of Mineral Ridge, Ohio, Kendall Kaye (James) Smith of Charlevoix and Rhonda Jean (Glen) Thorman of Ellsworth; eight great-grandchildren, Courtney (Erick) Haight of Gaylord, Ryan (Tawni) Kane of Essexville, Mich., Braden Vancil of Mineral Ridge, Ohio, Shayne and Sheldon Smith of Charlevoix, and Mikayla, Mamie and Maggie Thorman of Ellsworth; and two great-great-grandchildren, Hudson and Clara Kane of Essexville.

He was preceded in passing by his parents, Oscar and Hannah; by the mother of his children, Dorothy Eugenia, on May 24, 1994; infant son, Ronald Wilson; and son, Oscar Bradford "Brad," on Sept. 2, 2012; brothers, Bernie (Macoma) Ward Sr., and Archie (Althea) Ward of Charlevoix; and sisters, Elsie (Mark) Saunders of Ironton, Ethel (Lewellyn "Todd") Baker of Harbor Springs and Nellie (Kenneth) Krulik of Charlevoix.

The family is being served by the Winchester Funeral Home of Charlevoix. A graveside service is to take place in the spring at Brookside Cemetery.

Memorial contributions may be made to Boulder Park Terrace Nursing Home, or to a charity of choice.

Richard Doty, 82

Richard V. Doty, age 82, of Charlevoix, previously of Rochester and Clarkston, passed away peacefully on Feb. 16, 2014.

Survived by Phyllis, his loving wife of 62 years; brother, Bill, of Alabama; and children, Susan (Nick) Gersch, Michael (Pam), Diane (Lary) Wasen, Carolyn (Wayne) Lumsden and Rob (Amy). Richard also celebrated 15 grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

Richard retired following a successful career from Collins & Aikman.

"Doty" loved to be on the golf course. The family is planning to dedicate a bench in his honor on the Charlevoix City Golf Course in summer 2014.

A sharing of memories is scheduled for noon on Saturday, March 1, at Fountains Golf & Banquet Center in Clarkston. Friends and family are welcome to come and share memories and pictures. Golf attire preferred. R.S.V.P. to (810) 733-3770, or visit www.facebook.com/richardvdotyonline.

In lieu of flowers, donations can be made to Rose Cancer Center, P.O. Box 5802, Troy, MI 48007.

Mildred Mae Darnton, 96

Mildred Mae (MacArthur) Darnton died in her beloved home on Lake Charlevoix, Feb. 19, 2014.

She was a woman full of graciousness, intelligence, optimism and love for all her family and friends. She loved parties, dressing up and lively intellectual discussions. She always welcomed family members, guests and friends of friends with equal warmth and enthusiasm. She was seen as a lovely woman, inside as well as out, by all who made her acquaintance.

Mildred was born on Dec. 10, 1917, in Flint, the first of two children of Roy I. MacArthur and Olive Mildred Eckinger. She was the valedictorian of Flint Northern High School in 1935, where she excelled in debate and English. That fall she entered the University of Michigan, majoring in speech communication and English. Upon graduation in 1939, she worked in Chicago, first as a high school teacher, then as a sales trainer for IBM.

On Jan. 25, 1947, she married William B. Darnton in Flint. During the World War II years, while Bill was on a ship in the Aleutians, Mildred worked for IBM in San Francisco.

After the war, Mildred and Bill settled in Flint. The mother of three children, she also found time to do extensive volunteer work in Flint, organizing one of the first co-op nursery schools in the city and later, in the 1960s, lobbying for the legislation that created a community mental health system for the State of Michigan. During the 1970s, she was host of a radio interview show for Flint public radio WFBE, public relations assistant for Genesee County Community Mental Health, and founding trainer for Leadership Flint. Her most exciting work came when she spent a year in Washington, D.C., doing public relations for the National Mental Health Board.

When Bill retired from General Motors in 1977, Mildred retired from professional life, as well. They had a wonderful time together, splitting their lives between two homes in places they loved, Ann Arbor and Charlevoix, until Bill's death in 2012. They had celebrated their 70th wedding anniversary in January that year. Their relationship exemplified that love, loyalty, commitment and friendship are essential for a successful marriage. The greatest sorrow Mildred endured in her life was Bill's death.

Mildred's love affair with Charlevoix began at the age of 5 years when she came to visit her grandparents, Dave and Melinda Eckinger, each summer. Shortly after the war, she and Bill purchased one of the former workers' cabins of the R.E. Olds estate in Pine Point, where she spent every summer raising her children. The Darnton summer home was always open to visitors and Saturday evenings became lifetime memories for many visitors from as far away as Europe, Asia and Australia over the years. This legacy continues.

Mildred was a devoted supporter of the Charlevoix Art Fair through her annual purchases, filling the walls of her home with a fine collection of paintings. An avid reader and patron of the Charlevoix Public Library, she also subscribed to three newspapers, and read them daily until her eyesight failed shortly before her death.

Mildred is survived by her three children, sons Thomas B. Darnton of Charlevoix and Ann Arbor, David R. (Cheryl) Darnton of Ann Arbor and Charlevoix, and daughter, Judith (Paul) Ivan of Charlevoix; her grandchildren include Megan and Meredith Wilder, Ryan (Davy) Darnton, Kate and Bill Ivan, Julia, Christopher, and Colin Darnton and Annie Barget. Her younger brother, Bruce M. MacArthur (formerly of Charlevoix, currently of Ashburn, Va.), survives, as well.

A memorial service will be at 1 p.m. Saturday, March 1, at the First Unitarian Universalist Church of Ann Arbor. A reception at the church will follow the service. The church is at 4001 Ann Arbor-Saline Road, Ann Arbor. In lieu of flowers, donations can be sent to the Little Traverse Conservancy or Charlevoix Public Library.

Veteran of the month: John William Harris

The Veteran of the Month for February 2014 is John William Harris. Born on March 8, 1931, in Boyne City, Harris graduated from Boyne City High School in the class of 1949 and went to work for The Boyne City Co-Op as a light truck driver. On March 6, 1952, Harris was inducted into the U.S. Army entering into active service in Detroit, and was assigned to Schofield Barracks, Hawaii.

Following basic training, he was re-assigned to the 102nd Infantry Regiment in Germany, where he served for one year, 10 months and seven days. On Oct. 22, 1953, Harris was promoted to the Non-Commissioned Officer rank of Corporal and on Feb. 22, 1954, he received an honorable release from active military service at the Separation Center, Fort Sheridan, Ill., and was transferred to the U.S. Army Reserves, Infantry, Michigan Military District to complete his eight-year military obligation, receiving an honorable discharge on March 6, 1960. He received the following decorations and awards: The National Defense Service Medal and The Army of Occupation Medal (Germany).

Following his release from active service, Harris returned to Boyne City where he worked in a number of different vocations including as a builder with R.D. Brooks Construction Company. On Sept. 2, 1967, in Boyne Falls, Harris married Janet Marie Allison, making their home in Boyne City. Harris also worked as a delivery driver for The Petoskey Pet Gas Company, as a driver for Northland Septic Company and for The City of Boyne City Street Department, retiring on March 8, 1993.

Harris enjoyed gardening, woodworking, bowling and spending quality time with his grandchildren and great-grandchildren. On Dec. 6, 2012, John William Harris answered the final call and is being honored by his wife Janet, his children, his siblings and their families.

COMMUNITY Highlights

Great Lakes Chamber Orchestra to perform 'Music and Drama'

The Great Lakes Chamber Orchestra, under the direction of guest conductor Carlos Andres Botero, and with pianist Eduardn Rojas, will present a program titled "Music and Drama." The concert will be at 4 p.m. March 16 at Charlevoix High School on Marion Center Road.

The orchestra will have pianist Eduardo Rojas return to play Piano Concerto No. 24 in C Minor, by Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart. In 1785-86 season, Mozart first presented the C Minor concerto and two additional concertos. Unlike his typical piano concerto, which Mozart described to his father as "a happy medium between what is too easy and too difficult ... very brilliant, pleasing to the ear, and natural, without being vapid," his C Minor concerto lifts the genre to a profound musical level. The C Minor concerto represents Mozart's great genius in its brilliance, intensity and classical proportions.

Opera is a dramatic art form, and the orchestra will continue this concert by playing the Prologue to Hippolyte et Aricie. This opera was written by Jean-Philippe Rameau, with the orchestration by the conductor, Carlos Andres Botero. Rameau, who composed many works for harpsichord, had ambitions to write for the stage. So, at the age of 50, he collaborated with the librettist, Anne Simon-Joseph Pellegrin to produce his first opera, a tragedies lyrique, Hippolyte et Aricie. Our conductor, Carlos Botero, has edited and arranged the Prologue from a series of movements from several acts and scenes of the opera.

Completing the concert, the orchestra features Maurice Ravel's Le tombeau de Couperin. It was composed between 1914 and 1917. as World War I brought a heightened sense of nationalism to the fore. The term "tombeau" was a common musical term during the 17th and 18th centuries for a work composed as a memorial. Each of the movements in Ravel's suite was dedicated to the memory of a friend who died in World War I.

The audience is invited to meet the conductor, soloist and orchestra members for a reception following the concert.

Tickets cost $20 and may be purchased online at www.glorchestra.org and www.Mynorthtickets.com, at the orchestra's office by calling (231) 487-0010, and at chambers of commerce in Boyne City, Charlevoix, East Jordan, Harbor Springs and Petoskey. Students/youths who are 18 years and younger, military personnel and people with disabilities registered with VSA Arts of Michigan are admitted free of charge.

The Great Lakes Chamber Orchestra produces live orchestral performances that provide entertainment, education and inspiration for Northern Michigan. Support for the orchestra is provided by the Michigan Council for Arts and Cultural Affairs, the National Endowment for the Arts, the Petoskey-Harbor Springs Area Community Foundation, the Bay Harbor Foundation, the Charlevoix County Community Foundation and hundreds of individual patrons of the arts. For more information about the Great Lakes Chamber Orchestra, visit www.glorchestra.org.

Grand Traverse Band allocates to local projects

The Grand Traverse Band of Ottawa and Chippewa Indians announced the distribution of $909,295.36 of gaming revenue allocation to local units of government. The funds will go to 51 local applicants as part of the tribe's 2 percent allocation, which takes place twice per year.

Under the terms of a consent decree settling Tribe v. Engler (Case no. 1:90-CV-611, U.S. District Court, Western District Michigan), the Grand Traverse Band allocates 2 percent of its video gaming revenue to local units of government, as defined in the stipulation, no later than 60 days after Oct. 1 and March 31 of each year. This payment schedule was modified with the consent of the State of Michigan to July 31 and Jan. 31 of each year, because the fiscal year of the Grand Traverse Band's gaming operation is calendar-based.

Pure Northern Michigan: An historical look at tourism

When the railroads first arrived in Northern Michigan in the 1870s, the region was considered destined for farmers, but over the next 30 years it instead became a significant regional tourist destination that annually welcomed thousands of short- and long-term guests.

The Charlevoix Public Library will at 6:30 p.m. Monday, March 3, host Michael R. Federspiel, of the history department at Central Michigan University and director of the Little Traverse Historical Society, for a discussion titled "Pure Northern Michigan: An Historical Look at Tourism." Federspiel will employ techniques that the current Pure Michigan program mimics. Using archival photographs and print publications, his presentation describes how the railroad and steamships companies, along with local business, transformed the region and created a tourist economy that still thrives today. A special display of early Charlevoix marketing materials will be provided by the Charlevoix Historical Society.

This presentation is a part of the Smithsonian's Journey Stories Chronology at the Charlevoix Public Library, 220 W. Clinton St., in downtown Charlevoix. Journey Stories tells the tale of how our ancestors came to America and the variety of different types of transportation utilized. Our history is filled with stories of people leaving behind everything to reach a new life in another state, or across the ocean. The 700 square foot exhibit includes six stand alone kiosks all with audio and interactive pieces. The library staff invites the public to explore the exhibit prior to Federspiel's presentation.

Journey Stories is possible at the Charlevoix Public Library through funding by the Michigan Humanities Council. Journey Stories is part of Museum on Main Street, a collaboration between the Smithsonian Institution and State Humanities Councils nationwide. Support for Museum on Main Street has been provided by the United States Congress. For more information about this program or other events at the library, visit www.charlevoixlibrary.org or call (231) 237-7340.

EAST JORDAN

Top East Jordan students can earn scholarships

Placement results could turn into college funds

EAST JORDAN — Beginning with the class of 2014, East Jordan High School students will have an opportunity to earn scholarship money by committing to academic challenge. Students who enroll in and complete an Advanced Placement (AP) course will earn scholarship money based on their performance on the end of year AP exam. Students can earn up to $1,000 for each class they take.

The College Board's Advanced Placement courses are college-level classes in a wide variety of subjects students can take while still in high school. Students may take AP courses in their junior or senior year.

At the completion of the course, students take an AP exam. If they score successfully on the exam, they earn college credit that is accepted at colleges and universities across the country. Additionally, colleges and universities recognize that students who complete AP courses are better prepared to be successful in college and will often consider this factor when making a decision regarding admission.

Three AP courses are offered at East Jordan High School this academic year are biology, statistics and English/composition.

In addition to the courses offered on site, students also have the option to "customize" their AP experience by choosing to take other AP courses through online class opportunities.

These off-site courses also qualify for the Commitment Performance Scholarship.

East Jordan High School students who accept the challenge of academic rigor stand to earn up to $6,000 toward college costs. To fund these scholarships, the school is holding its first fundraising benefit, the EJPS Extravaganza from 6-11 p.m. on Saturday, March 8, at Casle Farms in Charlevoix.

Tickets are $50 each and include admission, hors d'oeuvres, DJ and dancing. In addition, there will be a cash bar, silent and live auctions, a photo booth and an opportunity to "dance with the devil," the East Jordan mascot.

Free child care is available at the high school. More information may be found at www.Facebook.com/EJPSX online, the Extravaganza's Facebook page. Tickets are available by phone at (231) 536-2259 or at any school office.

Questions can be directed to Tammy Jackson, East Jordan High School principal, by email at jackson@ejps.org or by phone at (231) 536-2259.

WALLOON LAKE

Walloon residents strongly support water utility buy

Deal would give Hass and his family free water for life

ZAC BRITTON
NORTHERN MICHIGAN REVIEW

WALLOON LAKE — Even with the possibility of a $25 increase in their monthly water bills, approximately 30 residents of Walloon Lake unanimously voted to allow Melrose Township to pursue a $1.3 million purchase of the privately owned Walloon Lake Water System.

The vote took place at the conclusion of a 65-minute informational meeting Tuesday, led by township supervisor Vern Goodwin at Melrose Township hall. When Goodwin called for support and opposing votes, there were shouts of "yea" or raised hands, followed by no public votes against the purchase.

"Then we will proceed," Goodwin said. "I'll talk to the lawyer first thing in the morning to get the ball rolling."

He expected the agreement to be hammered out within 90 days, bringing a conclusion to a longtime dispute between local residents and Dennis Hass, the current owner of the water utility that serves approximately 200 residences.

"Bottom line is everybody voted and it turned out the way it should have turned out," said Bunny Marquardt, who led a 2013 petition drive to have the water utility purchased.

The petition drive followed the 2011 arrest of Hass, whom authorities accused of charging elevated bills for water system users. The charges initially were dropped, then three counts of felony extortion and two counts of encumbering real property without lawful cause were re-filed before Charlevoix County prosecutor Allen Telgenhof negotiated $7,500 in restitution in September 2013.

That was the latest disagreement involving Hass and Walloon Lake residents. Both Goodwin and Marquardt also referenced a mid-1980s brief from the Michigan State Attorney General's office which detailed water utility service issues that Goodwin stated still existed nearly 30 years later.

"It's been going on for some time," said Philo Lange, whose family has owned and lived on property in the Walloon Lake area since the 1930s. "Some people have been charged certain amounts and others have been charged other amounts. It's just a haphazard way of running a business, it's not the way it should be. I think the township will do a much better job with transparency and letting everybody know what the real costs are."

"Nobody has that now," he added. "It's like the 'Wizard of Oz' — it's behind the curtain and nobody knows what's going on and that's a very frightening thing."

On Tuesday, Goodwin detailed a proposal that would have the township pay a $130,000 first payment, followed by successive monthly payments of $7,721. He stated township officials want to immediately exercise a purchase option, starting the 12-month clock to give residents full ownership of the utility, equipment and approximately five acres of land that are part of the utility holdings.

There was limited public reaction when Goodwin reviewed the estimated utility bills, based on 190 residents using its services. For example, private residences using 6,000 gallons of water would see their fixed fee increase from $38.50 to $52 with the price per gallon jumping from $0.002 to $0.004 and the total bill from $50.50 to $76.

Area businesses could see a smaller increase with a facility using an estimated 10,000 gallons seeing a jump from $110.50 to $112.40.

There was stronger reaction later when Hass' demands for the purchase were detailed, including one that assured "any Hass family or heirs will receive free water for their personal use forever." The capacity crowd at the township hall responded with laughter, adding a few more chuckles when another stipulation stated "if the water supply facilities at 2053 North Shore Drive are abandoned, Dennis Hass will have the option to

Puppets coming to Charlevoix library

The Charlevoix Public Library will host an after-school event with Kevin Kammeraad and the Cooperfly Puppet Troupe on Friday, March 7. Kids of all ages are invited for after-school snacks at 3:30 p.m. and then to participate in the puppet show at 4 p.m.

Kammeraad, and sidekick Ollie Winston, bring an interactive, musical, improvisational, all-ages show to Charlevoix. They perform in a unique, refurbished material, handmade puppet theatre.

This new show has audiences laughing, singing, dancing, thinking, creating and directing the flow of the show. Kammeraad has been a full-time presenter, performer, artist and children's author since 1999, after his graduation from Grand Valley State University.

For more information about the show, contact the library at (231) 237-7350.

Join the Little Traverse Association of Home Builders in partnership with the Little Traverse Bay Humane Society and Northwest Michigan Habitat for Humanity at the 38th Annual 2014 Northern Michigan Home Show on March 14th and 15th!

This year's show offers many new and exciting opportunities as we celebrate all the great families that make up our wonderful community, while at the same time giving back to two very worthy charities!

Highlights at this year's show:

- Approximately 100 area businesses expected to be exhibiting!
- A silent auction of a two car garage through area high school building trades programs!
- A $12,000 Home Kitchen and Bath Makeover Sweepstakes!!!
- A Picture is Worth a 1,000 Words contest recognizing two special projects by area builders!
- A portion of this year's gate fee will be donated to our partnering charities.
- A craft building opportunity in the Kids Corner to be sponsored by Lowes.
- With 70% of households in the U.S. owning a pet, no celebration of families would be complete without an actual pet display put on by the Little Traverse Bay Humane Society in the Atrium.
- Northwest Michigan Habitat for Humanity has a mission to build homes, communities, and hope! This year's show will offer an excellent opportunity to help by purchasing furniture and furnishings on display in the Atrium!
- A surprise celebrity guest appearance!
- Children's author signing autographs for the kids and promoting his new release.
- A brief performance from an ensemble of the award-winning Peabody Marching Band during Saturday's intermission!

repurchase the property for $1."

In later discussion, when certain audience members questioned the $1.3 million price tag and allowing those two requirements to stand, Goodwin responded with "(Hass) does not have to sell this system. He does not have to sell this system. Keep that in the back of your mind — he does not have to sell the system."

"I believe the sooner the better — you need to get it done, move on and not look back," Lange responded.

Residents agreed less than three minutes later, unanimously voting for the purchase and its stipulations.

"For the next 90 days, it's still his and he's not going to do anything to jeopardize (the proposed deal)," Marquardt said. "I think he wants out and obviously the people in this room are willing to pay the money to get him out."

ALLOCATION

Since the 2 percent allocation began in 1994, the Grand Traverse Band allocated $31,595,676.91 to hundreds of local organizations.

The test for determining the distribution standards, as outlined in Tribes v. Engler are: "Each tribe shall determine which local unit or units of government shall receive payments and the amounts thereof; provided however, the guidelines governing the tribes in making said determinations shall be based upon compensating said local units of government for governmental services provided to the tribes and for impacts associated with the existence and location of the tribal casino in its vicinity; and provided further, however ... each local unit of government shall receive no less than an amount equivalent to its share of ad valorem property taxes."

On Feb. 19, the Tribal Council voted to determine which organizations would receive allocations. Of the 96 applications received — totaling $2,836,600.32 in requests — the Tribal Council awarded 51 for a total of $909,295.36.

The Grand Traverse Band will make its decision regarding the first 2014 two-percent allocation in June of 2014.

It is with great pleasure that the Grand Traverse Band of Ottawa and Chippewa Indians is able to provide all citizens of Northern Michigan with these services that are furnished solely by gaming revenues.

Recipients in this area include:

- Antrim County, prisoner housing contract, $12,775
- Boyne City, funds for Boyne Area Free Clinic, $50,000
- Central Lake Public Schools, iPads for special education, $8,834
- Charlevoix city, iPads for kindergarten and first-graders, $2,500
- Charlevoix city, funds for Third Day Fellowship and Outreach, $15,000
- Charlevoix city, funds for Joppa House homeless shelter, $20,916 holding the center of the way you perform, of the way you look. It's just it's really captivating," Urban added.

Finally, Lopez offered some suggestions for future improvement along with her flattery.

"You sing perfectly. Now you just have to kind of come alive a little bit more on stage," she said, adding he looked a little like "deer in the headlights."

"Your voice is amazing and you've got to start believing that and just get loose up there," Lopez encouragingly said.

It remained unknown at press time Thursday whether Woolf advanced further in the competition after the top 13 candidates performed Wednesday night before viewers across America voted online or by telephone. However, the judges stressed to all but a few of the other American Idol contestants how important it is to sing in key — if that serves as a barometer.

Check the Courier's website at www.charlevoixcourier.com for updates.

Woolf, 17, is not a stranger to the stage and performing. While vacationing in Charlevoix, his family would host a talent show. Woolf would perform by singing and playing guitar, family members reported.

The Woolf family vacationed in Charlevoix every summer since the 1980s. Sam's father, Scott Woolf, turned him on to acoustic folk-rock music when he was a young child. Sam's father and his grandfather both long believed, heyoud all odds, that Sam will become a famous singer, family members said.

This is not part of this county commission's business."

Multiple area residents encouraged the commission to be aware, spending the bulk of nearly 50 minutes of the 85-minute meeting detailing opposition to the proposed land swap. The proposal involves St. Marys Cement trading 220 acres of property on the southeastern corner of the park for a 190-acre section on the northern end of the park — including Bells Bay Road and the popular entrance to the waterfront area of the park.

Not all discussion was opposed to a possible deal.

"I'm not not in direct support of a land swap, but I'm here in favor of collecting information — all the information," said Doug Bergmann, a Marion Township resident. "This is more than a park entrance by St. Marys, this is a huge chunk of land and I think all needs to be looked at."

Bergmann — who was the last person to speak during public comment — also detailed that in his personal exploration of a possible swap, he found that no proposal has been formally submitted to the DNR on a possible deal.

The bulk of public comment was not favorable to such a deal, including Jo Anne Beemon's description of a swap as "it would be like trading a box of chocolates for a Dum-Dum sucker." Several commentators compared the two properties, seeking to protect the heavily-wooded northern section from leaving public hands.

But the commissioners stood their ground, stating that more information is needed.

"If we were to make any type of recommendation, I'd certainly like to have some research and input from those three departments prior to making a decision," said commissioner Larry Sullivan, referring to the county's Parks and Planning/GIS departments, as well as Northern Lakes Economic Alliance. "They're not going to make the decision for us, but they can provide some background and information for us."

Moments later, fellow commissioner Chris Christensen reiterated that the county board of commissioners maintains limited to no jurisdiction on this matter.

"When Beaver Island swapped Whiskey Island for some property of Beaver Island, we weren't involved," Christensen said. "We weren't asked for an opinion on that — they just did it and were two townships acting on their own. The citizens voted to not have county-wide zoning, leaving that to the local (municipalities)."

Sheriff Don Schneider provided the last comments on the subject, defending the commissioners' recreational track record.

"I appreciate everyone who has spoken. This needs to be brought to everyone's attention so we can come to a resolution," the sheriff said, "but sitting here working with this board and the boards before this one, I tell you what, this county board have been advocates of all the parks and recreation we have in this county."

In other business:

— The board unanimously approved Michael Harmeling as the new medical examiner. Harmeling, who served as deputy medical examiner for Charlevoix County with the recently retired Dr. Reed Freidinger, received a strong endorsement from Schneider just prior to the vote.

— The board unanimously approved a bid of $7,316.25 from TelNet group to install a digital recording telephone system at the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office.

city's to-do list. Also, city officials will maintain the final say about which consultant is chosen for each market study, Spencer said.

"And we would get the money in hand before any funds were paid," he said.

Spencer said that stipulation is to ensure the city isn't on the hook for paying the study consultants if something happens to negatively impact the donation to the city. In fact, the donation amount will be determined by the city's chosen consultant proposals.

Charlevoix City Council members are expected to discuss this possible donation at its regularly scheduled meeting at 7 p.m. Monday, March 3, at city hall, 210 State St., in downtown Charlevoix.

BOYS' BASKETBALL

Rayders fall to Ramblers

DREW KOCHANNY
NORTHERN MICHIGAN REVIEW

CHARLEVOIX — Thriller, part two.

When the Boyne City and Charlevoix boys' basketball teams face off, a gritty, down to the wire finish can be expected.

Look no further than the last three meetings, which have been decided by four points or less or gone to overtime.

On Feb. 21, playing each another for the second time in a week, the Rayders and Ramblers didn't disappoint a packed Charlevoix High School gym, as Boyne City beat Charlevoix 38-34 in an adrenaline rush just as intense as the Ramblers 56-50 overtime victory on Monday.

Boyne City, ranked No. 2 in Michigan Associated Press Class C state poll, moved to 17-0 overall on the season, and completed their conference sweep with a record of 14-0, which is believed to be the first time in school history the Ramblers has gone undefeated in Lake Michigan Conference play.

The Ramblers last Lake Michigan Conference title came in the 1997-98 season.

For the second time in a week, the Ramblers, as most good teams do, found a way to win the close game.

"I'm just really proud of not shooting the ball well and being able to come out of here with a win against a rival in their gym," Boyne City coach Nick Redman said. "They played extremely hard again. I'm proud of our effort, proud that we stuck with it."

From the opening tip, it was clear the Rayders, 6-13, 6-9, wouldn't be intimidated by the Ramblers' record and historic season.

A 12-7 lead for the Rayders in the opening quarter transitioned to a 15-7 lead for Charlevoix to close the first.

In the second quarter, Boyne began to chip away at the Rayders lead, scoring seven straight to push it to a 15-14 game with just over three minutes to go in the half. Charlevoix would hold tough, however, pushing the game to halftime with a 21-17 lead, leaving the Boyne City half of the Rayder gym in silence.

"We really played hard, really played hard tonight," Charlevoix coach Bret Erskine said. "We've just got to find a way to win and we just haven't found that person that can help us do that yet. We just kind of fell asleep in the second half and weren't attacking the basket like we should have been doing. But Boyne played a great defensive game. Hats off to them for that."

While the Ramblers were held to a season low 38 points offensively, the defense for Boyne rose to the occasion once again, as they gave up their third lowest total of the year in 34 points, allowing just 13 points in the second half.

"Our defense has been pretty good all year, we've had a couple games where we weren't, but I thought all in all our effort was outstanding again defensively," added Redman. "We've just got to shoot the ball better."

The Ramblers scored the first five points of the second half to grab a quick 22-21 lead, their first since two minutes into the first quarter.

Charlevoix continued to fight in the third quarter, but a strategy to get the ball inside more in the second half from Boyne made it a tight, 29-29 game to end the third quarter.

"I thought we stayed focus and did a lot better job going inside a lot more tonight," said Redman. "In the first half I thought we didn't take advantage of our mismatches so we threw in something we haven't done and tried to get the ball inside more."

Missed shots, free throws and a whole lot of game plans washed away by defense came in the fourth quarter from both teams, as Boyne took a 36-32 lead on a pair of successful free throws by senior Ryan Carson with around two and a half minutes left to play.

Rayder guard Nate Moon made it a 36-34 game with a layup at the other end, but another two free throws from Carson would again push the game to a four point lead, 38-34, with 26.6 left to play.

Charlevoix, now on the offensive attack, couldn't find the bottom of the net as time expired.

"I expected it to be a dog fight again," Redman said. "I don't know if it was tougher (than Monday's game), cause that was tough enough. I knew that it doesn't matter what the records are, you try your best against Charlevoix and they do the same against us."

Corey Redman led the Ramblers with 12 points and 10 rebounds, while Carson and Cole Butler each added eight points.

For Charlevoix, Moon led with a game-high 13 points.

Free-throws may have been the difference in the end, with the Boyne making 14-of-16 in the game, while the Rayders were 7-of-11 at the line.

Redman let his team know on Friday just how meaningful the conference finale was in a celebration back in Boyne City.

"It felt good, when we got back to the school that night some of the parents got the kids a Lake Michigan Conference champs cake and pizza and I let the kids know that this is a special and great accomplishment and something to be proud of, something they'll always remember."

NORTHERN MICHIGAN REVIEW

CHARLEVOIX — Senior Gabby Gray scored 11 points and dished out eight assists, while Madeline Boss added 10 points, six rebounds and six assists for the Rayders in their 55-49 Lake Michigan Conference win over Boyne City on Feb. 21.

At the end of the first quarter the game was tied, 12-12, before Charlevoix would take the lead, 23-19, going into halftime.

"We played better defense against their talented guard, Rainy (McCune) tonight," Charlevoix coach Liz Shaw said after the win. "We shut down any help she could get from her team and made forced some turnovers."

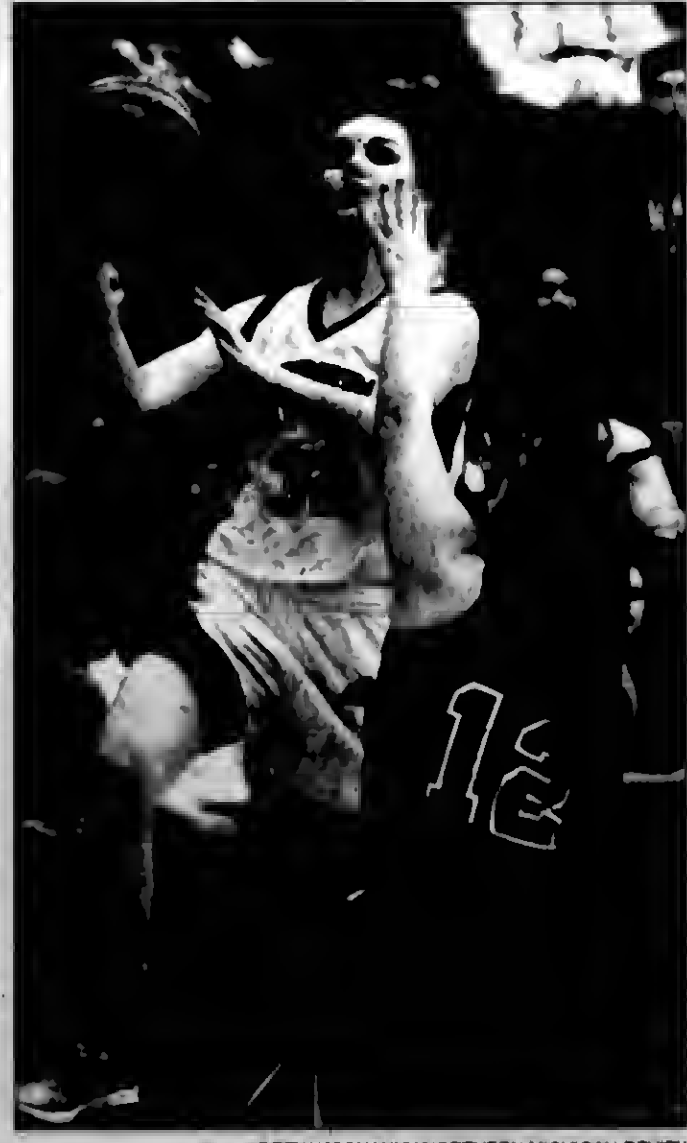

Boyne City remained four points behind, 40-36, at the end of third quarter and could not get any closer in the fourth.

For Boyne City, Rainy McCune scored a game-high 20 points and had eight assists and six rebounds, while Heather Nichols had nine points and four rebounds and Celena Brzezinski added eight points.

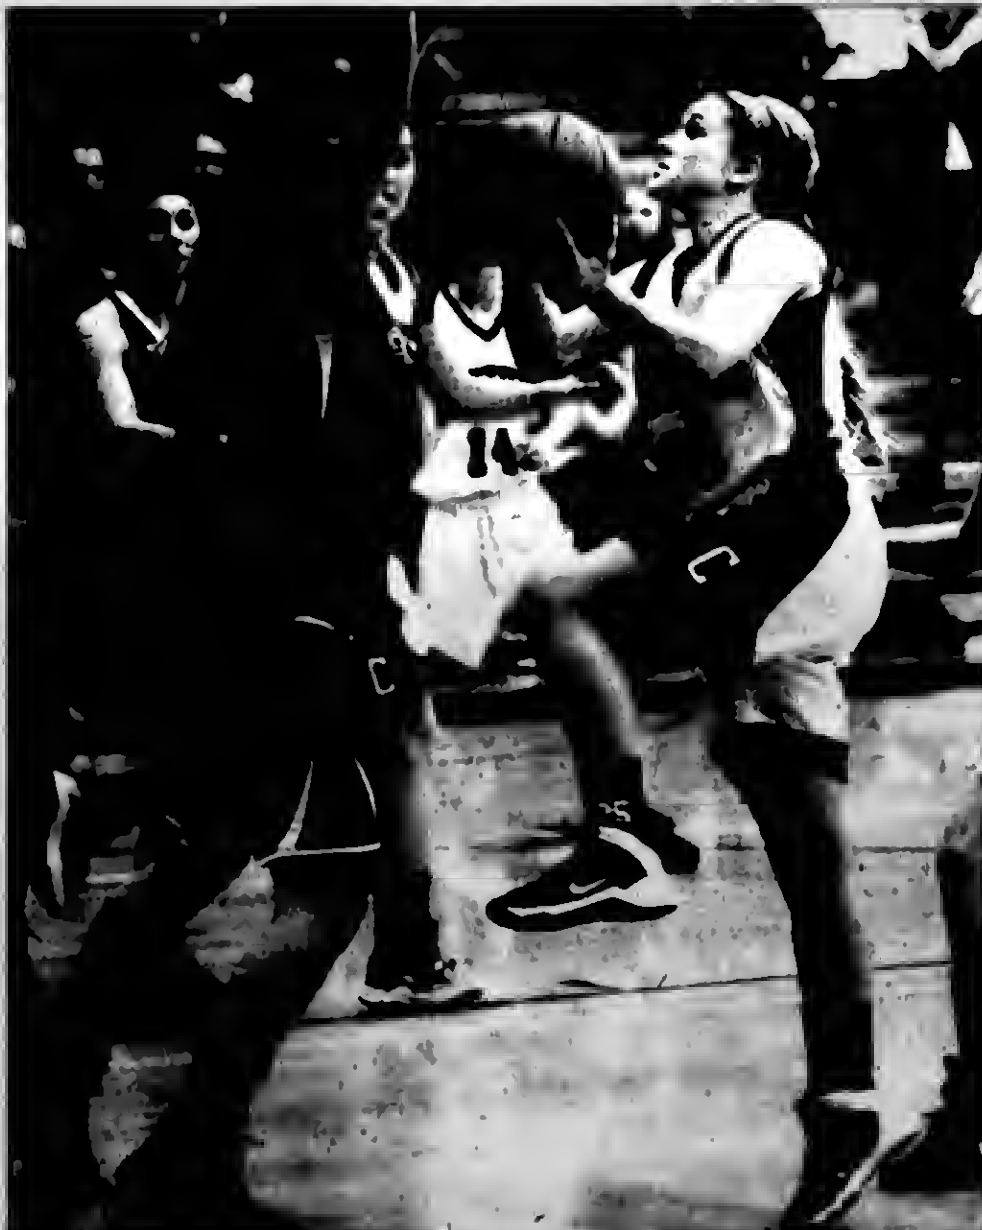

Mallory Karaszewski added four points, while Taylor Baker had eight rebounds.

Charlevoix finishes the regular season at 11-9 overall, 8-6 in league.

Boyne City finishes the regular season at 7-13, 6-8.

BE A WISE SHOPPER

It's always wise to remember that if an offer sounds too good to be true, it probably is. If you are offered merchandise at an unbelievably low price, check it out thoroughly. A call to the Better Business Bureau (serving Eastern Michigan and the Upper Peninsula) will tell you whether other consumers have had problems with the firm that has offered the merchandise. (248)223-9400. But call the Bureau BEFORE you make a purchase. You'll be glad you did.

Equalization Ratios, as shown, are the percentages of assessed valuations to true cash value as determined by a survey of individual assessments. The Multipliers are those necessary to bring the Ratios to the required 50% of estimated true cash value. The Multipliers, as shown, are tentative and subject to change as the result of possible adjustments by individual assessing officers. Assuming that no adjustments are made, the Multiplier may be applied to each individual valuation.

Donation of life

Blood donor Amy Pfluecke, of Charlevoix, recently donates blood at Charlevoix Area Hospital, with the help of longtime American Red Cross technician Freda Holley. Pfluecke has an O negative blood type, making her a universal donor. American Red Cross officials said poor weather this winter resulted in a tremendous loss of blood donations — including 1,000 canceled blood drives and 35,000 lost units across 34 states. There remains an ongoing, urgent need for blood types O positive, O negative, A negative and B negative. See page A8 (EVENTS PAGE) for a list of local blood drives to plan a donation.

Enjoy life in your new residence*Long-term care homes:
living with dignity

The expression "long-term care" usually refers to 24-hour care given to people who can no longer look after themselves. But when it involves a loved one who only has a limited degree of autonomy due to aging, this expression becomes very personal indeed. Then the very difficult decision has to be taken to admit that our loved one needs long-term care.

As long as the person concerned still lives at home, the necessary steps regarding a request for placement in a long-term care home can be made by the person involved, by a family member or a friend. If the individual has already been admitted to a general care or specialized hospital, it is this establishment which will be responsible for taking the necessary steps.

Seniors wish to be respected and at the same time remain active during their retirement years, they wish to make their own decisions on the care they receive, and these considerations must be taken into account when choosing a long-term care home. These homes are a combination of healthcare, both nursing and medical care, on the one hand, and social services on the other hand.

As far as social services are concerned, leisure activities will vary from one home to another, depending on available resources. Don't hesitate to ask questions about this: does the home employ professionals, recreation technicians or social workers. If not, do they have occupational therapists or physiotherapists available several times a week? The answers to these questions can reassure us as to the availability of services within the long-term care facility... and can also give us some idea as to whether the dignity and self-esteem of our loved one will be respected.

Long-term care homes strive to offer accessible, affordable and coordinated care.

Charlevoix City Council members on Monday unanimously voted to postpone a decision about whether to expand the marina in Round Lake after a public hearing with multiple speakers.

Both proponents and opponents of the marina expansion idea either spoke during the public hearing, or submitted written comments. The proposal pits marina growth and the associated potential economic development against the maintenance of the Round Lake marina at its current size, without further encroaching on the already busy water route.

The initial idea came from a lack of available boat slips in Charlevoix large enough to accommodate yachts that come loaded with passengers with disposal income and even paid staff members who may seek some shore leave. However, city officials acknowledge there is no available hard data — facts and figures — to back up the anecdotal details about large yachts turned away in the past.

The plan would extend the main dock by an additional 150 feet, while the existing dock already stretches 170 feet from the breakwall. The number of slips would be re-configured to boost the number of 80-foot slips from three to 10, plus the number of 50-foot slips from five to 11. Other slip sizes would also be adjusted, if the marina expansion is pursued.

Six applied for vacant city clerk spot

Applicant review committee established

Six Charlevoix city residents applied to fill the vacant city clerk seat, a spot left open when Larry Sullivan declined to take the job after city voters elected him.

On Monday, city council members agreed by consensus to establish an applicant review committee to conduct interviews and make a recommendation to the full council. The committee will include three city employees — treasurer Joe Zielinski, human resources director Jennifer — Linda Weller, city executive assistant

Nash and city manager Roh Strachel — along with three council members, Shirley Gibson, Leon Perron and Peggy Brennan agreed to fill the city council slots on the special review committee.

Linda Weller, executive assistant for the city, said the six names are not yet being released by city government until the full committee is updated with all application materials. That is expected to be by the end of the coming weekend, she said.

"I'm hoping they will meet Wednesday or Thursday of next week," Weller said.

Sullivan, an elected Charlevoix County commissioner, filed to run for city clerk when nobody else did.

After a months-long legal debate about whether Sullivan could legally hold both elected positions without creating a conflict of interest, the Michigan Attorney General weighed in and settled the matter — Sullivan had to choose one or the other. He picked to keep his county post.

That left members of Charlevoix City Council with the task to fill the elected clerk position via appointment, according to the city charter. The special applicant review committee is expected to recommend a nominee to the full council for consideration.

Sam Woolf gave a nod to his Michigan roots on this week's episode of the popular "American Idol" competition show, which includes his summers spent in Charlevoix.

Woolf on Wednesday performed "Just One," a song by band Blind Pilot, in the episode meant to be focused around the contestants' homes. And while Woolf now lives in Florida for most of the year, he chose his song based on his connection to his longtime summer retreat.

"It reminds me of Michigan," Woolf said on the show.

Local COLOR*Academic book about local tribal language published

Anishinaabe way of reading explored through language and literature

A new academic book about the native language of American Indian tribes in Northern Michigan is just published this month by Michigan State University Press.

"Bawaajimo: A Dialect of Dreams in Anishinaabe Language and Literature" combines literary criticism, sociolinguistics, native studies and poetics to introduce an Anishinaabe way of reading. Although nationally specific, the book written by Margaret Noodin speaks to a broad audience by demonstrating an indigenous literary methodology.

"This book gets to the heart of indigenous writing through an impeccable examination of Anishinaabe language and literature. Noodin's expansive knowledge and clear explanations invite readers to a new and imaginative understanding of major Anishinaabe authors," said Jane Hafen, English professor at the University of Nevada, Las Vegas, in a written review of the book.

Noodin is an assistant professor in the Department of English and the American Indian Studies program at the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee.

This book investigates the language itself, its place of origin, its sound and structure, and its current usage provides new critical connections between North American fiction, Native American literatures, and Anishinaabe narrative.

The four Anishinaabe authors discussed in the book,

Louise Erdrich, Jim Northrup, Basil Johnston and Gerald Vizenor, share an ethnic heritage but are connected more clearly by a culture of tales, songs and beliefs. Each of them has heard, studied and written in Anishinaabemowin, making their heritage language a part of the backdrop and sometimes the medium, of their work.

Also, all of the authors reference the power and influence of the Great Lakes region and the Anishinaabeikiing, and they connect the landscape to the original language. As they reconstruct and deconstruct the aadizookaan, the traditional tales of Nanabozho and other mythic figures, they grapple with the legacy of cultural genocide and write toward a future that places ancient beliefs in the center of the cultural horizon.

"We need more books like Noodin's, more readers who can make a conversation between native language and native literature, and more readers who can bring together a lived knowledge of language and culture with a specific American Indian literary tradition. Noodin's book is culturally and intellectually generous and a great and illuminating pleasure to read," said Robert Dale Parker, author of "The Invention of Native American Literature," in a review.

Noodin's paperback book is now available for $29.95 and can be found at www.amazon.com online.

BOYNE FALLSIt's carnival time: Annual spring party returns to ski resort

Boyne Mountain's Carnival Weekend is well-known for among the biggest and best spring celebrations Up North. With 415 skiable acres and 60 trails, skiing and snowboarding are at the core of this March 14-16 weekend of fun, with plentiful music, parties and costume contests adding to the lively scene.

Boyne Mountain's Carnival Weekend gets under way Friday afternoon with skiing, snowboarding, a cookout and an array of live entertainment from dueling pianos in Stein Eriksen's to DJ Bill da Cat in the Snowflake Lounge, and The Waxies, an Irish folk-rock band, in the Civic Center from 9:30 p.m. to 1:30 a.m. The Waxies have been named Michigan's "Best Celtic Rock Band" and this gathering includes green beer, Irish drink features, giveaways and prizes for the best Irish-themed costumes.

Saturday delivers six different parties throughout the day, most offering free entry for those 21 years and older. Start with the Village party for drink specials served on a snow bar, free swag, entertainment and grub. Then, head to the slopes where party goers gather near the Victor Warming House for music, camaraderie, and an adult costume contest at 2:30 p.m.

FILE PHOTO

Often a little Irish flavor comes out during Carnival weekend at Boyne Mountain Resort, as it's frequently scheduled around the same time of year as St. Patrick's Day.

The top three winners take home a 2014/15 BOYNE Gold, Silver and Bronze Pass. Don a moustache (provided) for the 'Stache Bash at the Trophy Room Pub & Pizzeria from 3-6 p.m., or take a dip during the Foggy Goggles Pool Party in the Clock Tower Lodge pool featuring the sounds of DJ Bill da Cat from 3-7 p.m. An Apres Ski Party, 4:30-8:30 p.m., rounds out the day in the Snowflake Lounge with A+ Digital DJ and contests.

Keep the momentum going, or retreat for a catnap, just be ready for the '70s Snow Disco in the Civic Center featuring Chicago-based, The Shagadelics, from 9 p.m. to 1:30 a.m. Rock to the best of the '70s with your finest '70s attire, and while there, be sure and flash a smile for the photo booth. Best male and female costumes take home prizes.

Start walking straight again with Sunday's Last Man Standing Brunch and Bloody Mary Bar in Stein Eriksen's served from 10 a.m.-1 p.m.

before heading to the slopes for a day of skiing and snowboarding. The weekend's last big splashy event is the Slush Cup across a 28-by-90-foot pond on lower McLouth starting at 11 a.m. The options are to skim, soak or spectate.

Slope hours are 9 a.m.-9 p.m. on Friday, and 9 a.m.-4:30 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday. A lift ticket or Boyne Pass and proper skiing or snowboarding equipment is required to access on-hill events.

Join the Little Traverse Association of Home Builders in partnership with the Little Traverse Bay Humane Society and Northwest Michigan Habitat for Humanity at the 38th Annual 2014 Northern Michigan Home Show on March 14th and 15th held at North Central Michigan College, Petoskey!

This year's show offers many new and exciting opportunities as we celebrate all the great families that make up our wonderful community, while at the same time giving back to two very worthy charities!

Highlights at this year's show:

- Approximately 100 area businesses expected to be exhibiting!
- A silent auction of a two car garage through area high school building trades programs!
- A $12,000 Home Kitchen and Bath Makeover Sweepstakes!
- A Picture is Worth a 1,000 Words contest recognizing two special projects by area builders!
- A portion of this year's gate fee will be donated to our partnering charities.
- A craft building opportunity in the Kids Corner to be sponsored by Lowes.
- With 70% of households in the U.S. owning a pet, no celebration of families would be complete without an actual pet display put on by the Little Traverse Bay Humane Society in the Atrium.
- Northwest Michigan Habitat for Humanity has a mission to build homes, communities, and hope! This year's show will offer an excellent opportunity to help by purchasing furniture and furnishings on display in the Atrium!
- A surprise celebrity guest appearance!
- Children's author signing autographs for the kids and promoting his new release.
- A brief performance from an ensemble of the award-winning Petoskey Marching Band during Saturday's intermission!

Officials: Pipe freeze still a danger

City advises customers to continue running water until further notice

JOHN MCWHIRTER/STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

CHARLEVOIX — Charlevoix city officials remind municipal water customers to continue running water to avoid frozen pipes.

"Continue to run your water even if the sun is out or the temperatures outside are above freezing. It is a long, slow process for this deep frost to come out of the ground," said Pat Elliott, public works superintendent.

And despite what other cities' officials told their residents, Charlevoix officials want water customers here to run more than just a trickle.

"Run only your cold water, the size of a large drinking straw or the size of your pinky (finger)," Elliott said.

He explained that one faucet typically is enough for homes, though one or two faucets running in condominiums also is recommended. But it's important to continually let the water run, he emphasized.

"Pick a faucet. Ideally in the basement — one that is rarely used so you don't inadvertently shut it off. Put a sign by the faucet to not shut off. If possible, actually remove the knob so it is even more difficult to shut the water off on accident," Elliott said.

And city water customers shouldn't worry about being gouged when their bills arrive. Officials are billing residents an average of their previous usage.

"I am estimating we will not be able to lift the run water notice until sometime in April," Elliott said.

Elliott said some residents questioned whether this continual water running will overwhelm the city's water treatment plant or the wastewater treatment plant on the back end. But officials continually monitor the situation at both facilities, he said.

"The factor is the colder water in the wastewater treatment plant, not the amount of water," said Steve Tunis, manager at the facility along Lake Shore Drive. "We are watching it closely and it is maintaining the treatment process."

Tunis added people shouldn't worry about overwhelming the treatment plant when there's a bigger issue at stake.

"It would be much worse to have broken pipes and water mains," Tunis said.

Elliott said anyone with questions should call him at (231) 547-3276, or city hall at (231) 547-3270. Also, information will remain available on the city's website at www.cityofcharlevoix.org online.

Prosecutor drops charges for video at plane crash site

STEVE ZUCKER

NORTHERN MICHIGAN REVIEW

CHARLEVOIX — Authorities on Tuesday dropped felony criminal charges against a staff member of a Northern Michigan newspaper for last month capturing video images amid the wreckage at the scene of a small airplane crash.

Charge of "photographing bodies in a grave" against Damien Leist, 38, of Boyne City, pursuant to an agreement reached between his office and Leist, through Leist's attorney.

Following Tuesday's dismissal, Telgenhof and Leist issued a joint news release on the matter.

In the release, Telgenhof said, "The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department and the Charlevoix County Prosecuting Attorney's Office respect the First Amendment rights of the news media to cover newsworthy events, and any media reports to the contrary are mistaken. In this case, the sheriff's department cooperated with a number of media outlets that were on the site, and made provisions to enable them to do their job. Unfortunately, Mr. Leist was not at the scene at the time this was done.

When Mr. Leist arrived a few hours later, the crash site was still subject to restricted access as part of the ongoing investigation into the crash. As a result of a misunderstanding of the directives of law enforcement, Mr. Leist gained access to the site and shot video footage of areas that he should not have had access to. The sheriff's department, the prosecutor's office, and Mr. Leist have pledged to work together to ensure such misunderstandings do not occur in the future."

The same release quoted Leist as saying, "I deeply re-

Convicted arsonist, witness tamperer sentenced

NORTHERN MICHIGAN REVIEW

A judge sentenced two years in prison an East Jordan man whom a jury recently convicted of arson, witness intimidation and other charges.

Charlevoix County Circuit Court Judge Richard M. Pajtas handed down the 40-60 months sentence to Robert Cronk, 25, on Friday, Feb. 28.

On Jan. 22 a jury convicted Cronk, following 75 minutes of deliberation, on counts of fourth degree arson, malicious destruction of personal property, three counts of witness intimidation and furnishing alcohol to a minor. The charges carry a maximum five years for arson, five years for malicious destruction of property and 60 days for witness intimidation. Cronk was sentenced to 40-60 months on both the arson and malicious destruction charges; 32-48 months on each of the witness intimidation charges; and 60 days on the furnishing alcohol charge, but all of these sentences will run concurrently.

During the trial, three cyc-witnesses testified to seeing Cronk set fire to a 2011 Ford Ranger in the parking lot of the Auto Value Parts store on North East Street in Boyne City on June 26, 2013, resulting in a blaze that left another vehicle burned.

After the fire occurred, he threatened to harm three teenagers who were with him at the time if they told police, according to testimony.

Because he was on parole at the time of these offenses, Cronk will not receive credit against these sentences until he has finished serving time on his resulting parole violations.

According to Michigan Department of Corrections records, authorities released Cronk from prison and at the time of the crime, he served on parole on plea-based convictions from 2008 of two counts of attempted conducting criminal enterprises.

Charlevoix man convicted of multiple crimes Tuesday

NORTHERN MICHIGAN REVIEW

A Charlevoix County Circuit Court jury after a two-day trial on Tuesday convicted a Charlevoix man of multiple charges, including first-degree criminal sexual conduct, assault with a dangerous weapon and domestic violence.

Charlevoix County Prosecutor Allen Telgenhof said the convictions against Matthew John Scotton, 54, stem from an attack that occurred on Aug. 28, 2013, in Charlevoix.

Scotton stands not only on a second charge of first-degree criminal sexual conduct.

First degree criminal sexual conduct is a felony carrying a maximum penalty of up to life in prison. Assault with a dangerous weapon is a felony with a maximum sentence of 10 years in prison. Domestic violence is a misdemeanor carrying a maximum of 93 days in jail.

Charlevoix County Special Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Kayla Nixon prosecuted the case with assistance from Katrina Martin of the Charlevoix County Prosecuting Attorney's Office. Lawyer Christopher Torkelson defended Scotton.

"Officers were doing a well-being check on the victim who initially told them that everything was OK," Telgenhof said. "But the officers, particularly (Charlevoix City Police) Chief Gerard Doan, knew that something didn't seem right and went back to the residence to investigate further. The victim then was separated from the assailant and told police what had happened."

Telgenhof said it proved to be excellent police work by the Charlevoix Police Department that led to the arrest and

Doctors' Discovery Helps Diabetics

PHILADELPHIA — A team of doctors has found that a new formulation of exotic sounding herbs and spices gives new hope to diabetic patients.

The formula, called Cinnatrol™ promotes healthy blood sugar levels by effectively metabolizing glucose into energy. In a research study, all patients taking just one capsule of the liquid (one ounce) daily, dramatically lowered their blood sugar levels compared to a placebo group. Another scientific study found that an ingredient in Cinnatrol made insulin 20 times more capable converting blood sugar to energy.

While individual results vary, one patient in the first study lowered his blood sugar from 220-245 to the 100-130 range in only 28 days, despite being instructed not to change his dietary habits or physical activity. Some patients, under their doctors care, are able to reduce or eliminate their need for diabetic drugs. Scientists say that Cinnatrol helps diabetic drugs to work better. Webb gets a year in jail

NORTHERN MICHIGAN REVIEW

CHARLEVOIX — A Charlevoix woman who recently pleaded guilty to embezzling more than $140,000 from her former employer was sentenced to serve up to a year in jail Friday.

Charlevoix County Circuit Court Judge Richard M. Pajtas handed down the sentence to Heather Marie Webb, 33, and also ordered her to pay $141,587 in restitution to her former employer.

The judge held two months of the 12-month jail sentence in abeyance, and allowed her to have work release from jail after the first 30 days of her sentence has been served.

In a plea deal with the Charlevoix County Prosecutor's Office late last month, Webb pleaded guilty to stealing between $50,000 to $100,000 from her job. The felony — with a maximum penalty of up to 15 years in prison — was a reduction from the original charge of embezzling more than $100,000. The original charge carries a maximum 20-year prison sentence.

According to court documents, the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office began investigating Webb, after her employer NoCore North Inc., suspected she had been embezzling before she voluntarily resigned last fall.

Sheriff's office detective Mike Wheat, according to court records, uncovered unauthorized checks dating back seven years and totaling more than $141,000.

At the time of her plea on Jan. 31, Webb admitted stealing from her employer over a 6 1/2 year period.

OPINIONS yours & ours

Is it time to take a vacay?

We all need a vacation now and then. Think of vacations as memory keepers and brain cell rejuvenators. The Pope has one, the president of the United States takes one and you are entitled to one, as well. It's good to rest on your laurels once in a while. Mom used the term laurel a lot and I thought it meant a particular part of my body. To my surprise, I found out it meant a type of shrub or plant. It's important to rest now and then, maybe just not on any greenery.

When you are focused on a large project or if you feel a bit overwhelmed with multiple decisions, it's time to take a coffee, tea or cocoa break. When you feel exhausted or maybe you're having difficulty focusing on what needs to be done at work or home, then you are in need of a vacation, or as this generation calls it: it's time to take a vacay.

There are real health benefits in doing so. The most productive workers are those who take vacations. They come back refreshed and rejuvenated and ready to focus again. We can actually tire our brains and body out. The best stories shared usually involve mishaps or adventures that took place while on vacation. We remember those times much more so; rarely do we hear someone say, "I had such a great day at work let me tell you about it." If you are fortunate enough to have a job that makes you feel appreciated, then vacation time may be needed less often, but if you are feeling pressure, it's time to take a break before mistakes are made and your co-workers avoid you.

Here are some signs you may just need a vacation:

No. 1. You want to call in sick for the day.

No. 2. You've stopped smiling.

No. 3. You've stopped talking with your co-workers.

No. 4. You feel your children are annoying at best and the pets are much more fun with which to be.

No. 5. You and your significant other hump heads more often or seem to be leading parallel lives.

Physical complaints and quality of sleep and mood improve with vacation time. According to the Arizona Department of Health, their survey supports that vacations strengthen relationships. Their study found that women who took vacations were more satisfied with their marriage. Hmmm... is that a vacation with or without their husband? They didn't say...

Money today can be very tight, so if it means camping out in the living room, not doing laundry and playing board games, let that be your little vacation. If you were one of the many without power this winter that may not sound appealing. Maybe you could stay off the phone and Internet for the day and read a good book. Another option could be staying home in your pa-jasmas all day and watch old movies. Remember this is for a day, don't get too comfy; it's a time to rejuvenate. I like the idea of getting away for a three day weekend at a hotel with a pool, a hot tub and then ordering room service.

Time away from the daily grind and replacing it with a different type of grind, like coffee with friends, is a better type of grind. Stress adds to lack of sleep, not eating healthy and becoming sick. Though vacations can be stressful with potentially lost tickets, getting lost, losing the kids; it's a different type of stress than what you daily feel at work and home.

Life itself is a voyage to treasure and to appreciate. We all need to unplug, take quiet moments, reflect, explore and enjoy our surroundings and the people with whom we share it. Whether it's for a day or a week, we all deserve time to renew and re-energize. Your mind and body will be telling you when you need one, so listen to your body when it's talking to you and understand you aren't hearing voices — it's just your body talking.

LETTERS to the editor

Stop Bells Bay Road land grab

Editor:
St. Marys Cement has worked for two years lobbying the road commission and governmental bodies with no input from the public, hoping to influence the state to give them possession of the northern portion of Fisherman's Island State Park.

Dirk Cox of St. Marys tells us that St. Marys does not need more limestone, they have more land, land zoned for mining and other options. Local jobs are secure.

Being able to close and mine Bells Bay Road and the 190 acres of state land on either side of it, would allow St. Marys to consolidate their two pits into one gargantuan pit, running from the city limits, several miles south into Norwood Township. It is good business to cut off public use of the northern end of Fisherman's Island State Park and to take state park land.

What would the public lose?

No. 1: Bells Bay Road to Lake Michigan, the last bridge, through St. Marys enormous quarries, to our state park

No. 2: Access to the overlook of Lake Michigan or to the free parking at the end of Bells Bay Road

No. 3: The most popular year round trail access

No. 4: Exactly 190 acres of rich, beautiful Fisherman's Island State Park forest for mushrooming, dog walking, cross country skiing, nature hikes and more

No. 5: Access to Fisherman's Island State Park from the new Lake-to-Lake Charlevoix multi-use trail — a $285,000 grant will complete the trail to Bells Bay Road this summer — and years of collective work of local governments, Charlevoix County Community Foundation, the Grand Traverse Band, St. Marys Cement, WATCH and citizens

No. 6: About six of our favorite campsites

No. 7: The woodland buffer that protects the camps from mining noise

No. 8: Access to the magnificent shale outcroppings and fossils into Lake

Michigan
No. 9: Convenient, close access to the park — the current access at Bells Bay Road is close enough to grab a sandwich in town, eat it and get back to work

No. 10: We would lose OUR favorite place

And what would we gain?

No. 1: A 35 acre, 3,000 foot section of McGeach Creek, an area that has been mined to the maximum

No. 2: A 185 acre, mostly scrub shrub parcel

No. 3: A new entrance, parking lot and campground, five miles south that we never asked for nor wanted

We cannot sell, swap or give away our Fisherman's Island State Park. St. Marys is ill-advised in asking to mine out Bells Bay Road and the surrounding 190 acres of forest. We hope St. Marys will withdraw its request. Go online to Save Fisherman's Island State Park organization's Facebook page.

Sentimental perspective on Fisherman's Island

Editor:
This letter serves to express my family's strong opposition to the proposed "land swap" between St. Marys Cement plant and any portion of Fisherman's Island State Park. Bells Bay Road provides not merely a convenient entrance, but leads directly to a long-cherished spot for hiking, picnics and sunset views — marred only since Charlevoix allowed a cement plant to be constructed directly along its vista in the first place.

I offer two photos (attached) from among the dozens taken annually during our multi-season visits to Bells Bay. How many other young boys and girls have climbed that wonderful old tree reaching out toward Lake Michigan from its perch at the mouth of Bells

Bay Road?

We count four generations now in my family alone. Note that this particular picture was taken in 1958, but we continue to visit that very spot — and even that same old tree — every summer.

Tourism is still a core industry for Charlevoix, yet I doubt that includes easy-access tours of the cement plant. There are many far more practical and solid environmental reasons for opposing the encroachment of the cement plant on this property, but I'm not ashamed to also add my sentimental perspective to the argument.

WATCH opposes island land exchange

Editor:
WATCH (Water and Air Team Charlevoix) has been an advocate for the environment of Charlevoix County since 1983. We were founded to address air quality problems with the cement plant and have remained in that role through four ownerships of the plant. We now have an excellent relationship with the current owner, St. Marys Cement, and we want it to remain that way.

So it was with much concern that we learned of the proposal by St. Marys Cement to swap land near the south end of Fisherman's Island State Park for state park property at the entrance to the park.

The land near the entrance to the park is heavily wooded, has high quality wildlife habitat, varied terrain and hiking trails and is heavily used for many nature-related purposes. The land that would be exchanged is mostly open and flat and has only scrub brush. The habitat is not comparable.

If the swap occurs, land that is now a part of the state park would be clear cut and mined, and a huge berm would be placed between the mine and the campground. Then 190 acres of the highest quality part of the park would become part of an expanding quarry. The wooded area of the park would be much smaller, and the buffer from mining activities much less.

The section of Bells Bay Road that extends to the park would be lost. The entrance to the park would be on Clipper View Road, five miles south, and the current entrance would be closed. Road access to the beach at Bells Bay would be lost.

The proposed Lake to Lake trail, now scheduled for construction in the spring that we have all been working on for several years, will be an asset for citizens of both the city and township and for visitors as well. If the swap occurs, the trail would no longer go to Bells Bay and the current entrance to the park. The trail would be rerouted around the quarry and/or along the highway. It would be a far longer distance to Lake Michigan.

For these reasons, WATCH is opposed to the land swap between St. Marys Cement and the Michigan Department of Natural Resources. We ask that the Charlevoix City Council and the Charlevoix Township Board also vote to oppose the land swap. We feel strongly that Fisherman's Island State Park should remain the jewel that it currently is and that the Lake to Lake Trail proceed as planned and become a source of pride for both the City and the township.

The public hearing on the land swap is 7 p.m. Monday, March 10, at the Charlevoix Township Hall.

Before a channel was cut through the peninsula that separated Round Lake from Lake Charlevoix in 1869, logs for the small lumber mill located where the Edgewater Inn is today were taken a few at a time down what is now called Old River, below the Chicago Club. This stream, with its few shallow rapids, was the original outlet between the two lakes when Lake Charlevoix was two feet higher than Round Lake. But once the channel opened, logs could now be brought into town by the hundreds and the business of what became known as the Charlevoix Lumber Company took off. Belvedere Club residents remembered gathering on the club's upper channel shore to watch "... the loggers herding their logs, like a flock of sheep, on the downstream currents ... to the Charlevoix mill. (We) came to watch them with the fascination with which children watch a circus parade, never realizing the skill and prowess of these hardy men who fought their way through the narrow channel, balanced on a floating tree trunk, and all the while keeping the cut logs from straying shoreward with a long hooked pole as though prodding a wandering steer down the land into a corral."

The Charlevoix Historical Society's new, fully illustrated exhibit titled Journeying to Charlevoix will be at the Depot building, at Depot Beach, through Saturday, March 22. The event is offered in partnership with the Smithsonian Institution exhibit titled Journey Stories, which currently is at Charlevoix Public Library. Hours of the Depot exhibit are 10 a.m.-4 p.m. Saturdays, 4-7 p.m. Wednesdays, or by special appointment. Call (231) 547-0373 for more information.

Public review of proposed ordinance set

Issue spurred by lack of qualified planning commission candidates

SHERI MCWHIRTER-O'DONNELL
COURIER EDITOR

Charlevoix city leaders voted to set a public hearing for March 17 to take comments about a proposed ordinance that would allow outside interests a say in city planning matters.

City planner Mike Spencer spoke Monday during the City Council meeting about the challenges faced in finding suitable — and properly qualified — candidates to serve on the city's planning commission.

"Because many cities have similar challenges, the (Michigan) Planning En-

"I'm totally against non-taxpayers having a say in what goes on in the city."

— Shirley Gibson, councilwoman

abling Act allows an exemption for up to two members to be non-qualified electors for cities less than 5,000 people," he said.

Charlevoix's year-round population is around 3,000.

What that means is that, if approved, the ordinance would allow up to two of the Charlevoix Planning Commission's nine seats to be qualified candidates from among the five townships to which the city provides services, including Charlevoix, Eveline, Hayes, Marion and Norwood townships.

At least one council member thinks this is a bad idea from the get-go.

"I believe it's totally wrong to bring it up. I'm totally against non-taxpayers having a say in what goes on in the city," said Shirley Gibson, the council's most novice member. "If you have trouble filling the seats, you reduce the number of seats."

Gibson cast the sole vote against setting a public hearing on the matter because she said it's a "waste of time" in her mind.

The public hearing will begin at 7 p.m. Monday, March 17, at city hall, 210 State St. in downtown Charlevoix.

'Music is drama': Great Lakes Chamber Orchestra to perform March 16

Carlos Andres Botero, guest conductor for Great Lakes Chamber Orchestra, laughed when asked to explain the program theme for the upcoming 4 p.m. Sunday, March 16, concert at Charlevoix High School titled "Music and Drama."

"Actually, music is drama," Maestro Botero explained. "There is something about being human that can be touched on in music. Music changes the way people interact with one another. It helps them realize they are one. It draws people out of negative ideas and even despair, and pulls them into a positive place, creating something special and shared. The players, the composers, the audience, all three give into a unifying force, and in this way, all three recreate the piece together, as one."

Botero was born and raised in Medellin, Colombia, and began his musical career at the Instituto Musical Diego Echavarría, also in Medellin.

"I studied music because my mother was never able to, even though it was her dream. I did it because she couldn't. I got to live out her dream."

This dream led him to study, perform and conduct in Bogotá, Caracas, Merida, Madrid, Basel, Ypsilanti, Ann Arbor, East Lansing and Bloomington. He directs and coaches thousands of children and youth through Filharmonica Joven de Colombia, Fundación Nacional Batuta and Roundabout Opera for Kids.

"My students sound like I did when I was young. It amazes me that I'm the one giving guidance because I feel like I'm just a little kid having fun. Music is fun. If it wasn't, what would be the point? I have a responsibility to share this. I am happiest when my students tell me they want to study music because they see me having so much fun." Carlos went on to say he was simply making music and then giving it away.

In addition to his work with Filharmonica Joven de Colombia, Fundación Nacional Batuta and Roundabout Opera for Kids, Botero is earning his Doctoral in Orchestral Conducting at Michigan State University. He will guest conduct the Great Lakes Chamber Orchestra's "Music and Drama" concert at 4 p.m. March 16 at Charlevoix High School. Afterward, the audience is invited to meet the conductor, piano soloist Eduardo Rojas, and orchestra members for a reception with refreshments.

Tickets cost $20 and may be purchased online at www.glcorchestra.org and www.MyNorthTickets.com or at the GLCO office by calling (231) 487-0010. Tickets are also available at chambers of commerce in Boyne City, Charlevoix, East Jordan, Harbor Springs and Petoskey. Students/youths who are 18 years and younger, military personnel and people with disabilities registered with VSA Arts of Michigan are admitted free of charge.

The Great Lakes Chamber Orchestra produces live orchestral performances that provide entertainment, education and inspiration for Northern Michigan. Support for the orchestra is provided by the Michigan Council for Arts and Cultural Affairs, the National Endowment for the Arts, the Petoskey-Harbor Springs Area Community Foundation, the Bay Harbor Foundation, the Charlevoix County Community Foundation and hundreds of individual patrons of the arts. to the editor

Thank you for all the community support

Editor:

On behalf of SAFE Youth in Northern Michigan I would like to express our sincere thanks to our local communities in Emmet and Charlevoix Counties. The group recently completed five "Brown Out" events in the two counties.

The five events were held at local high schools during home basketball games. SAFE Youth designed "Brown Out" anti-tobacco T-shirts, arranged sponsors to cover the costs and made arrangements to distribute the shirts — at no charge — to students attending school basketball games.

A special thank you to the following sponsors who paid for the T-shirts and helped to make this project a success: Bayside Family/Sports Medicine, Dr. Paul Reed, Petoskey Child Health Associates, Prime Transport, Kilwin's, The Outfitter, Pinecraft Wood Floors, Lynda's Real Estate Service, Van Dam Custom Boats, Child Abuse Council, Charlevoix Screen Masters and SAFE in NM.

This month marks the 50th anniversary of the first U.S. Surgeon General's Report on Tobacco and Health. There has been remarkable progress in the fight against tobacco and as a result many lives have been saved. It is critical to reach young people early and to deliver ongoing prevention messages via sports and other youth-oriented channels. SAFE Youth will continue to encourage their peers to take a stand against all forms of tobacco use and claim their right to healthy living.

Warning: Millions removed from community mental health

Editor:

Governor Snyder's upbeat message on the 2015 budget left out an important fact: that in a time of state revenue surplus about $180 million in state general funds is being removed from community mental health programs in Michigan. The reason for this is simple: Optimism about coverage under Healthy Michigan (Medicaid expansion) has led the administration to assume that mental health clients currently being served with GF dollars will be eligible for expanded Medicaid. But it is not at all clear this is true, and without thoughtful implementation of this new benefit, many Michigan residents could be left without coverage.

The problem: Enrollment in the Healthy Michigan program will take months to "ramp up" to the estimated 400,000 persons projected as eligible, and it's starting late — April 1 not Jan. 1. Money must be available to support services provided to these people until their Medicaid is effective. Second, some uninsured and needy people still will not qualify for Medicaid, even with revised eligibility criteria. Changes made to the federal program by the State may make the program less attractive or simply impossible to qualify for. Third, the estimates of resources still needed by community mental health programs after the implementation of Healthy Michigan were too low. Between emergency services, state and community psychiatric hospitalization for the uninsured, support for persons with Medicare and those in spend down, the obligations are many and they are expensive. These will not go away even if every eligible person applies for Healthy Michigan and is successful in his application.

Public mental health agencies were enthusiastic supporters of Healthy Michigan and lobbied hard for its passage. It is a necessary and important program for poor people in Michigan. But it is not right to claim state savings by reducing support for community mental health programs, especially until it is clear what enrollment will be. At North Country Community Mental Health, one out of every two people who applies for services does not have Medicaid. Some are served, but many are turned away, and that is with today's resources. Many more would remain unserved with the proposed 65 percent reduction in state funding, and that would indeed be a tragedy.

North Country Community Mental Health provides services to residents of Antrim, Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Emmet, Kalkaska and Otsego counties experiencing a severe emotional problem, serious mental illness or developmental disability. People wishing to know more about the agency are encouraged to visit www.norcoemh.org online or to access services call 800-834-3393.

Library can help with filing taxes

Filing tax forms just got easier with the assistance offered at local libraries. The Charlevoix and Boyne City libraries, through a partnership with the Northwest Community Action Agency, offer a free, online tax filing site available through the libraries' websites www.charlevoixlibrary.org or www.boynelibrary.org online. This service is available to those filers with household adjusted gross income less than $58,000.

Basic state and federal tax forms also are available at local libraries, including Charlevoix, Jordan Valley, Boyne City, Petoskey and the Walloon Lake and Boyne Falls libraries. If the needed form is not available, a librarian will be able to help find the form online via the federal Internal Revenue Service and State of Michigan websites. Staff is available to assist patrons locate and print their forms only.

For those who would like more assistance, a certified tax preparation volunteer will be available to answer questions by phoning (800) 632-7334. And for that more personal one-on-one assistance, the Boyne District Library hosts a volunteer who will assist people with completing their forms each Wednesday. Call to make an appointment at (231) 582-7861. For more information about this or other library services, contact a local library at: Charlevoix, (231) 237-7340; Boyne City, (231) 582-7861; Petoskey, (231) 758-3100; Jordan Valley, (231) 536-7131; Walloon Lake, (231) 535-2111; or, Boyne Falls, (231) 549-2277.

Charlevoix grads lead new university sailing team

Grand Valley State University's sailing team traveled to the Midwest Collegiate Sailing Association (MCSA) conference at Chicago's Navy Pier. This is a fun, team-building weekend for collegiate sailors who get to reunite in the off-season with their friends and competitors. For GVSU, it served as the start of a new team and possibly a legacy.

Grand Valley State University club sailing team became an official club sport in October 2013. Abbey Barnes, a 2011 Charlevoix graduate, had the idea to start a team in the fall semester of her freshman year and there finally are winds in the sails — literally. Addison Amstutz, a 2013 Charlevoix graduate, became the elected vice president, and significantly helped the team grow and succeed.

The team consists of 13 sailors who will travel around the Midwest in the spring and fall semesters to compete against other collegiate teams. Part of the MCSA conference involved the acceptance of GVSU into the association, which allows the school to officially compete. The program received unanimous approval. Later that evening at the MCSA banquet at the Chicago Yacht Club, Abbey Barnes received the Gail M. Turluck Student Leadership Award for her hard work and dedication toward the launch of the sailing team.

Barnes, Amstutz and the rest of the sailing team plan to compete in March at Notre Dame University, along with five more regattas the following fall semester.

Barnes is a member of the U.S. Sailing Association and currently is a certified sailing instructor with the Michigan State University Extension 4-H Mariners Program in Charlevoix and Boyne City.

Hospital nurse program nationally awarded

The Charlevoix Area Hospital School Nurse Program is among five programs from across the country named a Program of Promise by the Hospital Charitable Services Awards, a national program sponsored by Jackson Healthcare.

The program places registered nurses in nine local schools. Through the dedicated hard work of the school nurses, students have the opportunity to learn about healthy lifestyle habits that will last a lifetime, officials said.

Award officials commended the five programs as early-stage hospital-sponsored programs with a clear vision to address underserved community health needs. At a banquet at the National Hospital Charitable Services Conference, each Program of Promise received a monetary investment toward its growth.

"These initiatives are not alone in giving back to their communities," said Charles R. Evans, chairman of the Hospital Charitable Services Awards program. "What makes each Program of Promise unique is their potential to impact their community in life-changing, sustainable ways."

Kathy Jacobsen, director of community health education thinks it's her staff that deserves all the credit.

"This award reflects the hard work that our school nurses demonstrate every day in their school settings. I am fortunate to support such innovative and dedicated nurses who make a lasting difference every day," she said.

Jackson Healthcare instituted the Hospital Charitable Services Awards in 2010 to honor exemplary hospital-sponsored community programs, share their stories and make them models for other programs. Jackson Healthcare also uses the awards to cultivate a community of charitable hospital programs that want to encourage and learn from one another, and establish best practices.

Each nominee demonstrated excellence in at least one of five areas: community impact, innovation, collaboration, transferability and/or best practice.

Placemaking workshops offered in Charlevoix

The MPlace Partnership Initiative is offering elected officials, appointed officials, city staff and adjoining township officials the opportunity to take part in Placemaking Strategy Development Training. The city of Charlevoix was chosen by the initiative because of its status as a significant center of commerce and culture in the region, as one of 15 communities in the state to host these sessions. The overall purpose of the sessions is to train and assist in the development of a placemaking strategy.

The program will be offered 6-9:30 p.m. Tuesday, March 11, and the same times again on Tuesday, April 8, on the second floor at Charlevoix City Hall, 210 State St.

Placemaking is the concept of a municipality focusing on offering a high quality of life and amenities as a strategy for attracting investment. Examples of features that are considered in placemak-ing strategies could be things like: downtown environments, parks, main streets, neighborhoods and shopping opportunities. Many companies place a large amount of value on these features as they are important considerations for the talented workforce that they hope to attract. The community has an extensive amount of resources that could be used in a placemaking effort and learning how to fully utilize them would be extremely beneficial to the economic development of the area.

The training sessions will involve meetings at City Hall in March and April and cover six modules that have been developed as the MPlace Placemaking Curriculum. Following those courses, the goal is that a placemaking strategy for the community will be developed that utilizes the information provided in the sessions.

Charlevoix joins Michigan Main Streets

City council members agree to join program

SHERI MCWHIRTER-O'DONNELL
COURIER EDITOR

Charlevoix city leaders on Monday unanimously agreed to join the state's Main Street program at the associate level, a move expected to bring various benefits and, if successful, a leg up to grow economic vitality along the city's main strip.

Bethany Pearson, the city's community economic development director, spoke during the City Council meeting about the program operated by the Michigan State Housing Development Authority, an effort intended to help communities create and grow thriving and historic town centers.

"On Jan. 13 the Charlevoix (Downtown Development Authority) received a letter of acceptance into the associate level of the Michigan Main Street Program," she told city council members.

City officials must attend required state training sessions and submit biannual reports to the state. There are requirements that must be achieved before an advancement to the next "select level."

"We are excited to be a part of this progressive, statewide initiative, but even more excited to watch our community organizations, government and citizens come together to make a difference in the downtown," Pearson said.

The program involves the organization of a fleet of volunteers to create goals and then strive for them, but does not include any state funding.

"At first we (city staff) were a bit apprehensive knowing the amount of volunteers we would need to make this program successful, but the amount of support that we've received from the community since the announcement has been overwhelming. I think people are ready to embrace change and the next stage of Charlevoix's future, fortunately the Main Street program is just the tool that can help us do that," Pearson said.

Committees are expected to begin forming in the fall. Anyone interested in participating with the program is encouraged to fill out an application found at the city's website at www.cityofcharlevoix.org online.

Michigan Main Street Program will grant free access to consultants and project managers, along with tools to write grants and allow for grant applications to look more favorable.

Another Charlevoix County community recently celebrated its 10th anniversary with the state program — Boyne City.

In the last decade, officials there used tools, training and guidance from the economic development program to create business growth and economic synergy. That's reflected in the recent U.S. Census, in which federal statistics showed Boyne City the only Northern Michigan city to grow in population except Traverse City.

Various Main Street program successes in Boyne City include:

— Support downtown infrastructure projects with new streets, sidewalks and lighting — Create events including Stroll the Streets, the SOBO Arts Festival, Christmas parade, Boyne Thunder and holiday open house

— Utilize the state's design services and assisted more than a dozen property owners improve their facades — Partner with the Boyne City farmers market to help improve and expand the market

— Decorate downtown with holiday decorations and provide streetscape furnishings that include benches, trash receptacles, banners, flowers and a maintenance program

— Develop a summer maintenance enhancement program and hire a seasonal employee to spend a few hours each day making downtown look its best

— Partner with Team Boyne, a group of community, city and nonprofit volunteers, working with existing businesses and helping the community realize opportunities and grow businesses

For more information about Charlevoix's new role as a Michigan Main Street community, contact the Charlevoix DDA via website www.downtowncharlevoix.com online, or by calling (231) 547-3257.

Reinhardt celebrates 30 years at IMI

Industrial Magnetics Inc. recently announced employee Tracy Reinhardt now completed 30 years of service for the company.

Reinhardt graduated from Boyne City High School and moved to Oklahoma to work in the oil fields, then on to Florida and eventually back home to Northern Michigan. His years of manufacturing experience at IMI led to his role as manufacturing scheduler of the growing company.

Reinhardt's wife of 31 years, Kerri, is office manager at Poinau Woodworker. Together they have two daughters, Kaelynn and Meghan, and four grandchildren.

When not at work, Reinhardt raises game birds and visits the Upper Peninsula for a dose of the great outdoors.

Officials at Boyne City-based Industrial Magnetics Inc. publicly thank Reinhardt for his three decades of service.

Market, industrial park studies on tap

DeVos donation will pay for economic development efforts

SHERI MCWHIRTER-O'DONNELL
COURIER EDITOR

Charlevoix city leaders unanimously agreed Monday night to accept an offered donation from the president of Amway to pay for a pair of economic development studies officials hope will help guide them toward future growth and sustainability.

"This is kind of a unique proposal," said Mike Spencer, city planner.

Doug DeVos, Amway Corporation president, offered to donate the funds for economic development purposes and city officials suggest two studies be conducted. The first is a market study for Charlevoix to guide future goals and decisions about the types and sizes of businesses the city could economically support both currently and into the future. The second is a market study for Charlevoix's Anece Industrial Park, intended to guide growth of existing businesses and attract new ones.

Spencer told City Council members how DeVos offered this financial donation for these studies with "no expectation in return," meaning the city can choose its own studies and its own consultants. The idea is to issue a request for proposals from potential consultants for the top two studies on the city's to-do list.

Then the city would tell DeVos the grand total for the two studies, and the city would have "the money in hand before any funds were paid," Spencer said.

Spencer said that stipulation is to ensure the city isn't on the hook for paying the study consultants if something happens to negatively impact the donation to the city. In fact, the donation amount will be determined by the city's chosen consultant proposals.

Also on the city's list of prioritized studies are event center feasibility, public wireless Internet feasibility, Ferry Beach engineering, downtown redevelopment/walkability/streetscape, and downtown housing.

Councilman Jeff Porter said after reviewing the list that he wants to see the downtown housing study moved up the list of priorities, and the event center feasibility study stricken from the list to be left to private business enterprises.

Meanwhile, all council members agreed the Charlevoix market and industrial park studies topped the list of must-dos for the city.

WATCH (Water and Air Team Charlevoix) spoke about the potential impacts of an expanded marina, as well as whether this venture would simply serve business interests at the cost of residents' preferences.

"We know the businesses certainly support it, but we ask if the taxpayers do," she said, adding Round Lake is Charlevoix's greatest natural resource and she doesn't "want to see it spoiled."

Jodi Bingham, a member of the Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority, spoke about her unfettered support for the marina expansion plan.

"We have beautiful homes and beautiful boats in our harbor and that's what people come here to see," she said, adding how bigger boats in the harbor means bigger bucks in local businesses' bank accounts.

"We need to find a way to accommodate these boats," Bingham said.

But not every business interest in town is gung ho about an expanded marina.

"I don't know why we want to keep going out into the lake," said Bernie Ward III, of Ward Bros. Boats.

Ward said he understands how the city seeks more latitude to gain revenues — rental rates on new slips wouldn't be shared with the state like existing slips — and also the desire for economic growth borne out of an increased boating population in town that would come from an up-sized marina.

"But I think it's going to be too intrusive," Ward said.

Even former councilman Greg Stevens joined the debate.

"If there was such a controvery about the fireplace blocking the view, why would you take away the lake you said you wanted to see," he asked.

After listening to public comments, council members talked about their thoughts. Including mayor Nurman Carlson Jr.

"Is it the right answer to extend that far out? Maybe not. We had to pick a point," Carlson said, adding this marina proposal is an attempt to promote the city's tourism interests to grow the economy.

"We are very much a tourist town ... and we have to take advantage of that, maybe not to this extent ... but we have to look into it," Carlson said.

Councilwoman Peggy Brennan said she wants to see more marina expansion options to consider, and also wanted the decision to wait until Charlevoix's summer residents return after Memorial Day.

Councilman Leon Perron said downtown business vacancies are impacted by larger economic forces than just the marina and he supports efforts to remedy that. However, he said, "I don't think it's going to be the goose that laid the golden egg."

Councilman Jeff Porter questioned why the marina plan doesn't address cruise ship docking, nor improvements to Charlevoix's shopper's dock. "We need to talk about these other issues, not just big yachts," he said.

The council is expected to revisit the issue in May.

sat in the audience and periodically appeared on screen.

"I spend nearly every summer with them in Northern Michigan and I'm definitely happy to have them here," Woolf said.

After his performance, Woolf received both compliments and criticism from the celebrity judges.

Harry Connick Jr. said he wants to see Woolf in the future push himself beyond his ability to sing thoughtful, folk tunes.

"I thought it was a pleasant performance, but the thing that keeps coming to mind with me about you is, sort of, emotional dynamics. There has to be change, not only musical dynamics ... but emotional dynamics — the growth, the change, the push," Connick Jr. said, adding Woolf should try something new.

Judge Keith Urban said he is confident America will cast enough votes for Woolf that he'll return to the competition show next week. He also encouraged Woolf to keep faith, even if the judges want to see him stretch himself further.

"The tone of your voice is like hutter — it's so good, man. It's beautiful, beautiful," Urban said. "I mean, all I can say is if you made an album tomorrow of original songs, I would go and buy that record."

Judge Jennifer Lopez also tried to prod Woolf to stretch himself for future performances.

"You have to push outside your comfort zone, because you do have a beautiful voice and you can do it," Lopez said.

Results from America's vote on the Wednesday night performances remained unknown at the Courier's press time on Thursday. The FOX network scheduled to broadcast the voting outcome at 8 p.m. Thursday, March 6.

Sam's uncle, Tod Woolf, said the entire family is proud of Sam and hope for his continued success.

"The family is very excited that Sam has made it this far, and are hoping he makes it to the top 10, so he can go on the Idol tour," Tod Woolf said in a Wednesday night email.

"Sam seems to be holding up just fine. He is generally a laid back person. More than anything else he is having the time of his life, hanging out with and working with the other contestants, and the team at American Idol."

"Chief Doan, (deputy chief) Scott Hankins and officer Matt Umilis all worked on the investigation and testified at trial," he said. "They were key to obtaining this important conviction."

Charlevoix County Circuit Court Judge Richard M. Pajtas will sentence Scotton, now that his bond is revoked and he is remanded to jail. The sentencing hearing will be at 9 a.m. on March 28.

spect the hard work of our friends in law enforcement, and I appreciate that they need to secure accident scenes as part of their investigation. The last thing I wanted to do was disturb the scene or their work. My only objective was to report on this major accident, just like my fellow journalists had done earlier that morning. My heart goes out to the families of the men who perished in the crash."

Leist, a Charlevoix County News employee, previously had a preliminary examination on the charge set for Tuesday afternoon.

The charge stemmed from a video Leist and another man made on Jan. 6 amid the wreckage at the site of an airplane crash near Boyne City. The video later could be found posted to the website YouTube.

Leist is employed by a Gaylord-based weekly newspaper called the Charlevoix County News. The paper is not affiliated with the Petoskey News-Review, nor the Charlevoix Courier.

Authorities additionally charged Leist as an habitual felon in connection with a 2011 felony of manufacturing and/or distributing medical marijuana. Leist could have been sentenced to prison on the just dismissed felony, had he been convicted.

According to court documents, Charlevoix County deputies said Leist misled reserve deputies posted at the scene in order to gain access to the crash site. Court records also state the crash site still contained partial human remains when Leist and the other man arrived.

Leist previously told the News-Review he didn't see any bodies at the site.

Representatives from other media outlets, including the Petoskey News-Review, arrived at the crash site on snowmobiles escorted by police. However, at the site, they were not allowed within a certain distance of the wreckage. Leist appeared in the video immediately next to the wreckage.

Amended Michigan law in 1997 now includes photographing dead bodies in a grave as a crime and defines "grave" to include crash sites and disaster areas.

Charlevoix's Novotny, Hovie compete at finals

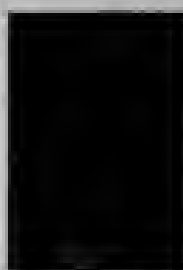

STEVE FOLEY
NORTHERN MICHIGAN REVIEW

AUBURN HILLS — Charlevoix senior Jake Novotny and junior Sam Hovie each closed out their respective individual wrestling seasons at the Michigan High School Athletic Association individual finals Saturday at the Palace of Auburn Hills.

Both Novotny and Hovie made their individual wrestling debuts, as Novotny was competing in the Division IV 152-pound division and Hovie at 160.

Novotny, who closes his senior season with a 47-9 record, lost his opening round match to eventual state champion Kyle Johnson of Hudson, 13-1. Johnson won the 152-pound state title as he defeated Rashard, 5-4, in the finals.

Johnson took a 6-0 lead on Novotny after the opening period then pushed the lead to 8-1 in the second period. In the third period, Johnson added a three-point nearfall and reversal for the win.

In the consolation bracket, Novotny fell to Jukoada Sexton of Bronson, 3-2, as Sexton earned an escape in the closing seconds of the third period for the win.

"Jake really showed he deserved to be there even though the score in the first match may not show it," Charlevoix coach Mike Hinkle said. "He had a great season and it's sad to see him go."

"He (Novotny) had a really tough seeding after the districts," Hinkle said. "He ended up drawing the state champion his first round."

Also for Charlevoix, Hovie finished with a 1-2 record.

Hovie fell to Billy Abbott of Vassar, in his first match. 8-2, as Abbott led 2-1 after the first period on a takedown then added four points in the third to seal it.

In the consolation round, Hovie defeated Josiah Rabine of New Haven, 19-3, as Hovie took a 5-0 lead in the first period and led 10-1 after the second. In the third period, Hovie added nine more points on a pair of takedowns, a three-point nearfall and an escape.

In his second consolation round match, Hovie fell to Brian Sumber of Hudson, 3-2, as Sumber earned a late point in the third period via a penalty for the win.

"Like Jake, Sam showed he deserved to be there," Hinkle said. "This was the first year both Jake and Sam went and it can be an overwhelming experience, but Sam will be back and he'll be more than ready for next year."

"He's been to the Palace now and he knows what it's all about," Hinkle said. "Both Sam and Jake had great seasons and they both did a great job."

Charlevoix senior Zach Hankins slams home a dunk late in the fourth quarter during the Rayders' Class C district final game with Mancelona on Monday in Mancelona. Hankins, a 6-foot-10 Ferris State basketball signee, returned from a foot injury that had previously cost him the regular season, leading the Rayders with 21 points in a 60-49 win.

Rayders scrap Ironmen in district win

NORTHERN MICHIGAN REVIEW

MANCELONA — Last week on Thursday, Rayder senior Zach Hankins gave Charlevoix head coach Bret Erskine a shock when he walked out of the locker room without the protective boot on his foot that had kept him sidelined throughout the 2013-14 season.

On Monday in the Mancelona High School gym, Hankins, a 6-foot-10 Ferris State basketball signee, gave the Mancelona boys' basketball team and a packed gym a shock as he led the Rayders to a Class C district win over the Ironmen, 60-49.

Cleared to play less than a week before, Hankins scored 21 points and was a force for the Rayders on the boards, as Charlevoix moved on to a district semifinal matchup with East Jordan on Wednesday this week in Mancelona.

"When you have a 6-foot-10 guy, it's always nice," Erskine said. "I'm really glad he gets to finally play basketball for him. For the team it's great too, but personally I think it's great for him. He really helped us tonight."

As for Hankins, getting an opportunity to be back early and help his team potentially earn a district championship was a great feeling.

"It was awesome," he said. "It's an amazing feeling because I was told I was out for the season. To get a chance to come back in the tournament is really cool."

Playing the Ironmen on their home court wouldn't be easy for the Rayders early, however, as an 11-11 tie to end the first quarter later turned into a 25-25 game at halftime, with Mancelona much in control.

The difference for the Rayders came from their defensive effort in the second half.

"We had to press a little bit, hadn't been used to

The host with the most.

With a 14-6 Elk Rapids team and 15-5 Johannesburg-Lewiston team part of the Charlevoix hosted Class C girls' district bracket, it was easy to overlook the host Charlevoix High School girls' basketball team.

As of last Friday night, however, nobody in a packed Charlevoix High School gym could overlook the Rayders anymore as they stormed the court in a 66-61 district final upset over Elk Rapids.

"It feels great, it's been a long road and for all the hard work from the girls and coaching staff, I just feel like it's another step with where we want to be," Charlevoix coach Liz Shaw said as her team celebrated its first district title since 2006. "Another step in our division and our program. I'm just real proud of the girls and the effort they put forth."

With the win, Charlevoix will now move on to a Class C regional semifinal appearance against McBain at Sanford Meridian High School at 6 p.m. Tuesday, March 4.

The district champion Rayders had previously fallen to the Elks twice already this season, but found a rhythm in their play down the stretch of the season, winning six of their last eight games including a district semifinal matchup with East Jordan and their win over Elk Rapids.

Charlevoix junior Olivia Storm (center) holds up the Michigan High School Athletic Association Class C district trophy after the Rayders 66-61 win over Elk Rapids in their Class C district final game on Friday in Charlevoix.

"I thought we were real focused on East Jordan," Shaw said. "Then they came ready to play tonight. We talked about before the game about David and Goliath. The one thing that they did was have the spirit and focus that it takes to be champions. I'm real proud of that. Just couldn't be happier."

The Rayders proved their focus and determination early on Friday, jumping out to a 13-2 first quarter lead. Charlevoix would eventually take the opening quarter, 19-11.

An 8-0 run from the Elks to begin the second wouldn't send the Rayders into a panic, as their shots continued to fall once again, hitting a 6-0 run themselves.

A 28-27 lead for Charlevoix would take the game to halftime.

McBain rolls past Charlevoix, 89-52, in semifinals

SANFORD — A tough ending, but a step in the right direction.

Less than a week ago, the Charlevoix girls' basketball team earned a Class C district title with a home upset over Elk Rapids, their first district championship since 2006.

On Tuesday, in their regional semifinal matchup with McBain, the Rayders couldn't pull out the same feat, falling to the Ramblers 89-52 in the Sanford Meridian High School gym.

With the win, McBain, 20-2, advanced to a Class C regional final against Beaverton, 16-6, on Thursday, March 6, at Sanford-Meridian.

Beaverton advanced to the regional final with a 68-56 win over Lincoln-Alcona in Tuesday's other regional semifinal.

The season as a whole for Charlevoix came as a step in the right direction toward building a program.

"We're climbing the ladder and just have to keep on climbing," Charlevoix coach Liz Shaw said. "We took a step forward. We're just going to keep on improving."

The Rayders, who finish the season 13-10 overall, had their shots working once again as scoring 52 points in most regular season games would have been enough.

"Scoring 52 points for us, that's usually a winning game in our league," added Shaw. "We shot the ball well, defensively we needed to do a better job."

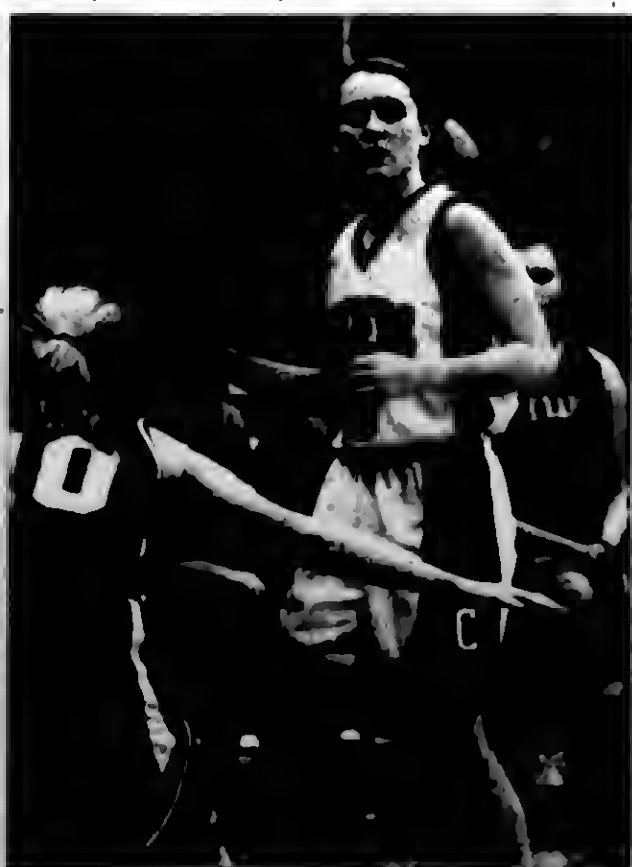

The lack of defense and strong offensive output from the Ramblers showed early, as McBain grabbed a 27-8 lead at the end of the first quarter.

In the second quarter, the Rayders would find a scoring streak of their own, as the game headed to half, 49-27, in favor of the Ramblers.

"We got our offense going and got some good looks," said Shaw. "That was big for us."

By the end of the third quarter, however, the damage to the Rayders had been done, with the Ramblers, 20-2, pulling away in a 65-37 game, thanks much in part to All-State junior guard Meredith Hamlet, who totaled 25 points on the night.

Madeline Boss scored 20 points and added nine rebounds for Charlevoix, while Kourtney Putman had six points and six rebounds.

Olivia Storm and Gabby Gray each added six points, while Gray also had four assists. Alexis Tribfelner had five points.

Gray leaves the Rayders as the lone senior member, giving Shaw an immense group of underclassmen back for next season. Replacing her point guard won't come easy, however.

"She was the quarterhack of this team and it'll be big shoes to fill," said Shaw. "She'll be missed, that's for sure."

While it's never easy to exit a season, Shaw knows her girls will have memories of the 2013-14 season that will last forever.

"I'm real proud of the girls and the effort they put forth," she said. "They improved throughout the year and I think we got overlooked a little bit and they proved themselves. Winning the district are memories that they'll have forever and it's just the start."

ond half.

"We had to press a little bit, hadn't been used to pressing," Erskine said. "But we thought if we can get a few steals there in the third quarter, I think that made a big difference. I think we got an 8-0 run out of it at the beginning of the third."

That 8-0 run Erskine referred to was actually a 14-0 run for the Rayders after a 27-27 tie early in the third quarter.

Charlevoix, now 7-14 overall on the season, eventually closed the third with a 43-32 lead.

"That gave us a big boost right there," added Erskine. "We finally came out in the third and played really hard and were able to get the lead and sustain the lead for the rest of the game."

The Rayders would sustain the momentum and the lead throughout the fourth quarter, with Hankins adding a few capping dunks, mostly crowd pleasers in the final quarter.

"I just think the thing for us tonight was we had height," Erskine said. "We had Austin (Putman), Nick (Plude) and Zach in there. I thought that was a big key for us tonight was pressing the boards hard and getting a lot of rebounds."

A concern for the Rayders heading into the game was also containing junior Mancelona guard Brandon Dingman.

"We said coming in that he usually scores around 35 (points). If we could hold him to 20, we'd be happy," said Erskine.

Charlevoix did just that, as Dingman finished the night with 20 points.

Also for the Rayders, Putman finished with 18 points and Nate Moon finished with 14 points.

With a heightened lineup thanks to Hankins' return, the Rayders could be a formidable matchup for teams to come in the district, team's they've already given scares to this season.

"We are a team to be reckoned with," said Hankins. "I thought even when I was out that this team could go further than we have before."

As for what he can add to the team, leadership may be the biggest attribute.

"Last year we didn't have much senior leadership when I was a junior so this year I really wanted to help out and be that senior leader," Hankins added. "Just give them the drive to do well and pump them up and keep them positive."

A few more dunks to pump up the Rayders fans maybe too.

"The fan base too, that helps a lot."

LADY RAYDERS

often went the Rayders way with a relentless effort on the boards against a much larger Elk Rapids team.

"We talked a little bit about hooting the ball and not so much of being complacent and they did that," added Shaw. "That takes focus and determination and is a tribute to every one of these girls. That's the kind of character that they have."

A back and forth battle throughout the second half, the Elks picked up their first lead early in the third quarter in a 29-28 game, but the Rayders would hold tight to take the quarter 47-42.

In the fourth, the Elks would again steal an early lead, but pressure on the defensive end from the Rayders would force Elk Rapids into multiple late costly turnovers, giving the Rayders an opportunity to pull away with the win.

For Charlevoix senior Gabby Gray, the lone senior on the Rayders team, figuring out a different approach to slow the Elks was the difference in the end.

"We were really prepared and knew what was coming," said Gray. "The game before we didn't put a lot of pressure on (Elk Rapids) guards because we wanted to shut them down inside, but this time we knew what to do."

Being the only senior on the Rayders team, Gray took on a new level of responsibility and leadership this season, all of which is paying off.

"It feels really good, I was really excited for tonight," she said. "I'm the only senior, so it's been a lot of responsibility on me, but senior year has been really great."

Madeline Boss led the Rayders with 18 points and 10 rebounds, while Gray finished with 12 points and nine assists.

Kourtney Putman added 11 points and seven rebounds for the Rayders, while Ellie Way and Olivia Storm each had eight points.

For Elk Rapids, Bridget Hintz led with 23 points, Rachel Hintz had 20 points and Paige Grainger scored 13 points.

While winning their first district title since 2006 has made it a season to remember for the Rayders, they're hoping it's a season that isn't over quite yet.

"We're just one step at a time and focus on next week and what we have set forth," Shaw added. "Have to get ready for the next hurdle."

Nearly 100 attend land swap hearing

SHERI MCWHIRTER-O'DONNELL

CHARLEVOIX — A time of cooperation this week concluded a public hearing that started with rather heated emotions about one of the region's most prized natural treasures — Fisherman's Island State Park.

St. Marys Cement on Monday proposed a community working committee to a packed house at Charlevoix Township Hall on Waller Road in Charlevoix. Company officials said they want to explore the idea of a land swap with the state park, but said the plan also could be abandoned if vetted and found to have no merit.

"This is a concept. We have not submitted a proposal to the state," said Dirk Cox, operational manager for the mining business. "I think the proposal has some merit, but it also has some holes in it."

Temper among those in the standing room only space — about 100 people, packed into the meeting room — initially flared at the idea of a land swap between the beloved local state park and the mining company.

"I want it to stay how it is," said Bradford Lewis, a Charlevoix Township resident. "This park shouldn't be messed with."

The general idea is the company would trade with the state more acreage on the southern end of its holdings for less acreage on the northern end of the park, including the Bells Bay Road entrance to the state park. It is expected a new park entrance would be required and public concerns about lost amenities and public access abound.

Cox confirmed that the move also would save the company hundreds of thousands of dollars each year in transportation costs. He also repeatedly said St. Marys hasn't yet submitted a land exchange application to the state.

The suggested working committee's tasks, as Cox laid out in his presentation, would be to identify the real issues surrounding this concept, challenge all assumptions about the situation, and conceive practical solutions, if possible.

Men walk on (frozen) water

Charlevoix trio take historic ice trek to Beaver Island

SHERI MCWHIRTER-O'DONNELL
COURIER EDITOR

Three Charlevoix men recently did what most of the time is impossible.

Brothers Andrew and Nicholas Whitley, along with friend Paul Beauvais, on Saturday walked across frozen Lake Michigan from Charlevoix to Beaver Island. They achieved this feat for only the third known time in contemporary history.

"My dad did it back in the '70s with my uncle and a friend," said Andrew Whitley. "It was so cold this winter it felt into our laps. So we decided to do it, too."

It's not like it's something that happens all the time, after all. But it's become a bit of a Whitley family tradition.

Don and Ivan Whitley did it the first time in what most remember as 1963. Then years later in the 1970s, Ed and John Whitley also did the miles-long frozen Lake Michigan hike with friend Dave Swanson.

"Uncle Ed called and gave us a little pep talk," Andrew Whitley said.

And by all accounts, the approximately two dozen-mile hike from solid ground to solid ground proved an exhausting experience. Winter mail delivery to the island used to involve a team of horses, not daylong foot hikes.

"I'm a little sore," Andrew Whitley said Monday.

"It's pretty tiring," Beauvais said Tuesday, as the sun and wind burn began to heal — and peel.

"It's just something to do," Beauvais said, chuckling. "A nice little jaunt."

Both Beaver Island airline companies' pilots kept watch on the trio throughout the day. It proved hard not to, said Angel Welke, owner of Island Airways.

"They were pretty easy to spot. You could see the tracks pretty well," she said. "I can't believe they did it. I was shocked."

The men's journey turned into the "talk of the island," Welke said, and that the airline's afternoon passengers wanted to see the sight themselves.

COURTESY PHOTO

Paul Beauvais (left), Nicholas Whitley and Andrew Whitley, all of Charlevoix, walked across the ice from the Charlevoix shoreline to Beaver Island, about two dozen miles out across frozen Lake Michigan.

"The passengers were really intrigued," she said.

Andrew Whitley said the men left around 7:30 a.m. from the Charlevoix shoreline near the intersection of Lake Shore Drive and Spring Street, and didn't touch land until 9 p.m. on the very southern end of Beaver Island. Island resident Jim McDonough waited for them on the shoreline — and made himself a friendly beacon in the winter night.

"He had his vehicle and his hazards on and a flashlight," Andrew Whitley said.

The Charlevoix men took flashlights, as well, along with food, a compass, a small first aid kit, signal flares and a long rope with which to tie up to each other in case one or more of them broke through the ice.

"And we all took extra clothing, just in case that happened," Andrew Whitley said. "And our phones. We all got calls about halfway across."

The ice depth remained unknown to the ice hikers. Beauvais confessed, because the surface proved very rough from this winter's wicked weather patterns.

Andrew Whitley said that at least at one point they changed course to avoid what looked like thin ice.

"When we got close to the island there was a pretty big crack and we could see some pretty thin ice," he said. "So we kind of navigated around that."

In the end, the men ended up at a favorite watering hole in St. James for celebratory beers.

Four clerk applicants become candidates

Finalists to be publicly announced after first interviews

The newly established committee to review Charlevoix city clerk candidates met Wednesday to decide which of the six applicants would be invited to an initial round of interviews.

The names of the six applicants are not yet public information. Finalist candidates will be named by the committee and recommended to the full Charlevoix City Council for a second interview, this time during an open public meeting.

The committee includes city council members Shirley Gibson, Leon Perron and Peggy Brennan, along with city treasurer Joe Zielinski, human resources director Jennifer Nash and city manager Roh Straebel. In the end, the group by consensus decided to invite four of the six applicants for interviews.

The first rounds of interviews are expected to be scheduled Wednesday and maybe Thursday, March 19-20. Finalists will be publicly announced afterward.

However, one issue that warranted discussion at this week's committee meeting is how not all applicants currently live within city limits and certainly aren't registered voters there. Those are the two legal requirements of the part-time city clerk, while the job remains an elected post.

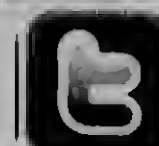

"It would be a waste of time to have an interview if they aren't go-

Ellsworth author LaShelle VanHouten recently published a book that details the true story of a Kalkaska man who — though illiterate and an outcast — used his hands to create spectacular visions of Jesus Christ's life with tiny pieces of wood.

VanHouten

"It is a true story. It's his story," VanHouten said.

The book is about the late Ed Lantzer, who introduced himself to VanHouten as "Mr. Ed," which is what she still calls him today. She teaches art in Kalkaska schools and for years took her students to meet Lantzer and learn about his self-taught skill, before he died five years ago.

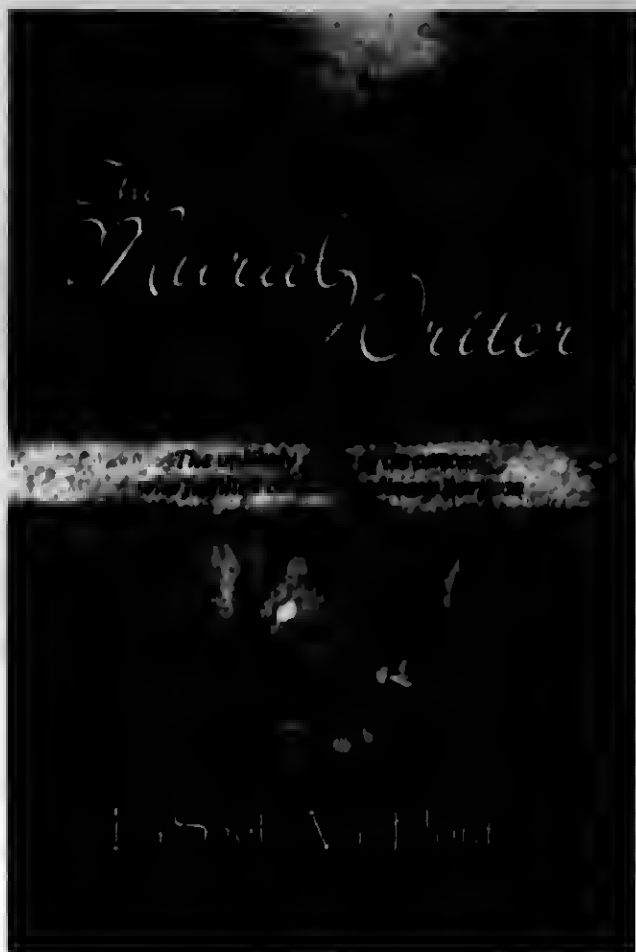

Lantzer created 30 panels that display images of Christ's life in marquetry, the art of applying wooden veneer to something in decorative patterns. The panels themselves are something to behold, VanHouten said.

"There's over a million pieces of wood in the panels, all of which he cut out himself," she said.

Lantzer's other creations include elaborate tabletops, hope chests, jewelry boxes and more. They all have mathematically perfect geometric shapes that even form optical illusions, depending on the viewer's visual focus.

But the book is about more than Lantzer's craft. It's about his life story. And it wasn't an easy story.

Lantzer suffered brain damage from scarlet fever after being born and raised in a chicken coop. He came to be blamed for the death of his baby brother and later in VanHouten lives in northwest Antrim County and said she spent long hours in Charlevoix to work on the book.

"I wrote the book in the Charlevoix Public Library," she said. "Charlevoix's library became my home for a couple of years."

VanHouten said she worked daily in the library during summers and on Saturdays during the school year for a couple of years. Now the book published last month through The Writing Show, is found at www.writingshow.com online.

for updates on Sam Woolf's progress

A classic Beatles tune started with a familiar dual bass and guitar riff, but what came next was a young, new voice that rang out with the well-known lyrics to "Come Together."

Sam Woolf, 17, who lives with his grandparents most of the year in Florida, is a popular contestant on the Fox network's "American Idol" show. He also is a familiar face around Charlevoix, where he spent repeated summers with his family.

On Wednesday night, Woolf added some slight variations to the melody of the classic "Abbey Road" song, somewhat breaking out of his trend of pitch-perfect, but emotionally flat performances, according to the judges. But the celebrity reviewers keep asking more out of him.

"It was great to hear that side of you because we haven't heard that before quite that way," said country singer Keith Urban, adding Woolf needs to loosen up even more in order to develop his physical performance.

"The voice is there," Urban said.

Singer Jennifer Lopez agreed with Urban about Woolf's improved performance, as well as the need for him to ramp it up even more.

"You are loosening up. It's like baby rock star. We need big rock star," Lopez said.

Even the often critical Harry Connick Jr. had encouraging words for Woolf.

"I really think you are on the way to, you know, where you need to be," Connick said. "I think it was an average performance, but you're on the way and that's what encourages me about you."

Woolf said during the live broadcast that he chose the beloved piece by songwriting duo John Lennon and Paul McCartney in order to break out of the mold — just like the judges told him to do in past weeks.

"I wanted to show a different side of me, so I chose an upbeat song," Woolf said.

It remained unknown at Courier press time Thursday whether Woolf survived that night's elimination episode. However, updates on his progress will be posted to the newspaper's website at www.charlevoixcourier.com online.

Trail project's third phase publicly reviewed

STEVE ZUCKER
NORTHERN MICHIGAN REVIEW

CHARLEVOIX — The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners is poised to seek the two biggest chunks of funds for the third of five expected phases of a non-motorized trail from Boyne City to Charlevoix.

At its regular semi-monthly meeting Wednesday, the board members heard a presentation from consultants Northwest Design Group and conducted a public hearing on its proposed grant application for $300,000 to the Michigan Department of Natural Resources Trust Fund.

Construction on the first phase of the trail is expected to begin late this summer. That section will go from Boyne City to the Bay-Evangeline Township line near Sumner Road. The second section, which is slated to be constructed in 2015, will go from U.S. 31 north of Charlevoix to Quarterline Road.

The third section, which is expected to cost about $925,000 and is proposed to be constructed in 2016, would run from Pincherry Road west of Horton Bay and connect up with the end of the phase one trail section near Sumner Road.

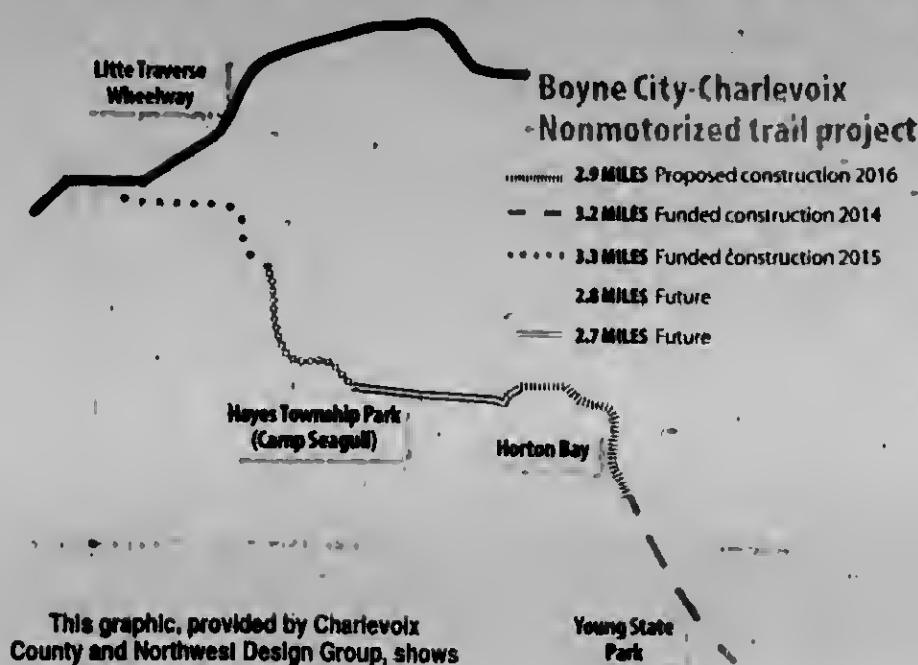

Northwest Design Group representative Lucas Porath, and county parks and recreation director Ross Maxwell, explained how the 2.9 mile section from Pincherry to Sumner Road — like the other sections — would use a 10-foot-wide blacktop surfaced trail separated from the roadway, but still within the road's legal right-of-way. In this section, the path would be on the Lake Charlevoix side of the road. However, unlike the other sections of the trail, this section will incorporate the 6-foot-wide shoulders of Boyne City-Charlevoix Road where it passes through Horton Bay.

Porath explained the reason for this is because the highway's right of way through the village is not wide enough to allow for a separated trail.

Porath also said in the section that goes through Horton Bay, bicycle traffic will be split on either side of the road — depending on which direction cyclists are traveling. He said cross-walks would be created at each side of the town to allow cyclist traffic

Boyne City man pleads guilty to felony strangulation charge

Destroyed mobile phone leads to charge, though sex crime counts dropped

STEVE ZUCKER
NORTHERN MICHIGAN REVIEW

CHARLEVOIX — A Boyne City man pleaded guilty this week to the lesser of multiple charges he faced amid allegations he choked a woman in January during an alleged attempted sexual assault.

Roger Dean Cicotte Jr., 39, pleaded guilty on Friday, March 7, to charges of attempted assault by strangulation — a five-year felony — and interference with an electronic communication device — a two-year charge.

In exchange for his guilty pleas, the original charges dismissed include: attempted first-degree criminal sexual conduct, a 10-year felony; second-degree criminal sexual conduct, a 15-year felony; assault by strangulation, a 10-year felony; and aggravated assault, a misdemeanor. Cicotte also faced penalties as an habitual offender, with second-offense sentencing enhancements, which could have increased the maximum penalty of the other charges by 1.5 times.

According to court documents, Cicotte originally faced charges that stemmed from an incident that happened Jan. 23 at his home in Boyne City.

According to a Charlevoix County Sheriff's office affidavit filed in the case, the woman who was the victim in the case received treatment at McLaren Northern Michigan hospital for injuries consistent with having been assaulted and choked. That's where police interviewed her.

According to the affidavit, the woman told police she had been at Cicotte's home drinking vodka and eating pizza when he allegedly made sexual advances toward her and she declined. She said the assault — including the choking — ensued when Cicotte allegedly attempted to force her to have sex with him. She also said Cicotte smashed her mobile phone during the altercation.

Charlevoix County Prosecuting Attorney Allen Telgenhof declined to comment on the reasons behind the plea agreement.

Authorities continue to hold Cicotte at the Charlevoix County Jail in lieu of bond while he awaits a sentencing hearing, which is set for March 23.

Ironton Ferry hours to be reduced for shoulder seasons

STEVE ZUCKER
NORTHERN MICHIGAN REVIEW

IRONTON — The first voyage of the Ironton Ferry is six weeks — or more — away, but the board that oversees the ferry's operations recently decided to trim some of its spring and fall operating hours in a move expected to save about $10,000 this year.

At its Feb. 21 meeting, the Charlevoix County Transportation Authority board, which consists of road commission chairman Doug Way, county commissioner Rich Gillespie and Norwood Township Supervisor Frank Hamilton, voted to reduce the ferry's operating hours during two stretches — between its season opening (usually around April 15) and May 15, as well as from Sept. 15 through the end of the season.

During those times, instead of closing down for the day at 10:30 p.m., the ferry will close at 7:30 p.m. Opening times are not slated to change.

Hamilton, the board's chairman, said the move is expected to save about $500 a week in wages alone. He said the board chose the late evening hours because, historically, those are the times when it sees the least amount of use.

"There are times when the ferry sits for a couple of hours without being used," Hamilton said.

He said the changes are something the board is trying for this year, but the changes are not set in stone.

In fact, Hamilton said the board already had contact from a few people concerned about the changes. In one case, a township official expressed concerns regarding the ferry's hours on election day. In another instance, some concerns regard the ferry being available for special events — such as those that might happen at Castle Farms.

Hamilton said the board and ferry captains are willing to make arrangements to stay open for special events if they receive sufficient advanced notice.

He added the move is an effort by the board to reduce operating costs for the ferry, which is often used by motorists to cut about 20 miles off a trip from Charlevoix to Boyne City by crossing the Ironton Narrows. Hamilton said there are no current plans to raise fares for the ferry, which currently are $3.25 per car, $0.50 for a pedestrian and $1 for a cyclist and hike.

Water flow order intended to avoid frozen underground pipes

SHENI MCWHARTER-O'DONNELL
COURIER EDITOR

Charlevoix city officials know that it's counter-intuitive, but they continue to ask municipal water customers to run water to avoid frozen underground pipes.

Pat Elliott, public works superintendent, said residents should continue to run water, even if the sun is out or the temperatures outside are above freezing. He said it's a long, slow process for the underground frost to yield.

"Never in my adult life have I seen the frost so deep before," Elliott said.

And Charlevoix officials said they want water customers here to run more than just a trickle. The water stream should be about the size of a large drinking straw or the size of a pinky finger.

Elliott explained how one faucet typically is enough for homes, though one or two faucets running in condominiums also is recommended. But it's important to continually let the water run, he emphasized.

"Pick a faucet, ideally in the basement — one that is rarely used so you don't inadvertently shut it off. Put a sign by the faucet to not shut off. If possible, actually remove the

Escaping Michigan's winter

People are telling me, "I have had enough of winter now!" I count myself among those dissatisfied or despondent citizens. But I have discovered a way of solving the problem. It is cheaper than a trip to Bermuda, and easier than you might think.

For the past few weeks I have been reading the accounts of the late 19th century and 20th century exploration of the Antarctic continent. There are some notable names among the chroniclers of that era. Roald Amundsen, Sir Ernest Shackleton and Robert Falcon Scott can pretty much tell the story.

Once intrepid explorers had visited the North Pole, the rush was on to be the first to set up a national flag at the South Pole. The printed or verbal media were not at that time very important, nor immediate, so we have mostly the words of the explorers themselves to provide the pictures.

In the middle of a colder and snowier than usual winter, it is easier to imagine the despair felt by Scott when arriving at the pole after genuinely incredible hardships, to find there a Norwegian flag and a note from Amundsen. No despondency any of us has felt this winter could compare. Scott's trip back from the pole is made even more vivid by his diaries, which record the death by cold and starvation of Scott and his entire crew, trapped in a makeshift shelter with an unrelenting blizzard raging outside. They could not travel in that deadly weather and simply died there. They had reached the pole, but it must have been discouraging to find they were the second crew to arrive.

Scott's diary does not record simple discomfort, but genuinely, deadly and unavoidable cold, snow and eventually starvation. Compare that to your own experiences this winter and he glad. Few literary adventures are as likely to increase your appreciation for natural gas and electricity as much as Scott's diaries. The year-round availability of food is just an added plus.

EAR TO THE GROUND

I have a tough enough time walking downtown in the cold of some February and March mornings. But reading about the treks and voyages of Scott, Amundsen and Shackleton serve as vivid reminders of just how bad it could be, and how good it is here.

A visit to the Antarctic of a century ago should relieve anyone of the feeling of being set upon by winter. And remind us all of both the glory and silliness of the human spirit. Winter, like other events, makes us stronger if it doesn't kill us. Revel in the strength it gives us. You don't have to enjoy it, but it could be worse.

LETTERS to the editor

Tobacco use prevention deserves more funding

Editor:

Tobacco kills more people in Michigan than alcohol, auto accidents, drug overdoses, murders and suicides combined, and is still the number one cause of preventable death in our state. Adult smoking rates in Michigan have decreased but are still more than 23 percent — making it 41st among the states — and 14 percent of our youth are still enticed by tobacco companies to take up smoking. As a pediatrician and father, I'm deeply concerned about the continued marketing of tobacco to our youth. Every year, tobacco use costs Michigan more than $7.4 billion in health care and lost productivity. There is solid evidence that enacting comprehensive strategies to reduce the toll of tobacco is both necessary and successful. These strategies include increasing the excise tax on cigarettes and other tobacco products, tobacco cessation and tobacco prevention programs, and public policy that protects our citizens' right to breathe smoke-free air.

However, Michigan has fallen far behind in allocating resources toward reducing the health risks and economic costs from smoking. We are 44th nationally in tobacco prevention spending, and the 2014 budget calls for only $4.7 million to be spent on tobacco control programs statewide. This is less than 4 percent of what is recommended by the CDC, and is minuscule compared to the $270 million the tobacco companies spend on marketing in Michigan every year. Michigan received $347.2 million in a Master Settlement Agreement from Tobacco Companies in 2013, but spent none of those funds on tobacco prevention programming. It is common sense that a portion of this settlement be spent on treating and preventing tobacco-related illness to protect the health of all Michigan residents, especially our youth. I urge our lawmakers to increase funding for evidence-based tobacco prevention programs and to increase the cost of all tobacco products.

Charlevoix city has more team players

Editor:

Once again something incredible is happening and the Mayor of Charlevoix needs to hear from you. As reported by the Courier, the Charlevoix City Planning Commission is looking to put non-taxpaying people from outside our city on a decision-making board. This doesn't make sense, especially when there are plenty of qualified full-time and summer taxpaying residents wanting to be on this board. I know, I applied but was turned down because Mayor (Norman) Boogie (Carlson Jr.) doesn't like me.

I have the credentials: a background in real estate; educated in economics; owned my own manufacturing business; I'm a qualified voter and am willing to serve. But only Boogie can appoint Planning Commission members and Boogie thinks I play for the wrong team.

I want to help Charlevoix and wish to see it grow in a fiscally smart, modern way while keeping our small-town charm. Others I have spoken with, who have a vested interest in Charlevoix — the ones who pay taxes but are considered only summer people — also wish to be on the board. These are people who grew up in Charlevoix, went to school in Charlevoix — people who really care about Charlevoix. How come there isn't proper representation of the taxpaying people of Charlevoix by the people of Charlevoix?

Why not put people on the Planning Commission who have a diverse opinion yet want to be on the board? Why not open the board up to summer taxpaying residents? Forty percent of our tax base comes from our summer residents who really love Charlevoix but also call another place home. They may actually have a few good ideas for our town.

Boogie may not want me on his team, but I want to be on Team Charlevoix. Because I believe team stands for Together, Everyone Achieves More.

CHARLEVOIX HISTORICAL SOCIETY

Bridging our past with our future

LOOKING BACK...

When Charlevoix was first settled in the mid 1850s, the typical dwelling that went up around town and on farmsteads was a basic design of one room with fireplace and a loft surrounded by four wood walls made of logs or planks with mud or sod caulking, a front door, and flanking windows. Sometimes not even these were included, and a doorway might stand only tall enough for a person to bend over and stoop through. The dwelling pictured here included a rickety porch overhang, at the time a luxury touch. This home was the residence of John and Lydia Nowland Ward in Marion Township south of Charlevoix, the photo dated 1867. They called it their "honeymoon house." A notation on the back of the photo, in the library of the Charlevoix Historical Society's Harsha House museum, says, "Note the shed on rear where foraging bears tried to gain entrance to food stored in north cool [sic] shed. Bears were a continued nocturnal nuisance as well as danger."

The Charlevoix Historical Society's new, fully illustrated exhibit titled Journeying to Charlevoix will be at the Depot building, at Depot Beach, through Saturday, March 22. The event is offered in partnership with the Smithsonian Institution exhibit titled Journey Stories, which currently is at Charlevoix Public Library. Hours of the Depot exhibit are 10 a.m.-4 p.m. Saturdays, 4-7 p.m. Wednesdays, or by special appointment. Call (231) 547-0373 for more information.

BUSINESS

Free business expo set for March 22

Later business networking and after-hours party require tickets

The Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce will on Saturday, March 22, host its fourth annual Business Expo and Business to Business Night at Castle Farms. New this year, the event also will include the Taste of Charlevoix, a special portion of the event in which area restaurants showcase some of their signature dishes. The event is broken into three events, each with its own distinct feel.

The Business Expo: Noon-5 p.m.; free admission.

Participants can explore more than 60 different local businesses all in one location. If area residents are looking for a new contractor, dentist or car repair business, this is an opportunity to learn what local companies can provide. There will be live demonstrations throughout the day and free food to sample in conjunction with the Taste of Charlevoix event. A door prize will be given away every hour.

Business to Business Night: 6-9 p.m.; $10 per person. This is the largest networking event in Charlevoix County. The Business to Business Night — called B2B — will feature all of the same great opportunities of the Business Expo, but guests also will enjoy a microbrew bar, giveaways, appetizers and networking opportunities with more than 500 representatives from all over the region.

Expo Party: 9-11 p.m.; $10 per person or free with admission to the business networking event.

This is time to forget about business and let loose. Reelers can enjoy music from A+ Digital DJ, half off of all drinks, as well as discounted cab rides.

This event will be made possible with support from sponsors businesses Fox Motors, Northern Michigan Review, Charlevoix State Bank, Castle Farms and Blue Cross Blue Shield.

For more information, or to get tickets, call (231) 547-2101 or send email to info@charlevoix.org online. Tickets will be available for purchase at the door.

BOYNE CITY

Main Street program offers facade upgrade grants

STEVE ZICKER
NORTHERN MICHIGAN REVIEW

BOYNE CITY — The Boyne City Main Street Program is now accepting applications from property owners for its newly established Facade Improvement Grant Program.

The purpose of the program is to encourage private investment through the rehabilitation and improvement of facades within the Boyne City Main Street District, to encourage good design and to preserve the architectural character that is distinctive to Boyne City. Main Street program board chair Rob Swartz said in a news release program officials issued Friday.

By improving the appearance of building facades, the program goal is to boost the economic vitality of the Main Street district, which includes all of downtown Boyne City and the properties on North Lake Street from Water Street just past the Glen's shopping plaza, Swartz said.

"We have been very fortunate in recent years, receiving facade grants through the State of Michigan, which have had an enormously positive impact on our community," Main Street program manager Hugh Conklin said in the release. "We will continue to work with property owners to secure these grants but our goal through this local program is to provide assistance for many important projects that may not qualify for state incentives."

The program provides a matching grant for facade improvements within the Main Street District. For every dollar awarded, the applicant must spend an equal amount. Individual grant amounts will be up to 50 percent of the project cost. Recommendations for funding grant applications will be made by the Main Street Design Committee to the Main Street Board, which will make all final grant-funding decisions. There is no set minimum or maximum number of projects per year.

Funding for the facade grant program comes from money raised through Main Street's involvement in Boyne Thunder. For the current budget year, $10,000 has been allocated for the program, program officials said.

Information and applications for the Facade Improvement Grant Program are available from the Boyne City Main Street office at (231) 582-9009 or by sending email to mainstreet@boyneccity.com online. The application deadline for this round of funding is April 30.

GAYLORD

Recovery center to open in spring

LORENE PARSHALL
NORTHERN MICHIGAN REVIEW

GAYLORD — The Northern Michigan Substance Abuse Services (NMSAS) Recovery Center, 2136 M-32 West, will open its methadone treatment program in spring with the priority of focusing on the recovery of its clients.

"It's all about focusing on the recovery and symptom management, not on the disease," said Sue Winter, NMSAS executive director. "Symptom management is an important part of recovery."

The center will operate under the stringent rules and regulations required of methadone treatment programs, which means accreditation by the Commission on Accreditation of Rehabilitation Facilities and licensed or governed by the Drug Enforcement Agency, Office of Substance Abuse, Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration and the State Methadone Authority.

NMSAS will primarily make use of methadone to treat those addicted to opiates, but Winter said every client will be assessed on a case by case basis to determine the appropriate treatment mode and drug for them. The recovery process will involve a multidisciplinary team approach.

"The team will work with the clients to develop an overall plan," Winter said. "Our team will include a doctor who will do the initial evaluation and order drugs or sometimes prescribe other medications depending on the situation."

Other team members include nurses, clinical counselors (with master's degrees) and care coordinators.

"The care coordinators will oversee a network of support and resources in the community to help the clients," Winter said. "And I'm very proud of our (volunteer) peer recovery coaches. They will also be involved in the recovery."

Clients will come to the recovery center every day to receive daily doses of liquid methadone, which is dispensed and monitored by a nurse. This ensures the drug will not end up sold on the streets, as sometimes happens when clients are given prescriptions to drugs in pill form.

Clients also are required to provide urine to the nurse for random toxicology tests if asked. The tests are to determine if there are other drugs in their system.

"It is a safety issue for them," Winter said. "Mixing methadone with other drugs is not good."

The center is planning lifestyle educational programs for clients, such as nutrition and activities that promote relaxation and stress relief.

According to Winter, methadone treatment is beneficial for communities.

"It causes a reduction in crime," she said. "They're not involved in illegal activities to get more expensive drugs on the street."

Methadone treatment programs have been evaluated and found to be effective by numerous studies since their development in 1964.

A National Institute of Health study estimated the financial cost of untreated addiction at $20 billion a year, not counting the social costs of destroyed families, destabilized communities and increased crime, disease and health care costs.

An advisory group helped develop the model that the NMSAS Recovery Center is based on, while expressing the concerns of the community. It included representatives of the judicial, criminal justice, physical and mental health, human services, drug treatment and advocacy fields.

NMSAS is planning on accepting public and private insurance but is still in the process of developing rates for the uninsured.

The agency is a nonprofit which has been established in Gaylord since 1978, coordinating funds and evaluating substance abuse programs across Northern Lower Michigan.

Upcoming Artists in Action events

Spinning & beading demos planned

In conjunction with the Journey Stories exhibit at the Charlevoix Public Library, two Artists in Action events also are scheduled. The artists will demonstrate their old-world crafts in the community room foyer and answer questions about their craftsmanship.

The Twisted Sisters, a group of women who practice the art of spinning wool, will demonstrate their trade 10-11 a.m. and again 12:30-2:30 p.m. on Friday, March 14.

Twisted Sisters are multi-talented women. Kelly Shively has been spinning for more than 25 years. She raises her own sheep and uses drop spindles in her craft. Gail Howie and Jackie Bolinger also will be there to share their unique dyeing techniques.

Chris Ahramowski, the newest to spinning, will share her stories of how her wheel was handmade by her neighbor.

Jessica Dominic, a member of the Little Traverse Bay Bands of Odawa Indians, will share her heading techniques 9-11 a.m. on Monday, March 17. Working mainly with a loom and seed heads, Jessica creates her own jewelry, hair pieces and clothing details using her own modern designs. She understands the importance of keeping cultural traditions alive through her beadwork and looks forward to sharing those traditions with the public, she said.

The library is at 220 W. Clinton St. in downtown Charlevoix and the artists will be in the community room foyer. For more information about this or the Journey Stories exhibit, visit www.charlevoixlibrary.org online.

Piano soloist will perform with orchestra

Eduardo Rojas, piano soloist for the Great Lakes Chamber Orchestra's performance of "Music and Drama" on Sunday, March 16, has a music history that spans several generations. Both his parents worked as music teachers, so it was natural for them to teach music to their five children. Consequently, today all four of his siblings play instruments, and two are professional musicians, one in jazz. His daughter is a conductor.

"I started playing music when I was 2 years old, playing the xylophone and other musical toys. At 4, I started with the piano. I could read music and play before I learned to speak Spanish. At the age of 6, I practiced three hours a day and could play Mozart and Beethoven. I gave recitals for my family," Rojas said.

By the time Rojas was 14 years old, he practiced piano six to eight hours a day. "I was crazy," he laughed, quickly adding, "Doing something you love isn't always easy. At an early age, I learned discipline and self-control, which are keys to accomplishing any goal."

"I try to make every concert my best performance, but my focus is to feel every piece I play and communicate those feelings. When a person listens to music, he should feel something deep inside. Without this, music is boring," he said.

One of the pieces Rojas will play on Sunday will be Mozart's Piano Concerto No. 24 in C Minor, which contains a cadenza, an improvised or written-out ornamental passage, played by a soloist.

"Improvisation was the way they composed back then. They created something in the moment. Classical musicians don't do that anymore. I want to play my own cadenza. It won't be written down, but it's shaped in my mind, so it will have a form. It's nice to do something on one's own, having fun in the moment," Rojas said.

Rojas will be the featured soloist at Great Lakes Chamber Orchestra's "Music and Drama" at 4 p.m. Sunday, March 16, at Charlevoix High School on Marion Center Road. After the performance, the audience is invited to meet him, along with guest conductor Carlos Andres Botero and orchestra members for a reception with refreshments.

Women's literary event set for May, proceeds to benefit local projects

The Charlevoix Area Zonta Club will host its annual event "Literary Delights — A Michigan Women Authors' Luncheon" — from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Saturday, May 17, at the Charlevoix Public Library in downtown Charlevoix.

Tickets for the event are $40 per person and include a catered lunch and basket raffle drawings. Three Michigan women authors, Natalie Taylor, Peg Herring and Suzanne Malpass Rogers, will speak at the event and copies of their books will be available for sale and signing at the event.

All proceeds from the event go to support projects to advance the status of women locally, nationally and internationally, including the Sights of Success event, which is a free, day-long event offered to middle school girls to build teamwork, self-esteem and confidence.

The featured author for March is Peg Herring. Herring hails from Onaway and is the author of the critically acclaimed "Simon & Elizabeth" mysteries, the award-winning "Dead Detective" mystery, the intriguing "Loser" mysteries, and several stand-alone novels. She also speaks to groups on many topics, drawing on her years as an educator, her love of reading, and her experiences in writing and publishing.

For more information or to purchase a ticket for the event, contact Joy Halverson at (231) 547-4813. Reservations for the event are required.

Consumers Energy Foundation supports preschool scholarships

Consumers Energy official Tim Petrosky recently presented a grant of $10,000 from the company's foundation to the Great Start Collaborative to help fund preschool scholarships. The purpose of the Great Start Preschool Scholarship Fund is to engage economically disadvantaged 3- to 5-year-old children in high quality preschool programs throughout Charlevoix, Emmet and northern Antrim counties.

Those who accepted the funds are members of the Great Start Preschool Scholarship Fund Nina Wagar, Corey Berden, Maureen Hollocker, Marcia Campbell and Susan Chowen. The funds will help in removing eligible children from the wait list for tuition-free programs at capacity and send them to tuition-free programs rated high quality by the state's Great Start to Quality Star System. The Great Start Preschool Scholarship Fund achieved great success in the past three years by increasing funds raised and more than doubled the number of children who were removed from the wait list from 19 in 2011 to 44 in 2013.

"The Consumers Energy Foundation has been a funding partner in this mission since we began in 2011. Our community benefits greatly from their continued support," said Hollocker, Great Start collaborative director.

For more information about Great Start and opportunities for your child to enroll in preschool, visit www.greatstartforkids.com and click on the Free Preschool tab.

Shown here are Great Start's Nina Wagar, Corey Berden and Maureen Hollocker, Tim Petrosky of Consumers, and Marcia Campbell and Susan Chowen, of Great Start.

Charlevoix third-graders learn swimming skills at the Charlevoix Area Community Pool.

Third graders work on swim skills

Charlevoix Elementary school third-grade students had the opportunity to visit the Charlevoix Area Community Pool on Tuesdays and Thursdays for the month of February for swim instruction.

Three swim instructors worked with the kids, who learned in groups based on their skill levels. New swimmers put their faces in the water and worked on a front crawl at the end of the month. More skilled swimmers mastered the standing dive.

The pool employees said they would like to thank principal Doug Drenth for his continued commitment to ensure each of his students receive swim instruction during their time at his school. Swimming is the only sport that also can save your life. The pool employees also said they would like to thank nurse Kristie Robarge and physical education teacher Elizabeth Shaw for accompanying the students to the pool and assisting staff and lifeguards.

This program was subsidized by funds raised from the 2013 annual pool auction. If anyone is interested in making a donation to ensure the continuation of this program and to expand it to other school districts, contact executive director Kevin Hawley at the pool at (231) 547-0982.

The Charlevoix Area Community Pool is a nonprofit organization that strives to provide an environment that promotes fun, fitness and safety in and around the water. For more information about the Charlevoix Area Community Pool programs, visit www.charlevoixpool.org or call (231) 547-0982.

Members of Charlevoix's city clerk applicant review committee meet Wednesday to discuss which candidates will be invited for preliminary interviews. The committee includes (from left front) city council members Peggy Brennan, Leon Perron and Shirley Gibson, along with city treasurer Joe Ziellinski, human resources director Jennifer Nash and city manager Rob Straebel.

ing to move here," said Peggy Brennan, city councilwoman. That question also caused the committee to question whether "snow bird" applicants, if chosen for the job, would have to cut short their typical multi-month visit to southern climates. Whomever is chosen to be appointed as Charlevoix's city clerk will be expected to fulfill the existing term, which ends in January 2016. Meanwhile, city leaders strive to put a ballot question before city voters to ask whether the city clerk's post should instead be appointed, an effort to boost accountability to the city manager and establish designated office hours — both purportedly lacking in the past. City voters recently elected as city clerk Larry Sullivan, Charlevoix County commissioner, but he declined to accept the city post when the Michigan Attorney General opined that state law and the city charter prevent Sullivan from holding both elected city and county positions at the same time. If city voters approve a future ballot question to make the city clerk an appointed post, that will begin at the end of the current elected city clerk term 21 months from now. Straebel on Wednesday told the city clerk review committee that such a ballot question is unlikely to be put to voters before at least the August primary or even the November general election this year. TRAIL headed from Boyne City to Charlevoix to cross over to the non-lake side of the road. Cyclists headed toward Boyne City would remain on the lake side of the road. He explained this maneuver is necessary through Horton Bay to comply with state law which requires that bicyclists using the road or its shoulder travel in the same direction as traffic.

County commissioner Chris Christensen asked if the path on the shoulder through Horton Bay would set a precedent to allow exceptions to the preferred plan to use a trail detached from the roadway, similar to the construction of the Little Traverse Wheelway, which extends from the north side of Charlevoix to Harbor Springs.

Christensen referred to the desire expressed by some property owners along the road to have the trail entirely use the shoulder of the road instead of the creation of a separated path-way.

Porath explained the plan all along was to use the shoulder through Horton Bay because of the right-of-way narrowness, the fact that the speed limit is lower at 35 mph and because new and widened shoulders already exist along that section of road.

County commissioner Larry Sullivan reminded the other board members that, besides safety, one of the main driving factors behind the preference for the detached trail is that the Michigan Natural Resources Trust Fund wouldn't pay for trails that aren't detached from the main roadway.

None of the commission members expressed any concerns about the application during the meeting and the lone public comment on the application was from former county board member Shirlene Tripp, who spoke in favor of moving forward.

However, the board of commissioners did not take a vote on whether or not to approve the grant application because the written resolution in support of the application was not ready Wednesday. The board plans to consider the matter at its next meeting at 7 p.m. Wednesday, March 26. The deadline for the application to be submitted for this year's grant cycle is April 1.

But the grant is just the first step to acquire enough money to pay for the third phase. The grant documents for this segment call for $300,000 — the maximum grant allowed for this type of project — to be paid from the Michigan Natural Resources Trust Fund, and $500,000 to be paid through the Michigan Department of Transportation's Transportation Alternatives Program. Maxwell said the application for that grant will soon come before the commissioners, as well. The remainder of the expected costs is slated to be paid for through a $33,000 contribution from Bay Township and $92,000 from other local sources, such as contributions and grants from other agencies.

swers," he said.

Some in the crowd stood and spoke about this committee as an opportunity to achieve something in partnership with the mining business, including some who were unexpected.

"We may have an opportunity to have more input on this than we ever thought we could," said Nancy Ferguson, president of WATCH (Water and Air Team Charlevoix).

Ferguson said it sounded to her as if St. Marys isn't in a rush to pursue this plan, and perhaps those opposed to idea on principle should pause on this moment.

"This is a chance maybe to facilitate what we want to happen in this community," Ferguson said.

But not all were convinced.

Dirk Cox (left), of St. Mary's Cement, speaks Monday to a large crowd about a land exchange concept between the company and Fisherman's Island State Park in Charlevoix.

Janine Gregory, of Charlevoix Township, said she believes St. Marys officials haven't been forthcoming about this land swap concept from the moment people began to notice, like when she said she found them last fall on one of the park's prime hiking trails in a piece of heavy equipment.

She also suggested an advocate of the company's proposal tore out a petition against the land swap with signatures from a notebook she left tied to a tree within the park.

"This is our state property — not just Charlevoix Township," she reminded the crowd.

Another well-known and outspoken environmental advocate also remained steadfast in her opposition to any land exchange with state park lands.

"We have a responsibility and an obligation to protect it for future generations," said Anne Zukowski, who is involved in the Save Fisherman's Island page on Facebook.

"This is our land. We don't want to give it away. This land swap is not in the best interest of the park," she said.

Daniel Bruce, of Williamsburg, said he grew up in Charlevoix and Fisherman's Island State Park is his childhood "stomping grounds." He traveled to Charlevoix for the public hearing because the park is so meaningful to him, he said.

Bruce then asked a question at the heart of the matter. How much opposition must St. Marys face from the community before abandoning the land swap plan?

"The concept will stay afloat as long as it's a good idea," Cox replied.

Anyone interested in being involved with the community working committee is asked to contact St. Marys officials via email sent to landswap@att.net online. Also, questions, ideas and other comments may be submitted to the company through that email address.

St. Marys officials are expected to present this concept again during next week's Charlevoix City Council meeting set for 7 p.m. Monday, March 17, at city hall, 210 State St. in downtown Charlevoix.

not so it is even more difficult to shut the water off on accident," Elliott said.

And city water customers shouldn't worry about being gouged when their bills arrive. Officials are billing residents an average of their previous usage so they don't pay for the water authorities now ask them to literally pour down the drain.

"I am estimating we will not be able to lift the run water notice until sometime in April," Elliott said.

Elliott said some residents questioned whether this continual water running will overwhelm the city's water treatment plant or the wastewater treatment plant on the back end. But officials continually monitor the situation at both facilities, he said.

"The factor is the colder water in the wastewater treatment plant, not the amount of water," said Steve Tunis, manager at the facility along Lake Shore Drive. "We are watching it closely and it is maintaining the treatment process." Tunis added people shouldn't worry about overwhelming the treatment plant when there's a bigger issue at stake.

"It would be much worse to have broken pipes and water mains," Tunis said.

Elliott said anyone with questions should call him at (231) 547-3276, or city hall at (231) 547-3270. Also, information will remain available on the city's website at www.cityofcharlevoix.org online.

involved," Andrew Whitley said, laughing out loud. "But nope, the only alcohol involved was some beers at the Shanrock when we got there."

However, U.S. Coast Guard officials said this activity is highly discouraged. While it may be a family tradition, it's certainly not a safe activity and military officials recommend against venturing out on the ice by dozens of miles over such lengthy periods of time.

"With the weather conditions — the subfreezing temperatures and thickness of the ice — we don't discourage people from recreating on the ice, such as ice-fishing," said Chief Petty Officer Alan Haraf, spokesman for U.S. Coast Guard District 9, which includes the Great Lakes.

"But ice is unpredictable, no matter how cold it is," Haraf said. "They sound like they were pretty lucky to have made that journey safely. Anything could have happened."

Haraf made sure to underscore the U.S. Coast Guard does not encourage anyone to follow in the Whitley family footsteps — at least not the footsteps that lead that far out onto frozen Lake Michigan.

Both Andrew Whitley and Beauvais confirmed they don't intend to do it again. One such adventure in a lifetime is enough, they agreed.

Jim Jeffreys, General Manager, Fox Motors in Charlevoix: I was introduced to some folks in the showroom who were taking delivery of a new vehicle the other day. They had stated during the process to their sales rep that in over 30 years they had never bought a vehicle in Charlevoix even though they have lived here for that entire period. The investment made in the new facilities, coupled with the increased inventories got them to give us a try. The tipping point was when the discussion turned to local charities and events they hold dear and enjoy. The support from Fox back to the community really seemed to move them. Why invest, why give back? Easy answer: Charlevoix First... Please contact the Chamber and share your Charlevoix First success story today! BOYS' BASKETBALL

Rayders fall to Red Devils in semifinals

East Jordan's Bacchus scores in game's final moments

DREW KOCHANNY
NORTHERN MICHIGAN REVIEW

MANCELONA — A dream moment and shot come true.

With the game tied and on the line in overtime of the Mancelona Class C district semifinal matchup between East Jordan and Charlevoix on Wednesday, Red Devil senior Noah Bacchus would have a moment to make a dream a reality.

With 11 seconds remaining in a 46-46 overtime contest, Bacchus took the ball from the perimeter, drove around a double screen to the basket and let up a layup that would drop in over the outstretched hands of Charlevoix defender Zach Hankins and down through the net.

The ice in the veins play by Bacchus would give the Red Devils a 48-46 lead with 3.5 seconds to go.

On the ensuing last second heave from the Rayders, Bacchus would cut the ball short at mid-court, giving East Jordan the 48-46 win and berth to a Class C district final on Friday, March 7, in Mancelona.

The Red Devils, now 16-4 overall, faced Boyne City, 20-1, for the third time this season in the final. Boyne City, ranked No. 4 in the Michigan Associated Press Class C state poll, advanced to the title game against East Jordan with a 69-40 win over Johannesburg-Lewiston in Wednesday's other semifinal.

"That shot is the best thing in the world," Bacchus said. "What I've been working for all season, that's the shot I dreamed about as a kid to go into the championship. We've been working for it this whole season. We always say to take one game at a time, but this is our annual goal to get to the district final."

As it even turns out, it's not the first time Bacchus sent a Charlevoix team away empty in overtime.

"I remember seventh-grade year we played Charlevoix in double-overtime and we beat them. I hit a free throw to win that game," Bacchus added.

"Then this comes down to it and I saw it and just took it."

Early in the contest, the eventual dream night for the Red Devils would look like a nightmare, as the Rayders opened the first half with a 18-8 lead in the second quarter and eventually held a 25-14 lead at the end of the first half.

"Charlevoix came out a little quicker a little harder, more aggressive and we didn't," East Jordan coach Darrin Weber said. "I've got young kids and they've never really been in that position before. Defensively I thought we were OK, but offensively we just couldn't get anything going."

Weber's young players would get acclimated to the big moment and the second half against the Rayders early, hitting a 7-0 run to make it a 25-21 game, as they inched their way back into the contest.

The Red Devils took their first lead since the first quarter with just under 3 minutes to go in the third, 30-29, and the quarter would come to a close knotted at 32-32.

Each team would score 10 points in the fourth quarter, as each would have a chance to prevent the game from overtime, but missed free throws from the Rayders and errant shots from the Red Devils sent the game to an extra quarter.

"I think that third quarter cost us. I think we were complacent on defense," Charlevoix coach Bret Erskine said. "We were trying to match our defense with a couple big guys against their small guys. They just kept pecking away. There were a lot of things that we should have done and we didn't."

A back and forth overtime quarter would eventually give the Rayders the ball with a chance to win it, which was just what Bacchus made true for the Red Devils.

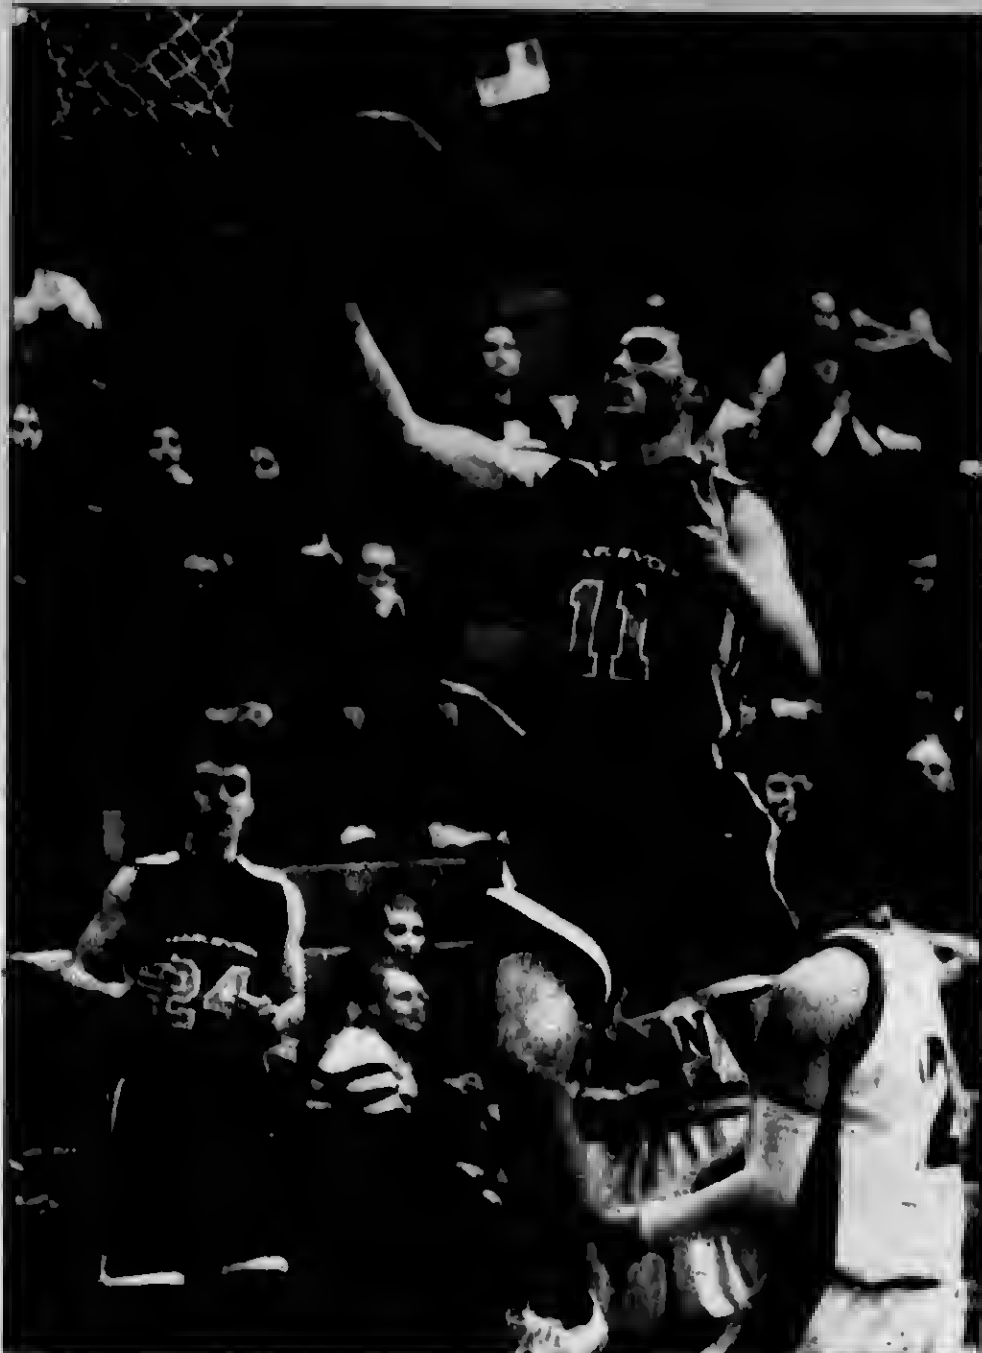

"We knew that last play would open up because they're so aggressive with their defense that as soon as he turned the corner I knew he had it," Weber said of Bacchus. "Hats off to Charlevoix. Those kids played hard. It was a great high school basketball game."

Bacchus led the Red Devils with 28 points, while Donny Cutler added seven points and Dustin Hejka, eight points.

For Charlevoix, which finishes 7-15 on the season, Austin Putman led with 16 points, while Nate Moon had 10 points.

Erskine looks back at the Rayders season of highs and lows as a success in year one as the boys' varsity basketball team coach.

"For the first season, it was great. The kids are great," he said. "The parents are great. I had a great coaching staff. The kids played hard and when the kids play hard, I can live with that. We've got some things to build on for next year."

For East Jordan, a draining night both physically and emotionally will have to pass quickly, as another Lake Michigan Conference rival, Boyne City, awaits in the title game come Friday.

"They're a different challenge," Weber said. "I think they're a tougher team to defend overall so it's not going to get any easier Friday."

A VETERINARIAN... the animal's best friend!

For worry-free pets

It's no fun having a sick pet. From being the ideal companion, a dog, a cat, a bird or any other kind of domestic pet can soon become a source of worry, stress and a lot of expense.

The first thing to do when looking for a new pet is to make sure that the animal comes from a dependable source. Your veterinarian should be able to give you the names of some reliable breeders, individuals or pet stores. As soon as you have acquired your new pet, take it to your vet for a preliminary check-up. At this time, your animal will receive all the necessary vaccinations and you can find out everything you need to know about taking good care of your new companion. Even though vaccinations now exist which extend the duration of immunity to three years, it is still important to take your animal to the vet for an annual check-up.

Between these check-ups, try and ensure that your pet doesn't come into contact with any animals which could be diseased. A cat which always stays inside could be more at risk if it escapes than a cat which is used to being outside. The vaccines for these two types of cat are different and do not protect them in the same ways. Another way of preventing the propagation of diseases between animals is to wash your hands after handling other people's pets.

Moreover, as soon as your pet shows any signs of illness, lethargy, loss of appetite, etc., be sure to consult your vet as quickly as possible. Obtaining rapid treatment when symptoms first appear, will allow you to keep your beloved pet for many years to come.

As soon as your pet shows any signs of illness, be sure to consult your vet as quickly as possible.

Farm animal veterinarians

Originally, veterinarians only cared for farm animals, cattle, sheep, pigs, goats... Nowadays, even though many vets have specialized in small animal care, farm animal vets play an increasingly important role due to the strict production norms for animal products earmarked for human consumption. The role of the veterinarian specialized in farm animal care is aimed, therefore, at controlling diseases both directly and indirectly transmitted to human beings. Among these food borne diseases are Listeriosis, Salmonella and E. coli.

A farm veterinarian must be available at all hours of the day and night and have good physical endurance. Unlike their colleagues who care for small animals, these vets must travel to their patients. They drive specially designed vehicles filled with material and medications to deal with any type of medical situation which the vet could encounter during farm visits. As well as carrying out checks on breeding stock and making regular, planned visits, the farm vet often has to respond to emergency calls for accidents, illnesses or birthing problems.

The veterinarian can also be involved in several related tasks: giving advice on the breeding and diet of animals, carrying out regular sanitation and fertility checks, doing research into the development of new medications for animals, etc. The farm veterinarian, therefore, has to be extremely versatile as all these different jobs involve being a pharmacist, surgeon, radiologist, ophthalmologist, dentist and... a doctor!

As well as carrying out checks on breeding stock and making regular,

BE A WISE SHOPPER

It's always wise to remember that if an offer sounds too good to be true, it probably is. If you are offered merchandise at an unbelievably low price, check it out thoroughly. A call to the Better Business Bureau (serving Eastern Michigan and the Upper Peninsula) will tell you whether other consumers have had problems with the firm that has offered the merchandise. (248)223-9400. But call the Bureau BEFORE you make a purchase. You'll be glad you did.

Charlevoix Area Community Pool to appear on summer ballot for millage renewal

SHERI MCWHIRTER-O'DONNELL
COURIER EDITOR

Voters in the city of Charlevoix, and both Charlevoix and Hayes townships, will this summer decide whether to continue to pay taxes for the local community pool.

Members of the joint Recreational Authority board among the three municipalities on Feb. 18 unanimously voted to approve the wording for a millage renewal. On Tuesday, officials filed the paperwork to put the question on an August ballot.

"The people voted for it last time and all we're asking for is a renewal," said Michelle Rick-Biddick, chairwoman of the recreational authority board.

The requested 10-year tax rate is a renewal of one-third of a mill, to be used for operational, maintenance and improvement purposes. That would stretch from 2015 through 2024, once the current voter-approved millage expires.

That rate is 33 cents per $1,000 of taxable value for property owners.

State park land swap reviewed by city

Charlevoix city councilors hear St. Marys concept, also public comments

SHERI MCWHIRTER-O'DONNELL
COURIER EDITOR

CHARLEVOIX — More of the same arguments for and against a potential land swap between a major local mining company and a treasured local state park took upwards of two hours Monday to get through — and officials didn't even intend to vote.

Officials from St. Marys Cement attended the regular Charlevoix City Council meeting to present their land exchange concept that would trade with the state more acreage on the southern end of Fisherman's Island State Park for less acreage on the northern end of the park, including the Bells Bay Road entrance. But first, said operations manager Dirk Cox, the company wants a good faith discussion with the community about the idea, including plausible solutions to community concerns.

"I'm not going to listen to popular opinion only," Cox said.

St. Marys does not currently have a land exchange proposal under review with the Michigan Department of Natural Resources and the reason it doesn't is the company wants some dialogue with the community first, Cox said.

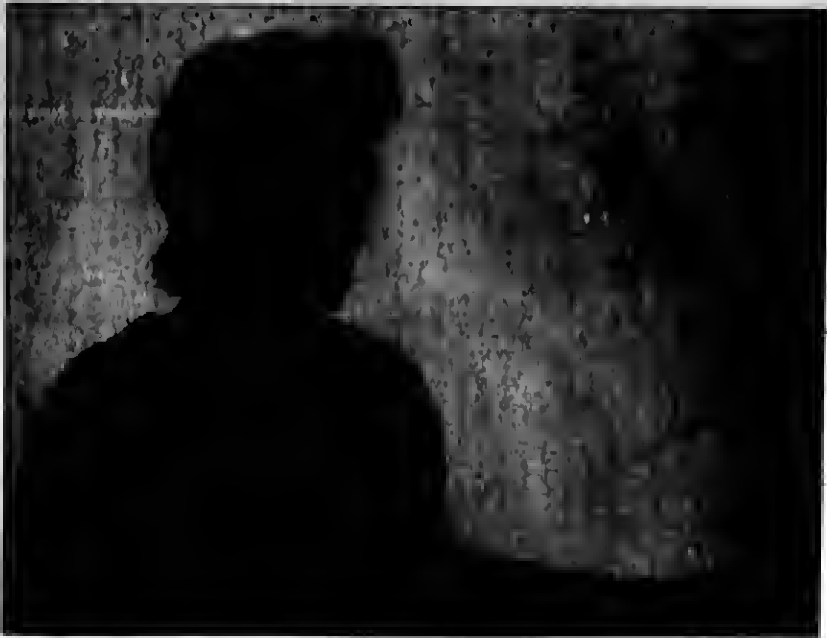

Some in the room spoke up in favor of such a discussion with St. Marys on what it proposes as a community working committee in order to identify the issues, challenge assumptions and work toward practical solutions.

"I totally agree with it being a beautiful park," said David Skeel, of Marion Township.

But Skeel suggested this situation may be a time to "think outside the box" and look for ways to improve the long-standing rustic campground and park along the Lake Michigan shoreline. What if, he asked, an improved state park in Charlevoix turned into greater tourist numbers?

City council decides against ordinance to permit township residents to serve

Nobody from the public spoke during a public hearing Monday whether in favor or against a proposed ordinance to allow township representatives to fill seats on the city's planning commission. But then came city council members' turn.

First city planner Mike Spencer spoke about the challenges faced in finding suitable and properly qualified candidates to serve on the city's planning commission. That's why officials presented city leaders with this proposed ordinance to allow up to two of the Charlevoix Planning Commission's nine seats to be filled by qualified candidates from among the five townships to which the city provides services, including Charlevoix, Eveline, Hayes, Marion and Norwood townships.

"If we have trouble filling the vacancies, perhaps we should try a little harder," suggested Peggy Brennan, councilwoman.

She suggested the city should advertise open planning commission seats — along with vacancies on any city boards or committees — as a better option to allowing non-residents a CHARLEVOIX — Hayes Township officials seek a state grant to help cover the costs to build a new boat ramp and fishing pier into Lake Charlevoix at the newly acquired Camp Sea-Gull property.

"It's all part of the plan there for Camp Sea-Gull," said Ethel Knepp, township supervisor.

Hayes Township officials recently requested up to $300,000 in a Michigan Natural Resources Trust Fund grant. If awarded, the money would be used to create a small boat ramp and fishing pier to increase access to the northern end of the lake, along with other associated amenities, Knepp said.

"But it will be a smaller boat

Alternative Breaks explored by East Jordan grad

Volunteer awareness work occupies CMU students on spring break

EMILY WHITE
COURIER CONTRIBUTOR

EAST JORDAN — Mari-beth Poindexter, a graduate student at Central Michigan University and an East Jordan High School graduate, traveled to Charlotte, N.C., during the university's recent spring recess.

Poindexter traveled with Alternative Breaks, a widely practiced college program that allows students to pick a service experience in regards to social issues about which they feel passionate. Some of the service areas include homelessness awareness, urban development and lesbian gay bisexual transgender queer (LGBTQ) awareness.

Last week, Poindexter and 11 of her peers at CMU directly worked with Campus Pride, a nonprofit organization that strives to support LGBTQ community and ally students on college campuses across the country.

Much of their volunteer work was computer based and included updating online databases. These databases allow students across the country to visit an interactive map online where they can click on individual states, view the colleges and universities that are located there and see how dominant LGBTQ awareness is on each campus.

Poindexter and her peers also worked with social network Twitter to raise awareness for the LGBTQ community.

"Most mornings we did what we called 'spotlight programs.' We tweeted at celebrities to try and get them retweet our Campus Pride awareness posts; I actually got Lance Bass to retweet me, so that was awesome. I told him I'd microwave my sister's Backstreet Boys CDs," Poindexter said.

The group also received a response from Mary Lambert, known for her vocal role in Macklemore and Ryan Lewis' hit song, "Same Love."

In the afternoons, speakers came to educate the group on topics such as queer history and ways in which to be an effective ally.

"I would encourage everyone out there to participate in as many student service opportunities as they possibly can, no matter what it's for. Volunteering is such a rewarding experience," Poindexter said.

According to Rachel Esterline Perkins' recent article "CMU students volunteer across country for Alternative Spring Break," CMU is ranked fourth in the nation for the number of students who participate in the Alternative Breaks program.

"This was the first time I've ever participated in something like this, and looking back I wish I had done it in all of my undergrad years," Poindexter said.

In the future, Poindexter plans to become an Alternative Breaks trip leader and share her knowledge and experiences with others.

New novel travels through powerful indigenous stories

A new novel published by Michigan State University Press is the latest from award-winning author Susan Power.

"Sacred Wilderness" became available for $19.95 last month as a paperback novel. Power's first novel, "Grass Dancer," received the PEN/Hemingway award for best new fiction.

The latest novel is a Clan Mother story for the 21st century, written to explore the lives of four women of different eras and backgrounds, who come together to restore foundation to a mixed-up, mixed-blood woman — a woman who had been living the American dream, and found it a great maw of emip-tiness. These Clan Mothers may be wisdom-keepers, but they are anything but stern and aloof — they are women of joy and grief, risking their hearts and sometimes their lives for those they love.

"Power's characters laugh, shout, whisper and speak to readers long after the page has been turned, the book has been closed, the library door has been shut. With organic structure reminiscent of oral tradition and brilliant form evocative of the finest literary craft, Power's stories unveil all that is meaningful and memorable in our shared human experience," said Ernestine Hayes, author of "Blonde Indian: An Alaska Native Memoir."

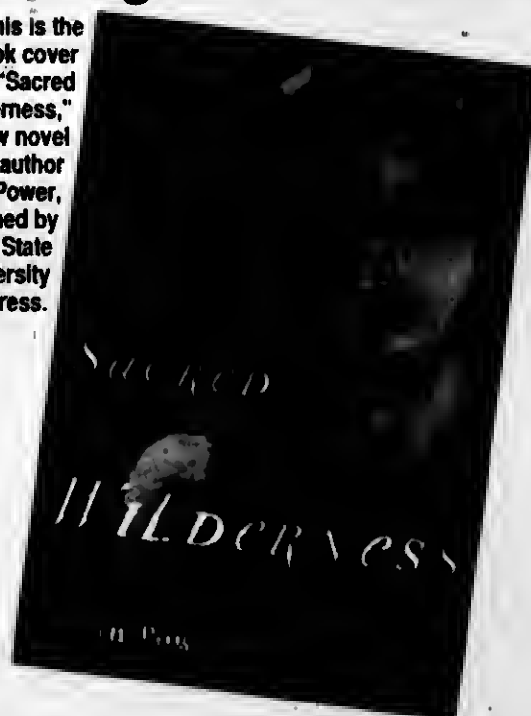

The novel swirls through time, from present-day Minnesota to the Mohawk territory of the 1620s, to the ancient biblical world, brought to life by an indigenous woman who would come to be known as the Virgin Mary. The Clan Mothers reveal secrets, the insights of prophecy, and stories that are by turns comic, so painful they can break your heart, and perhaps even powerful enough to save the world.

"Every new book by Susan Power is cause for celebration. This vibrant work is no exception. Her vision is intact: vivid, telling, honest and transcendent. Power is a treasure and a true artist," Luis Alberto Urrea, award-winning author of "Queen of America."

More information about this novel can be found at www.msupress.msu.edu/online.

Boyne man faces manslaughter charge for brother's death

STEVE ZUCKER
NORTHERN MICHIGAN REVIEW
CHARLEVOIX — The 10-percent bond for a Boyne City man arrested last week on a charge of involuntary manslaughter in connection with his brother's death in December is now set at $50,000.

A judge on Friday set the bond at an arraignment hearing for Christopher Mellon Grice, 29, of Boyne City, whom authorities arrested Thursday on the charge related to the death of his brother, William Benjamin Grice, 26.

At the same hearing, the date for the preliminary examination in the case made the docket for 10 a.m. Thursday, May 8. Typically, the law requires preliminary examinations to be set within 14 days of a defendant's arraignment, however, a defendant may waive that rule if he or she wishes for more time to prepare for the hearing. Friday brought the approval of such a waiver in this case.

Grice

Authorities said William received treatment in the emergency room at Charlevoix Area Hospital on Dec. 22, 2013, and medical officials pronounced him dead on Dec. 23 at McLaren Northern Michigan hospital in Petoskey, where he underwent emergency surgery on his brain.

According to a Charlevoix County Sheriff's office statement issued Dec. 27, family members took William Grice to Charlevoix Area Hospital on Dec. 22, about eight hours after an incident took place at his home in the early hours that morning. Earlier reports indicated an altercation with a family member may be involved, police said.

Charlevoix County Prosecutor Allen Telgenhof said in a written statement Thursday that an autopsy showed how William Grice died from head trauma.

Involuntary manslaughter is a felony that carries a maximum penalty of 15 years in prison.

Grice retained Petoskey, defense attorney Daniel Hartman to represent him. Christopher Grice remained held at the Charlevoix County Jail in lieu of bond.

WALLOON LAKE

Fire damages Chandler Township garage, woodshop

WALLOON LAKE — A garage and woodshop in Charlevoix County's Chandler Township and some of its contents sustained extensive damage when a fire broke out Sunday.

Melrose Township Fire Chief Dennis Howard said firefighters received the call to the Myron Matz residence at 06912 Matz Road at 40:42 a.m. when a passerby called 9-1-1 to report a barn on fire at that location. The Matz family was not home at the time of the fire.

When the first fire crews arrived on the scene, they discovered the structure was a two-car garage with a wood shop attached. Howard said the fire started in the wood shop portion of the building and the roof had already collapsed on that area of the building by the time firefighters arrived.

Responders found Matz's work truck inside the garage, but without keys in it. However, firefighters opened the garage door and pulled the work truck from the building and limited damage to it.

WALLOON LAKE — Firefighters with the Melrose Township Fire Department stopped a chimney-related fire at a Chandler Township home late Monday before it caused more extensive damage, despite a driveway that proved a challenge.

Fire chief Dennis Howard said firefighters received the call at 10:30 p.m. to a home at 7925 Springvale Road when the resident, Jack Metcalf, called 9-1-1 to report smoke filled the attic with a possible chimney fire.

Howard said when fire crews arrived on the scene it quickly became apparent the driveway, which is about a quarter-mile long and winds up the hill, proved too narrow for the department's pumper truck. Howard said he sent a few firefighters up to the house to evaluate the fire and the driveway access to the house.

After he sized up the situation, Howard committed the department's smallest pumper to respond up to the house, to leave other tankers and pumpers on the road.

Howard said responders contained the fire to the structure around the chimney. He said firefighters removed a large portion of the ceiling around the chimney, cut out burned sections of wood and hauled out insulation that smoldered.

Howard said the long, narrow driveway forced firefighters to make multiple trips between the house and the roadway with a pickup truck to shuttle personnel and tools.

In all, firefighters remained on the scene for nearly two hours to clean up and remove hot items. Crews from Allied EMS stood on standby at the scene as firefighters put out the fire.

Fire officials determined the fire's cause stemmed from some recently added blown-in insulation which

Toddler found 3-year-old safe after sub-freezing wander

CHARLEVOIX — A 3-year-old girl is safe after being lost in the woods in single-digit temperatures for about an hour late Sunday, March 16.

Charlevoix County Sheriff Don Schneider said in a written statement that emergency crews received the call around 6:39 p.m. to respond to a home off of Boyne City-Charlevoix Road in Hayes Township for a report of a 3-year-old girl who wandered off with two family dogs. Family members began to follow foot tracks and called 9-1-1, Schneider said.

Sheriff's deputies called in crews from the City of Charlevoix Ambulance and Charlevoix Township Fire Department to assist in the search.

About an hour after the initial call, family members found the girl and the dogs in a heavily-wooded area near a creek, about a third of a mile from the house from where she earlier wandered away.

Although family members could not find their way back to the home, they told searchers the approximate area where they could be found. Charlevoix Township firefighters found the group and assisted them out of the woods, Schneider said.

Schneider said the temperature at the time of the incident registered at 9 degrees Fahrenheit. Ambulance crews examined the girl and her family at the scene.

"Other than being extremely cold, everyone is fine," Schneider said.

Boyne Falls man sent to prison for break-ins, thefts

CHARLEVOIX — A local judge sentenced to prison a Boyne Falls man who broke into two buildings and a vehicle and stole items from them last year.

On Friday, March 14, 33rd Circuit Court Judge Richard M. Pajtas sentenced Kenneth Orval Wingo Jr., 19, to serve 18-120 months in prison on a charge of breaking and entering, 18-48 months on a charge of larceny in a building, 18-48 months on a charge of possession of a controlled substance and 93 days in jail on a charge of receiving and concealing stolen property. He will serve the sentences concurrently, which means at the same time.

In January, Wingo pleaded guilty to the charges as part of a plea bargain in which authorities dropped a marijuana possession charge and two other theft charges.

At the time of his plea, Wingo admitted he committed thefts from Betty's

Horse Liniment Erases Pain

HALEAH, FL — An ingredient often used to treat inflammation in racehorses' legs, is now back on the market in its original doctor recommended clinical strength formula.

According to a national drug store survey, the formula at one time became so popular that it rose to the top of pharmacy sales for topical pain relievers. But the company marketing the product at the time changed the formula and sales plummeted. One of the inventors of the original formula has brought it back to the market under the trade name ARTHARREST and says it can relieve pain for millions.

ARTHARREST works by a dual mechanism where one ingredient relieves pain immediately, while a second ingredient soaks out and destroys the pain messenger signal before it can be sent to the brain. Considered a medical miracle by some, the ARTHARREST formula is useful in the treatment of painful disorders ranging from minor aches and pains to more serious conditions such as arthritis, bursitis, tendonitis, & more. ARTHARREST is available in a convenient roll-on applicator at pharmacies without a prescription or call 877-581-1502. Now at:

OPINIONS yours & ours

The gift

Sixty years ago was a time when having a baby out of wedlock was looked upon harshly and the woman was the first to be judged. If she decided to keep her baby or follow through with adoption, a safe place to harbor oneself was in a convent. Sometimes this was good and sometimes it was not. There are always those who condemn even if they appear to be accepting by the religious cloak they wear, or the white medical uniform neatly pressed and nothing out of place.

One of the nuns reached out to calm the fear of the young woman. "I am so afraid, have I made the right decision?" As time drew closer and the pains in her belly awakened her senses a new fear encased her body, one that comes with the unknown and the overwhelming loneliness of not having support of family. She was alone with her thoughts harboring the secret of bearing a child that she could not keep as her own. The nun sensing the young girl's angst and taking her oath of caring for others to heart handed the frightened pregnant girl a rosary. Together they began to pray. As this young future mother lay in bed looking out her window, watching the remains of crimson leaves fall to the cool grass below, the gifted rosary remained lying across her swollen belly.

"Give me strength and calm my fears, oh Lord." Sixty years later the young girl matured into a beautiful, loving woman who married, raised children and grandchildren and found herself comforted by her decision she made many years ago to place her baby up for adoption.

Life continued and mother and daughter were destined to meet again. She left the room almost as quickly as she entered, as if something reminded her there was one more thing to do. When she returned there was a quiet look about her. She was clutching two objects visibly close to her heart. Her eyes glistening and in a quiet voice she began to share with her daughter the last few months of pregnancy while living in the convent.

Now at this very moment as if written in a script she reached out to her now grown daughter that she had given life to and unselfishly given to another family. The two women faced each other and as if holding the Holy Grail itself the mother carefully held out the items she was holding so close to her heart. The items she carefully guarded were now placed into her daughter's hands. The morning light picked up the colored glass beads as they reflected off the walls. She gently placed the rosary into the hands of her daughter.

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

ter. The beads that years earlier gave her the strength she needed during a time when life seemed so dark.

Along with the rosary was a small blue booklet. It was one given to her by the adoptive father. In it was a message written in his own hand; thanking her and sharing this small book of hope and prayer that helped the daughter's adoptive mom in times when there was dark instead of light. The woman who gave this child life and the child who is now grown shared this quiet moment together. Now holding the rosary and the booklet knowing all decisions were made for a reason and for them this decision was good. Tears streaming not of sadness, but of joy believing that when we are open to listening there is a plan that we may follow to guide us out of our darkness and into the light. The gift of giving life has never felt as good as it does at this moment. I am forever grateful this woman chose life and I have loved every minute.

Fisherman's Island deserves a 'no' on land swap

Editor:

For more than 60 years, Fisherman's Island Recreational Area and State Park has been a magnificent resource for Charlevoix, the people of Michigan and all who visit there.

Thanks to the State of Michigan, we now have five miles of Lake Michigan shoreline and secluded wooded area that is an unique part of Charlevoix and Charlevoix Township.

I have lived in Charlevoix Township since 1970, and like so many of my neighbors, we and our children have spent summers there, swimming, camping, hiking and biking. Fisherman's Island is a part of their heritage. They grew up with an understanding of the natural resources we have out our back doors.

For those of us who live here, Fisherman's Island is a jewel; a playground that we keep its entrance on Bell's Bay Road. The entrance and northern 190 acres must not be allowed to be given away.

A 'NO' to St. Marys Cement Company's land swap proposal will send a message to the Michigan Department of Natural Resources that the north sector of the park and entrance on Bell's Bay Road is too important to us to trade away.

Fisherman's Island State Park is a special place that deserves a 'NO' on the land swap with St. Marys Cement Company.

Jerry Puhl,
Charlevoix Township

Leave the state park alone

Editor:

Please, St. Marys, leave Fisherman's Island State Park alone. It was created as a park for a reason — to protect it! Swapping other land for it destroys it. Do not invade it, swap for it, dig under it, go through it, or go over it.

My family first came to Charlevoix for summers in 1883 and visiting the park has always been something my family has enjoyed. It was bad enough when the cement plant built on the land they'd owned there since the 1930s. That already has made getting to the park less direct and destroyed a scenic way to get there. The enjoyment of the park by many — human and otherwise — should not be sacrificed for St. Marys' financial benefit.

LOOKING BACK...

The Chicago & West Michigan Railway brought the first train to Charlevoix in June of 1892. The company was absorbed by the Pere Marquette Railroad in 1899, which instituted what became known as the "Resort Special" in 1904. This train became the pride of the company although it ran only from mid-June through mid-September. It was reported that in its heyday, the Resort Special that arrived in Charlevoix was so long, up to 12 or more cars, that when the engineer arrived from the south, he often had to pull up in the freight depot once located at the far north end of the current municipal parking lot at Depot Beach. Then the passengers on the first half of the train disembarked. After they were done, he chugged ahead to let the rear half of the train get off. Passengers boarded in Chicago Monday through Saturday. Detroit passengers boarded on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays headed to Grand Rapids where their cars joined the cars from Chicago. Evening boardings in both cities meant morning arrivals in Charlevoix. Except for a few years during World War II, the Resort Special stayed in service until Sept. 4, 1957.

The Charlevoix Historical Society's new, fully illustrated exhibit titled Journeying to Charlevoix will be at the Depot building, at Depot Beach, through Saturday, May 3. The event initially was offered in partnership with the Smithsonian Institution exhibit titled Journey Stories, which was on display at Charlevoix Public Library. Hours of the Depot exhibit are 10 a.m.-4 p.m. Saturdays, or by special appointment. Call (231) 547-0373 for more information.

New chamber president returns to Charlevoix

Hubbard gained retail, membership and management skills while away

CHARLEVOIX — The board of directors for the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce this week announced Alison Boyer Hubbard as its new president and chief operational officer.

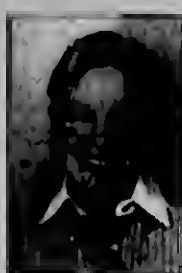

The chamber's selection resulted after a national search spearheaded by an appointed selection committee. Hubbard will begin her new role on April 7 and will report to the executive committee of the chamber's board.

Hubbard will oversee the employees and closely work with the board of directors to implement the program of action identified in the chamber's strategic plan. Her main focus this year will be to continue the emphasis on the community branding program — Charlevoix First! — and implement the chamber takeaways from the economic forum, which will enhance and promote local businesses, as well as work in conjunction with local government offices and the residents of Charlevoix.

"Chamber and community members will be very excited when they see Alison put her ideas and energy into action on their behalf. Alison has a proven track record in leading membership growth and retention in her past chamber role. Her enthusiasm, experience, and knowledge make her an excellent fit for leading the Charlevoix Area Chamber through its next phase of growth and development," said Steven Seely, chamber board chairman and chief executive officer.

"The chamber selection committee was blown away by her background and concepts. A huge positive for our membership and community is the fact that Alison is another 'Boomerang' who went out to see the world and returned to grace our community with expanded skill sets and visions," he continued.

Hubbard returns to Charlevoix with extensive chamber and business experience having most recently served as the annual giving manager for McLaren Northern Michigan Foundation. Among her varied experiences, she served as the director of membership for the Vail Valley Partnership in Vail, Colo., and worked in New York City, Boston and Bozeman, Mont., in retail management for top retailers Saks Fifth Avenue and Gap Inc.

"I am honored to return to my hometown and to be joining the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce team," Hubbard said. "The chamber's work is vital to the region's business community and I look forward to working with the chamber's board, volunteers and staff to grow the organization and to promote 'Charlevoix First!' and ensure the livelihood of local businesses."

Alison is married to Fritz Hubbard, and they have two children, Ole and Paige.

Local charter airline settles dispute with city

Fresh Air Aviation agrees to solve own fuel supply issue to avoid new fee

SHERI MCWHIRTER O'DONNELL
COURIER EDITOR

Officials at Fresh Air Aviation who previously balked at Charlevoix city officials' plan to hike fuel truck delivery fees at the municipal airport no longer object, but only because they intend to solve their own problem.

"We're not in agreement with this surcharge, but we're not going to protest it any more," said Rachel Teague, co-owner of the charter airline company.

Charlevoix City Council members unanimously agreed Monday to institute a 25-cent per gallon surcharge for truck-delivered fuel at the city's airport, but not until June 1 this year. That's the compromise all parties agreed to at a recent airport committee meeting, said Norman Carlson Jr., mayor.

City manager Roh Straehl explained the delay from April 1 to June 1 is to allow Fresh Air Aviation the time to arrange its own fuel delivery system. It's how the company will be able to avoid paying the city airport's new surcharge — a negotiated agreement.

Fresh Air officials previously objected to the surcharge, arguing it unfairly targeted their company in violation of federal regulations. Teague also said during a Feb. 17 public meeting that figures used to justify the surcharge didn't add up, either.

SHERI MCWHIRTER O'DONNELL/COURIER
Fresh Air Aviation officials will secure their own fuel truck to avoid a hike in city fees for the use of its fuel truck.

"We are the biggest user that will be impacted, but weren't even part of the discussion," she said more recently.

But none of that matters now, Teague said, because the company will ramp up its plans to purchase and self-operate a fuel trailer. It's an idea officials considered for several years, she said.

"The objective is to have that in place by June," Teague said.

The turn of events may actually work out better than if the city simply carried on without the now-approved 25-cent surcharge, she said. It will be a more streamlined operation when Fresh Air workers control the timing of fueling, independent of the airport's schedule or manpower levels.

So that's a good thing, Teague said, and the company will end up saving money, but only because the airport's leadership instituted the surcharge.

In the end, it's mostly a matter of insult.

"We'd been presented as an inconvenience and that was a little hard to take," Teague said, adding it's better to be treated more like an asset.

Airport manager Scott Woody previously explained how the surcharge is intended to boost airport revenues by about $6,000 annually — or reduce city operational expenses by that amount, if preferred. Fueling Fresh Air's planes from the delivery truck takes away manpower from other municipal airport duties, he said.

Fresh Air Aviation is not situated at the terminal, but further west at mid-airfield on Old Norwood Road, away from the city's stationary fuel pump.

Local maple syrup family hosts weekend open house

SHERI MCWHIRTER O'DONNELL
COURIER EDITOR

CHARLEVOIX — Charlevoix's Parsons family will host an open house this weekend, including demonstrations and the sweet smells of locally made maple syrup. That is, if the weather begins to cooperate a little better.

"We just finished tapping this spot a week ago, but it hasn't been warm enough for much sap to run," Dave Parsons said Saturday, March 15, while standing near a sugar bush at the Charlevoix-Antrim counties boundary.

Vacuum-pumped sap collection lines each year gather the needed sweet stuff, which Parsons said is holed down to create spring's signature taste — maple.

The coming open house is part of Michigan Maple Weekend, the second annual celebration focused on the state's oldest agricultural activity. The weekend is organized by the Michigan Maple Syrup Association.

Harwood Heritage Gold Maple Syrup is the Parsons family's business is at 00061 Parsons Road, south of Charlevoix. The farm can be found off of Brown Road, which connects to U.S. 31 in Atwood.

The first round of Michigan Maple Weekend events happened last weekend at downtown sugar shacks, and now it's the northern Lower Peninsula's turn. The last weekend in March will feature Upper Peninsula sites.

The open-to-the-public event at Harwood Heritage will be noon-4 p.m. both Saturday and Sunday, March 22-23. Anyone with questions can call (231) 547-2038.

KorthaseFlinn Agent retires after 30 years of service

EAST JORDAN — After serving East Jordan residents for more than 30 years, Personal Lines Agent Nancy Nyland, known by her clients as Nan, will retire from KorthaseFlinn Insurance and Financial Services on April 3. Nyland has been working closely with Cristina Hogarth, who was promoted to agent, and Mike Houser, who was hired in December as a customer service representative, to ensure a smooth transition for clients.

To give clients an opportunity to discuss this transition, KorthaseFlinn will host an open house from 8:30 a.m.

to 5 p.m. on Wednesday, April 2, at the East Jordan branch inside suite 10 at 100 Main St.

Nyland, who began her insurance career in East Jordan more than 30 years ago, joined KorthaseFlinn in 1998. Throughout the years, Nyland has demonstrated a commitment to helping her community find peace of mind with insurance programs that protect families when they need protection most. Auto-Owners Insurance Company honored Nyland for these efforts by ranking her 25th nationally, which earned her a place in the carrier's prestigious President's Club in 2012.

Relationships are important to Nyland, who is confident Hogarth and Houser will follow in her footsteps by placing client needs first.

"Relationships are important because it means our clients have placed their trust in me, and our agency, and that's something I have always valued and taken very personally," said Nyland. "Cristina and Mike also understand the importance of building trustworthy relationships and that's one of the many reasons I feel they will be there when our customers need them most."

Hogarth worked diligently to prepare for her new producer role. Since joining the agency last year, Hogarth earned licenses in Life and Health as well as a Property and Casualty. She is also an active member of her community, where she participates in Leadership Charlevoix County.

For Houser, a Boyne City native with more than 10 years of customer service experience, the transition to KorthaseFlinn just made sense.

"Almost everyone I know has insurance through KorthaseFlinn," said Houser of why he chose the agency. "I'm excited to be a part of a company that has been taking care of my neighbors for so long."

With roots in Boyne City, East Jordan and Petoskey, KorthaseFlinn Insurance and Financial Services has served Northern Michigan for more than 80 years. The professionals at KorthaseFlinn continue to operate from the same spirit of service that began decades before, as they strive to support and strengthen the communities in which they live, work, and grow.

OBITUARY

Robert Dean Stilwell, 83

Robert Dean (Bob) Stilwell died peacefully at home in Charlevoix on March 10, 2014, with his family at his side. A son of Guy Hotland and Mattie Elizabeth (Jones) Stilwell, Bob was born April 21, 1930, in Blair, Ill., and grew up in the neighboring towns of Waukegan and Zion. He moved to Charlevoix in 1952, where he married Virginia Mae Brown on June 18, 1954. Bob was a proud veteran of the U.S. Army and the Illinois National Guard, and after moving "Up North" he attended agricultural training courses and began his life as a farmer. Bob was happiest out of doors, working his fields, caring for his cattle, tending his garden, or sitting and watching the light change on the hills behind the house. Guy Stilwell's job required his family to move frequently, and Bob was proud to have made a home for his family on their Charlevoix farm. In his later years, Sunday drives with a stop for a hamburger were among his simple pleasures.

Bob is survived by his beloved wife of 60 years, Ginger; son, Robert Jr., of Charlevoix; daughter, Diana and her husband, Rick Gould of Sharon, Mass.; loving granddaughters, Brie Ann Stil-well and Audrey and Lindsey Gould; and several nieces and nephews. He was predeceased by his parents; sister, Alberta Korunka; brothers, Guy and Richard; sister, Mildred Scheck; and his beloved dog, Rags.

At Bob's request, no funeral will be held. Interment will be at Norwood Lakeside Cemetery in the spring.

Those wishing to honor Bob's memory may consider donations to Hospice of Little Traverse Bay (c/o McLaren Northern Michigan Foundation, 360 Connable Avenue, Petoskey, MI 49770).

Please sign Bob's guestbook at www.winchesterfuneralhome.com online.

Barkley named Veteran of the Month

The Veteran of the Month for March 2014 is Lyle Eugene Barkley.

Born on Dec. 16, 1947, at the family farm near Boyne City, Barkley left school while attending the 11th grade going to work full time on the family farm. On Aug. 30, 1967, Barkley was inducted into the U.S. Army entering into active service in Detroit, and was assigned to Fort Leonard Wood in Missouri, where he completed eight weeks basic training qualifying sharpshooter with the M-14 rifle and expert with the M-16 rifle. He then attended an eight-week school graduating as a crane shovel operator and was promoted to Private First Class on March 15, 1968. He was reassigned to the 22nd Engineering Company, Sixth Army, Fort Lewis, Wash., embarking from there on two six-month tours of duty in Vietnam.

On Jan. 18, 1969, Barkley was promoted to the non-commissioned officer grade of Specialist Fifth Class Technician and while at Fort Lewis Barkley married Shirley Gay Westbrook on May 15, 1969. On Aug. 29, 1969, Barkley received a release from active military service and was transferred to the U.S. Army Active Reserves, Control Group (Annual Training), U.S. Army Active Command, St. Louis, Mo., receiving an honorable discharge on Aug. 29, 1973, having completed his military obligation, and was awarded the following decorations and awards: The National Defense Service Medal, The Vietnam Service Medal, The Vietnam Commendation Medal, The Good Conduct Medal and Two Overseas Service Bars (each representing six months foreign service).

After being released from active service in 1969, Barkley returned to the Boyne area going to work for C. H. Smith Construction Company and later bought a gas station and towing business in the village of Clarion. After selling the gas station and business he went to work on a farm in the Grand Rapids area and later was employed at the Amoco gas station in Boyne City, serving as its mechanic. In 1999, Barkley started his own excavating business and never really retired as he was always working on a project. He enjoyed deer hunting, fishing, playing jokes on people — as long as it wasn't being played on him — taking naps, was always ready to give a helping hand whenever needed, always stood up for what he believed was right and loved spending quality time with his grandchildren and family. On Sept. 28, 2013, Lyle Eugene Barkley answered the final call and is being honored by his son, Ken, his daughter, Kim, and their families.

To honor a veteran, call the program chairman at (231) 588-6067 or on Tuesdays call (231) 582-7811 between 3:30-8:30 p.m. The ceremony may be witnessed at 6:15 p.m. on the first Thursday of each month in front of The American Legion Post on the corner of South Lake and Main streets in Boyne City.

PUBLIC NOTICE:

METRO CREATIVE SERVICES

Run water continuously, but no need to boil

Bills will be average of 3 months before run water order

CHARLEVOIX — Charlevoix municipal officials remind water customers to continue to run their tap water until further notice in order to avoid frozen pipes, even as the days warm with the shining sun. That's run the water, not boil it.

"Somehow there's a rumor on the Internet that you also have to boil water in Charlevoix and that's not true," said Pat Elliott, public works superintendent.

The frost level remains beyond 5 feet deep and it is expected to take weeks for the ground to thaw.

Elliott said city workers continue to respond to frozen water lines at homes in which residents failed to continuously run a stream of cold water. But city coffers aren't taking all the hits, he said.

Residents with frozen lines are asked to do their own trenching work with the hard-coed ground, Elliott said, as well as cover the cost for professional plumbers to provide needed on-site work and repairs after city workers thaw the lines.

Elliott suggested it's much better all-around to just follow the city's run water order to preserve the city's underground infrastructure.

Meanwhile, city treasurer Joe Zielinski said city water customers won't be charged for all that water left to run continuously. He said customers will instead be charged an average of their water use bills for the three months prior to the city's run water mandate.

Christian concert set for Sunday

Family Force Five and Building 429 to headline at high school

CAROLYN SHERK
COURIER CONTRIBUTOR

The Family of Faith Church of Charlevoix will host a Christian music concert at 6 p.m. Sunday, March 23, at Charlevoix High School on Marion Center Road.

The upcoming family-friendly concert is part of the "We Won't Be Shaken Tour" that will feature five Christian bands. The Lybecker Band, Satellites and Sirens and Hawk Nelson are the scheduled warm-up performers for the headliner bands: Family Force Five and Building 429.

Caleb Arp, event coordinator from Family of Faith

Church envisioned the idea to bring the Christian concert to Charlevoix and he and fellow church members tirelessly worked to bring this inspirational Christian musical review to the community. His father, the Rev. Michael Arp, said he is enthusiastic about the event and explained the church's mission to further its community outreach program.

"Our desire is to bring a positive message to the Charlevoix community through music," he said.

More than 70 volunteers will help in the coordination of the event that will host an audience that may well exceed 1,500.

The Christian band Building 429 is a nationally recognized group that has been nominated for Grammy Awards and was recipient of the Christian Dove Award for passionate vocals, skilled musicianship and insightful songwriting. The title track of the band's "We Won't Be Shaken" album is geared toward inspiring Christians to have faith even during troubled times. Building 429 recently was featured as guests on the Fox News Channel's "Mike Huckabee Show."

Family Force Five is a southern Christian band that boasts of their gritty concoction of mammoth beats, mouth watering melodies and explosive guitars. The music is dance derived with a high energy and audience participation focus.

Concert goers can expect an upbeat and positive experience and will walk away feeling energized and inspired.

T-shirts and other Christian music memorabilia will be available at the event. Tickets can be purchased in advance for $17 online at www.attendstar.com online, or at the door for $20. For more information on the concert contact Arp at (231) 547-4221.

Charlevoix among fitness award finalists CHARLEVOIX — Michigan Gov. Rick Snyder announced this week that 62 Michiganders, organizations and events are named finalists for the 2014 Governor's Fitness Awards. Charlevoix is among them.

A committee of judges selected the finalists for their commitment to personal health, dedication to their communities, and the unique definition of what fitness means to them. The group will be honored during the 2014 Governor's Fitness Award Gala Celebration at Ford Field in Detroit on April 24.

The city of Charlevoix is a finalist in two categories: Promoting Active Communities Award and the Healthy Workplace Award — Medium.

COURTESY IMAGE

"This year's finalists embody all the characteristics that the Governor's Council on Physical Fitness, Health and Sports represents," Snyder said. "Each has a strong, consistent commitment to physical fitness that has helped transform them, their companies and their communities. Their efforts are helping reinvent the way they live, work and do business, and the Governor's Fitness Awards are a way to recognize the positive contributions they are making throughout our state."

The Governor's Fitness Awards are a platform for recognizing individuals and organizations in Michigan that have made outstanding contributions to health and physical fitness during the last year. For more information on the Governor's Fitness Awards, visit www.michiganfitness.org/gfa online.

Annual Chef's Challenge suspended

Challenge Mountain fundraiser lost key financial sponsor

DEBBIE MCCORMICK
NORTHERN MICHIGAN REVIEW

BOYNE FALLS — The 2014 Chef's Challenge benefit for Challenge Mountain will not take place this April after the loss of a major financial supporter.

"The event fell apart after the loss of a big sponsor in the food industry," said Dave Malusi, a Chef's Challenge committee member.

The annual event served as an important fundraiser for Challenge Mountain, a Charlevoix County-based nonprofit organization that provides adaptive outdoor recreational opportunities to people with special needs and their families — all free of charge.

Malusi said he hopes the 2015 Chef's Challenge will be scheduled and again will take place at Boyne Mountain Resort in Boyne Falls.

Jeff Minkwie, executive chef at Boyne Mountain, echoed Malusi's optimism for a 2015 Chef's Challenge.

Challenge Mountain provides a venue for sports, outdoor recreation and leisure skills to those with physical disabilities or mental challenges and has done so for more than 25 years. Challenge Mountain provides its own operational support by owning and operating two resale stores.

Visit Challenge Mountain website at www.challengemtn.org for program registration or volunteer opportunities, call (231) 535-2141.

Celebrating 100 years in America

Two local community foundations among 700 in nationwide effort

One hundred years ago, the community foundation concept was born in the Midwest, giving rise to a new philanthropy, a new way to participate in community, and a new vision for the future.

Today, Petoskey-Harbor Springs Area Community Foundation and Charlevoix County Community Foundation are two of more than 700 community foundations across the United States that invite everyday people with a vision and a passion for community to create something together: For good. Forever.

Nationwide, community foundations manage more than $48 billion in assets and make grants of approximately $4.5 billion a year to improve life in their communities. This philanthropic model has spread beyond U.S. borders, with approximately 1,700 community foundations established worldwide.

"Our local community foundations have been connecting people to the projects they care about most for more than two decades. We're proud to be trusted resources for philanthropy in the two-county area, and look forward to all the good work that our organizations will do in the years ahead," said Chip Hansen, executive director of Charlevoix County's Community Foundation.

"We're thankful for the support of so many friends, whose gifts, large and small, allow our community foundations to build permanent endowments that make a difference in our communities," said David Jones, Petoskey-Harbor Springs Area Community Foundation's executive director.

Community foundations translate collective giving into big impact

Cleveland lawyer and banker Frederick H. Geoff established the first community foundation in 1914. His vision was to pool the charitable resources of community members, people of all means, into a single, great and permanent endowment for the benefit of all. Within five years, community foundations were established in Chicago, Boston, Milwaukee, Los Angeles, Indianapolis, Grand Rapids, Minneapolis, Buffalo and New York.

Community foundations give everyone access to the power of endowment.

Community foundations are designed to build endowment funds that benefit the community forever and help create personal legacies. When you contribute to the endowment managed by your community foundation, your gift is invested over time. Earnings are used to make grants to address community needs. Donations — and all future earnings from donations — become a permanent source of community capital, to help to do good work today and in the future.

Community foundations are devoted to the people and places you love

Community foundations across the country help people invest in the future of the communities about which they care. Trillions of dollars are expected to transfer from one generation to the next during the next 50 years. The philanthropic opportunity during this transfer has the potential to improve the quality of life — in urban centers and small towns alike — through economic development, education, health, human services, environment, arts and culture. As place-based organizations that focus collective assets for community work, community foundations are helping people of all means give back and make a difference.

To learn more about Charlevoix County Community Foundation, visit www.c3f.org or call (231) 536-2440. To learn more about the Petoskey-Harbor Springs Area Community Foundation, visit www.phsacf.org or call (231) 348-5820.

Charlevoix receives gold certification among green communities

CHARLEVOIX — The city of Charlevoix received gold-status recognition for environmental leadership at the Michigan Green Communities conference in Flint on Feb. 25.

As part of the Michigan Green Communities Challenge, local governments that participated received gold, silver, bronze or member seals of achievement to reflect community leadership in areas such as natural resource conservation, green economic development and energy efficiency.

Charlevoix achieved gold status for exemplary action in a variety of categories that includes participation in collaborative regional initiatives to promote sustainability. The Charlevoix municipal marina is recognized as a "Michigan Clean Marina." Additionally, the city partnered with nonprofit organization Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council to develop stormwater management plan for a recent street reconstruction.

The challenge is a new tool to help local leaders measure their progress as they implement energy, economic development and environmental improvements. It is supported by the Michigan Association of Counties, Michigan Department of Environmental Quality, Michigan Economic Development Corporation Energy Office, Michigan Municipal League and Michigan Townships Association. It uses a rating system to recognize sustainability accomplishments and serves as a guide for the community leaders who look to learn from their peers. Participation is free and open to all local governments in Michigan as part of the statewide Michigan Green Communities network that aims to support local sustainability efforts.

The challenge launched in 2009 and emphasized energy efficiency projects in an effort to help local governments prepare for and make the best use of federal Energy Efficiency and Conservation Block Grant (EECBG) funds. In the past, graduate students from the University of Michigan worked with program participants and the staff of a partner organization to update the program and reflect the evolving sustainability standards. The updated challenge reflects broader topics, such as green economic development, resource conservation and water quality in addition to maintaining a strong energy component.

Environmental council seeks nominations

Categories include business, education, journalism, student, volunteer and more

The Northern Michigan Environmental Action Council (NMEAC) encourages people to nominate individuals who are effective advocates for the environment or protectors of our beautiful environmental legacy of clean water, fresh air and healthy soil, in Northern Michigan. Nominees might be a co-worker, or somebody you know at work, or school — maybe even a farmer, builder or a journalist.

Nominations easily are submitted via the nonprofit organization's website at www.nmeac.org/EOY/NominatingForm.html online, through April 1. Categories include: Environmentalist of the Year in Agriculture, Business, Educator, Education through Music, General, Journalism and Communications, Professional, Public Service or Public Office, Grass Roots Group, Student, and Volunteer.

The "Environmentalist of the Year Awards" will be presented on April 25, during the organization's 27th annual awards dinner event at the Park Place Hotel in Traverse City.

The planned keynote presenter this year will be local author and educator Michael Delp. When he's not on rivers, Delp dreams about them. His writing is focused on the world of rivers and water. He spent 40 years teaching, 13 in Grayling and then 27 in Interlochen, where, for more than a decade, he served as director of the creative writing program.

Delp's poems and stories appeared nationally and in many anthologies, and he currently is the co-editor of the award winning "Made in Michigan" book series from Wayne State University Press. He has several books of poems and his most current collection of short stories "As If We Were Prey" was cited by Foreward Magazine as a bronze award winner.

Delp is an obsessed fly fisherman and spends most of his summers at his cabin on the Boardman River, reeling waters. He is a known recluse, seeks the silence of eddies and slack current, and will often disappear into the brush when he hears other anglers on approach. His desire is to one day go on 'walkabout' to navigate, first the Manistee River from its mouth to its point of origin, traverse several miles, and navigate back down the AuSable River, Native American-style.

Tickets may be purchased at the organization's website. Advertising and underwriting opportunities are also available. More information can be found at www.nmeac.org online.

Donation of life

Charlevoix resident Candice Wiers, who works as a physical therapist at Charlevoix Area Hospital, donates blood Thursday, March 13, at Community Reformed Church in Charlevoix. The American Red Cross continues to seek blood donations after harsh winter weather led to cancellations for many blood drives across the country. The most needed blood types are O, A negative and B negative. Call (800) 733-2767 to schedule a donation for yourself, or check out the Courier's events listing on page A9 to find a number of blood drives throughout the area.

Charlevoix Schools host strategic planning session

Process expected to set goals, paths to success

SHERI MCWHIRTER-O'DONNELL
COURIER EDITOR

Nearly three dozen people gathered on a Saturday — all day Saturday — to discuss a new strategic plan for Charlevoix Public Schools.

Scott Morrell, of the Michigan Association of School Boards, facilitated the day-long event, which really is the start of a four-week process that will result in a document upwards of 15-16 pages which will lay out mission and vision statements, guiding principles for the district, as well as various goals and planned paths to success. It also will rank the district among those similar to Charlevoix's size and factor in data from community surveys.

"We've got a start on a plan, so now what do we do with it?" Morrell asked the room full of volunteer participants — various community stakeholders in Charlevoix's school system.

Well, some of the participants from this first planning session will go out and create new groups within the community to collectively brainstorm ideas on particular topics. That means the next round of public input opportunities for new district strategic goals will come within the four subcommittees now under development.

"Some of these people will be called back to chair the committees," Morrell said.

The subcommittees' various goals include increased student success, development of internal and external communications, development of a 3-5 year facilities and maintenance plan, and determine a plan to create time and resources for staff development.

Superintendent Bob Gendron said this strategic planning process costs $10,000, and is covered by an anonymous donation to the school district.

"This is a very valuable process and will help us into the future," Gendron said.

Those involved in the session included union teachers, support staff workers and various stakeholders from the general public. Anyone interested in involvement with the strategic planning progress can contact the district at (231) 547-3200.

voice in city planning decisions.

"Do we want to take out a $100 ad every time there's a vacancy on a city board," Spencer asked.

Councilman Jeff Porter questioned why part-time Charlevoix residents who are registered to vote elsewhere in the country can't be permitted to serve on city boards, committees and commissions.

Spencer explained how being in town more often than not is of utmost importance when it comes to public service. Winter meetings do involve some important business, he added.

"It's not how much you know. It's if you can attend the meetings on a year-round basis," Spencer said.

Comparatively, both Boyne City and East Jordan already adopted similar ordinances to allow experts from adjacent townships to serve on city boards, just like this request, Spencer said.

Nevertheless, city councilors didn't go for it.

The proposed ordinance failed to garner any support among city leaders in a consensus decision, and therefore died without a vote.

GARAGE FIRE

After that, firefighters concentrated their efforts to keep the fire from spreading to the front of the building.

Howard said fire crews also worked to keep the fire from spreading to a second storage building about 10 feet away from the garage which contained lawn equipment and two Jeeps. He said firefighters removed all of the contents of the second building, however, the building did sustain damage to its door, roof and wall.

Howard said the Hudson Township Fire Department initially mistakenly received a dispatch to the fire, but he asked them to continue to assist at the scene.

Charlevoix County Road Commission and Allied EMS also assisted at the scene, and authorities reported no injuries in fighting the fire. Officials said they didn't immediately know the cause of the fire.

Howard did not have exact times, but said fire crews remained on the scene for much of the day.

"I can tell you it was a long and hard day," Howard said. "Several firemen were on the hoses through most of the event." He also thanked crews from Hudson Township for "jumping right in and relieving my crew."

Howard noted that it has been a particularly busy winter for his department. He said Sunday's fire was the third in Chandler Township since November.

"Add two structure fires in Melrose (Township), throw in an airplane crash and this has to be the busiest winter in my career as a fireman," Howard said.

WINGO

Restaurant in Boyne Falls, the Boyne Mountain Ski Patrol room and a car being repaired at Erickson's 131 in Boyne Falls.

Charlevoix County Prosecuting Attorney Allen Telgenhof in a written statement praised the police work of Charlevoix County Sheriff's deputies Josh Smithburg and Justin Kieliszewski for their investigation in this case.

Smithburg followed footprints in the snow from Betty's Restaurant back to Wingo's vehicle, parked at his residence. Kieliszewski then interviewed Wingo and obtained a confession to the Betty's Restaurant break-in. Authorities obtained a search warrant for his vehicle and found inside other stolen items, Telgenhof said.

HOUSE FIRE

came into contact with the metal chimney. That caused heat to build up and ignite wood supports next to the chimney.

Howard said several factors worked in the firefighters' favor to stop the fire before it destroyed the house.

"I always comment that timing is important in how successful a fire department is," Howard said. "The resident was home at the time and called in 'smoke filling the house.' He kept the doors shut to the outside, not to cause a open draft and feed the fire. But, if the fire had a few minutes more head start, and if we were unable to put it out with one pumper full of water, I am sure we would have stood there and watched it and a nearby garage burn to the ground."

Howard also said he encourages homeowners to evaluate their driveways for emergency vehicle accessibility.

"Our first pumper up, the rear (wheels) were rubbing both snow banks. Once at the house there was no where to park, or turn around," Howard said. "Residents need to evaluate their drives. If the gas delivery truck cannot get in, neither can two or three responding fire trucks."

If approved, the levy would raise an estimated $190,000 in 2015.

"It's just like it was before — the same rate," Rick-Biddick said.

Charlevoix County Clerk Cheri Browe confirmed her office received the required paperwork on Tuesday, making it the first levy request to be put to voters in the August primary — so far.

Other members of the recreational authority board who voted to ask taxpayers in the city of Charlevoix and both Hayes and Charlevoix townships whether they want to support the pool through taxes include David Garland, Bruce Herbert, Robin Kraft, Valerie Snyder and Carol Martin. Voters in those municipalities will decide on Aug. 5 at the polls.

Rick-Biddick said the pool is a valuable community asset, though it's not a government-run facility.

"It's a community pool and has supported and helped a lot of people in our community," she said.

More information about the nonprofit pool and its programs can be found at www.charlevoixpool.org online, or by calling (231) 547-0982.

ramp — not for the big boats — because we don't want to dredge it out more than we have to," she said.

Preliminary plans call for an access road to be constructed from Boyne City-Charlevoix Road around the park's boundary to a new parking lot and modern boat launch on Lake Charlevoix's northern shore.

Hayes Township only recently acquired the park for $4.2 million via a $3.75 million state Natural Resources Trust Fund grant, along with $500,000 from township coffers and $672,000 in private donations.

The 20-acre site offers 1,400 feet of shoreline on Lake Charlevoix, where a former private all-girls camp operated. Former camp co-owner Bill Schulman in 2011 closed the park for the first time in 55 years and placed the property on the real estate market — initially listed for $6.5 million.

Currently, Knepp said the township hired some engineers to do the preliminary designs for the boat launch, though changes can be made to the plans. Meanwhile, township officials won't know for months whether the state grant will be awarded to help construct this new planned asset, she said.

More information about the township's plans for Camp Sea-Gull can be found at www.hayestownshipmi.gov online, under the link for "Camp Sea-Gull Park." Preliminary drawings of the boat launch can be downloaded for review.

REVIEW

three dozen in the audience, though, expressed serious concerns — or outright objection — regarding any land swap between the mining company and the state park. Their reasons came on principle or otherwise.

Bill Henne, vice-president of WATCH (Water and Air Team Charlevoix) said the organization remains "strongly opposed to the land swap," but conceded it favors dialogue among a stakeholders' committee — so long as no state park property is given up, including Bell's Bay Road.

Anne Zukowski, of the Save Fisherman's Island group, argued federal grant dollars used to buy the land for the state park preclude it being used for anything other than conservation and land protection in perpetuity. She said the working committee St. Marys suggests is designed to create compromise and on this matter, there should be no compromise, Zukowski said.

"Taking any part of Fisherman's Island State Park should be non-negotiable," she said.

LuAnne Kozma, of Hayes Township, said she abhors "grandiose schemes to take our parks away from future generations."

"Do people really want cement companies taking over parks, in general?" Kozma asked.

Among the many public concerns about such a land swap is how a new park entrance likely would be required, along with worries about lost or degraded amenities, convenience and public access.

Charlevoix City Council members did not vote on the issue, but some commented.

Shirley Gibson said the land trade sounds as if the public would get "a bone with no meat on it," while Leon Perron took more of a legacy perspective.

"It's an unbelievably valuable piece of the earth and we're going to take it away from generations if this goes through," he said.

Meanwhile, company officials said anyone who is interested in participating with the community working committee it intends to establish is asked to send a letter of interest via email to landswap@att.net.

It is expected this land swap concept will continue to face public review as it is presented around the community, and as the planned working committee conducts its work. However, the ultimate decision on any such land swap lies with Michigan DNR director Keith Creagh, should a land exchange proposal ever be submitted for consideration.

BOYS' BASKETBALL

East Jordan fans and players (from left) Noah Bacchus, Isaiah Sladick, Donny Cutler, Collin Bajko and Jordan Weber can only watch as their season comes to a close during a 63-42 loss to Negaunee in their Class C state quarterfinal game in the Petoskey High School gym on Tuesday. Although their magical late season run ended, the Red Devils earned a school record 11 conference wins this season, tied a school record with 19 overall wins, won their first district title since 1995 and added their first regional title since 1953.

East Jordan's historic run ends

Red Devils fall to Negaunee in quarter-finals

DREW KOCHANNY
NORTHERN MICHIGAN REVIEW

PETOSKEY — An end to a new beginning.

With goals and dreams of reaching East Lansing and a state final within reach over a two-week Cinderella run, the East Jordan boys' basketball team's thrilling season came to an end on Tuesday in the Petoskey High School gym.

Matched up against Negaunee in a Class C state quarterfinal game, the Red Devils fell 63-42 to the Miners, ending their season with a 19-5 overall record in front of a jam-packed, standing room only crowd at the Petoskey High School gym.

After earning their first district title since 1995 and first regional title since 1953, along with turning around a 4-16 season from a year ago, it's hard to not look at the Red Devils' season as a huge success, even with the loss still fresh.

Coaching a team throughout the 2013-14 season that put in the offseason hours and the focus during each and every game night was what made it special for Red Devil coach Darrin Weber.

"I told those kids in there to keep their heads up, based on the season that we had. There's 11 guys in there (locker room) crying. It's nice to know that I actually had a team where everyone cared that much," Weber said. "Whether they got in the game at all, fighting in practice, busting their butt in practice every night. That's what it's all about, when you can go to war with kids that all care."

Weber and his Red Devils got the test he knew they'd get from a Negaunee team, now 24-1 overall, that now advances to the Class C state semifinals and was scheduled to face Detroit Consortium at 2:50 p.m. on Thursday, March 20, in the Breslin Center in East Lansing.

"This is their (Negaunee's) fourth quarterfinal and second semifinal in a row," Weber said. "So they're experienced, they're good. If you make one mistake, those kids capitalize on you quick."

For Negaunee coach Mike O'Donnell, Thursday's game is about finding redemption at the Breslin Center after a buzzer beating loss to Laingsburg in the state semis a year ago.

"It's a great feeling," O'Donnell said. "We lost on a buzzer beater there last year. Kind of a sour taste in our mouth and for some of these guys that were there last year. It's going to be a real big task on Thursday and see what we can do."

Early on Tuesday, it looked as if the Miners and Red Devils would be in for a close night, with the end of the first quarter going to the Miners in a 14-8 game.

Negaunee, however, would come out in the second quarter pushing the tempo on the Red Devils, making it a 25-17 game midway through the quarter and eventually extend it to a 31-20 halftime lead.

"They beat us up on the glass early, couldn't really get into any rhythm," Weber said. "We missed a couple shots, had a couple turnovers there they were able to convert. That's a good ball club. (Donny) Cutler, when he got in foul trouble, got a little rattled a bit. We're a different team when he's not out on the floor."

Down 11 at the half, the Red Devils were far from out of it at halftime and would come out making it an eight point game early.

"We knew we had to come back and get a couple huckets early," said Weber. "I'm scratching my head at halftime thinking what can we do that's going to make any difference out there. It's hard to change what you do. We run and we gun and they do the same thing."

After the Miners pushed their lead back to 10 points in a 33-23 game, Negaunee guards Tyler Jandron and Eric Lori began to take over, aiding the Miners on a 10-1 run to make it a 43-24 game at the close of the third.

Jandron and Lori continued to pour in the points in the fourth, as the Miners extended their lead to 30 in a 59-29 game. Jandron scored eight fourth quarter points, while Lori added six.

"They're great, offensively defensively, we don't see players like that very often," added Weber. "They defended Noah (Bacchus) well, those kids did a nice job on him."

East Jordan sophomore guard Jordan Weber would add three 3-pointers late in the fourth to push the game to a closer score, but the night would go to the Miners in the end.

Leading the Red Devils, Weber scored 17 points, while adding five 3-pointers. Noah Bacchus scored 11 points and senior Dustin Hejka added 10 points.

Jandron led the Miners with 21 points, while Eric Lori added 17 points. Zane Radloff scored 11 points and Jay Lori had nine points.

For Bacchus, a two week run at a state final that included a district title, regional title and quarterfinal appearance will be something that lasts forever in his mind.

"Couldn't ask for a better way to go out. It was extraordinary," Bacchus said. "I know it was kind of a bummer that we did go out, but the feeling that I got from the crowd and the extra boost to keep playing was amazing and I'm really thankful for it."

"I don't think I'll ever stop remembering this game or the last one and the last week," Bacchus added. "Especially that last shot."

That last shot Bacchus is referring to was the buzzer-heating overtime winner against Beaverton in the Red Devils 55-53 regional final win. The senior also added a buzzer-beater against Charlevoix in their first district matchup and added 16 points against rival Boyne City and 19 points against Traverse City St. Francis in two other postseason contests.

"The season was great. It's kind of meant the world to me because I didn't have a chance to play college ball or anything," Bacchus added. "These last two weeks have been extraordinary now for my openings and I can continue to play basketball now."

Bacchus, along with seniors Dustin Hejka, Isaiah Sladick, Jaden Hoffman and Joey Russell, will depart as a major part of the Red Devils team.

"Losing Noah, you can fill his shoes but you can't really replace a kid like that. He played his heart out there tonight and that's all you can ask for out of that kid," said Weber. "Dustin Hejka played hard, did a great job off the bench all year. My bigs, we never asked them to do a lot of scoring, but they had to set a lot of ball screens for our guys to get to the basket."

A solid group still returns to the Red Devils for next season, including three sophomore starters.

"Just the experience for the sophomores that I've got. Those kids are use to winning and we had a successful season," said Weber. "The groups underneath them and the following that we had, I hope we can get this thing going finally."

For now, though, after a thrilling three weeks of basketball, rest and relaxation to let the end of the season soak in will ensue.

Weber doesn't expect it to be long, however, before his returning players get back to the gym. Which can only mean more good things to come for a Red Devils program beginning to take off.

"I told the kids I'm going to take a little bit of time off here. Get the voice back," he said. "Take a little time off and I'll have kids scratching to get back into the gym after spring break. They'll be ready to go. The sophomores, they'll be itching."

All in this together

Robots line up seconds before game play begins during the Escanaba FIRST Robotics District Competition March 14-15. Before going into the quarterfinals Saturday, Petoskey, Charlevoix and Traverse City teams formed an alliance. The Petoskey Paladins, team 3618, the Charlevoix Raydemators, team 4376, and Traverse City Raptors, team 1711, made it through to the semi-final round. Although their play in the competition ended with the semi-finals, they all had a great weekend. The Paladins placed seventh overall and received the Gracious Professionalism Award; the Raptors ended in 16th place and took home the Creativity Award; and the Raydemators placed 21st and received an honorable mention for the UL Industrial Safety Award. Note the stands in the far background with students from all three teams cheering together (Petoskey in blue, Charlevoix in black, and Traverse City in green).

Rayder teams gear up despite snow, weather

Multiple teams, sports share gym space for practices

KURT GRANDWOOD
NORTHERN MICHIGAN REVIEW
CHARLEVOIX — You wouldn't know by looking outside, but the Michigan High School Athletic Association spring sports seasons have started.

Like many years in the past, the snow is still on the ground making area gyms full of young athletes.

Spring in Northern Michigan often presents a collection of excitement for the warmer weather sports and slight depression while watching the snow slowly fade away in the wind-driven drizzle as opening day looms large on the athletic calendars.

"I have been doing this for a lot of years," veteran Charlevoix track and field boys coach Ken Plude said. "I have developed a few alternatives to the routine of indoor workouts, yesterday we played a timed fitness game of King of the Hill outside which brought both the girls and boys teams together for a team building activity."

Typically, spring sports start indoor workouts at the beginning of March and the season will start shortly after spring break at the beginning of April.

However, practices inside do not benefit many of the skill sets needed for the specific sport, such as baseball.

"Last year we scheduled a weekend of games with Birch Run to start the season," Charlevoix baseball coach Allen Telgenhof said. "Downstate the weather is a little warmer and the fields are dryer and we are considering starting down there this year too.

"Last year, it was the first time in a month of practicing that the boys saw fly balls outside and infield hops off grass."

Charlevoix won a Division III district title a season ago, and are setting goals to do the same this year.

"The real difference between indoor and outdoor practice is what it can do to your defense, the perspective of the baseball is different for obvious reasons," Telgenhof added.

Similar to the limits baseball will encounter while inside, soccer coaches have to be creative too.

"So many teams are scheduled to use the gym in the spring," second-year varsity coach Pete Scholten said. "We have to maximize our time for practice, creating drills that are meaningful, competitive and fun to play."

The Rayders have won five-of-six soccer Division IV district titles and part of the success has been keeping the girls engaged and learning, no matter where practice is held.

"We end many practices with a six-on-six scrimmage," Scholten added. "The indoor game is fast, building reaction time and quickness and the girls love it."

The Rayder soccer team and track and field teams have taken advantage of solidifying dates downstate.

"On Monday (March 24), we are going to the indoor track at Saginaw Valley State University," Plude added. "It breaks up the monotony that is created by just waiting for the season to start."

The early event also will help build the team concept as the Rayders are running for a fifth consecutive conference title this year.

"The trip to Saginaw Valley provides the kids with motivation, areas that they can work on over the spring break above the planned workouts that we lay out for each of the specific event participants."

"On Saturday (March 22), we are taking the girls and traveling to Olivet College to play on one-of-two outdoor turf fields, weather permitting," Scholten said.

For most spring varsity athletes though, practicing indoors is routine and just apart of living and playing in Northern Michigan.

"We lost two seniors from the team last year," Telgenhof said. "With a couple of sophomores and returning juniors in three spots up the middle, they know the indoor process and what we want to accomplish in the gym, throwing off a portable mound, taking some cage swings and a lot of conditioning."

"Gym work is a lot of technical work for the hurlers and throwers, which the veteran athletes know and teach to the younger ones," Plude said. "It is simply harder to keep me motivated than it is to motivate the kids."

Spring officially started this week on Thursday, March 20.

Let's hope the games are not too far behind.
